Navy Curtails Paper Work To Cut Mass Of Red Tape

Warships to Jettison 50% of Typewriters In Move to Free Men To Fight and Train

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Navy declared war on red tape yesterday to speed its operations afloat and ashore.

A mass meeting of officials and minor chiefs received orders from the high command that time-honored bureaucratic procedure must be eliminated and all business conducted on a new war tempo.

Civilian executives and sub chiefs were told they will be promoted for curtailing their forces and work, rather than for increasing them.

Instructions Sent Out

Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander in Chief of the United States Fleet, gave further evidence that the move was no routine affair by announcing instructions to cut the number of typewriters and mimeograph and multigraph machines "throughout the operating forces" at least 50 per cent.

Battleships now carry a battery of 50 typewriters each, officials said, while aircraft carriers have 55, cruisers 30, destroyers 7 and patrol planes 1.

King told the unprecedented conference of 500 Navy Department bureau and division chiefs, chief clerks and other minor executives that the warship typewriter quotas are being cut for two reasons. One is to force a great curtailment in reports and correspondence and leave officers and men more time for fighting and training to fight.

Saves Material, Too

The other, he said, is to divert labor and materials now being used for typewriters to make guns, precision instruments and war machines.

Secretary Knox called upon Navy Department civilian employes to take the lead in cutting out jobs and procedure not necessary to the war effort.

"The elimination or reduction of paper work, forms, reports, functions, personnel, etc., which speed up the essential actions is as important to success as guns and ships," he said.

A directive was issued by Knox which striker at the heart of governmental red tape—the desire of every minor executive to increase the volume of his work and the number of his subordinates so as to enlarge his own status and pay.

Promotions Promised

This order directed that civilian supervisors are to be promoted for cutting down their force and functions, rather than increasing them. It stated that they will be given maximum credit on efficiency ratings for purposes of automatic advancements, may be allowed an additional one-step promotion "for especially meritorious results," and "shall receive first consideration for promotion to positions in higher grades."

Cash rewards are also to be given for suggestions to curtail unnecessary jobs, reports and paper work.

"There is a widespread and false impression that the grade of a position is determined solely by the number of persons supervised and the volume of work performed," Knox declared. "I state emphatically that supervisors will not lose grade or income through their efforts to carry out this program."

Boy Dies in Plunge From Bridge At Connecticut Ave

A 16-year-old boy plunged to his death last night from the Connecticut Avenue Bridge landing on the macadamized highway 120 feet below.

He was identified as Raphael Krasnick, 5228 Chevy Chase Parkway Northwest. Police said a note was found on the youth's body of a personal nature, saying he was tired of life.

The boy was seen to mount the bridge rail by Norman L. Pulfillian, a taxi driver, 1919 North Capitol Street, who blew his horn in an effort to attract the boy's attention. The boy, however, plunged off head first.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Krasnick, who conduct a grocery store at 5035 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, could ascribe no reason for the boy's act. Mrs. Krasnick was ill last night from shock.

The youth was a student at Woodrow Wilson High School.

A Clarification

Why Local Defense Areas Must Raise Their Own Funds

The great majority of the 68 individual communities designated as civil defense areas are now engaged in raising funds for the protection of their homes in case of air raids. These funds are to be used for operating expenses, purchase of equipment and emergency purposes.

Conflicting statements and honest variance of interpretations of OCD rulings has resulted in considerable confusion throughout the District. As a result citizens are asking if these funds are necessary and if purchase of supplies involving critical material is desirable.

The Post yesterday asked Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of the OCD in Washington, for clarification of these points so that all areas in the District can work to the same end and thus bring about maximum protection in case of emergency.

"It is absolutely vital for defense areas to raise funds to defray expenses," Colonel Bolles said. "There are no public funds available for any items of local operating expenses. This is a problem for local solution.

Program Requires Careful Handling

"However, any plan decided upon must be carried out with great care under the authority of the Civilian Defense Committee. All money raised must be accounted for in the most scrupulous manner. Records must be kept of all receipts and disbursements. A well organized finance committee is advised, along with a treasurer or finance officer who commands the confidence of the community."

Colonel Bolles counseled against purchase of material for air raid warden posts that can be obtained in the neighborhood without expense—by a sort of "local lend-lease"—and he advised against acquiring material which British experience has proved to be of no value.

He called attention to the fact that money now raised should be husbanded carefully for the long pull ahead and the myriad expenses that will occur when civilian mobilization is complete and all war activities of citizens are coordinated under one head in each community.

List of Essential Equipment

Following is a list of essential equipment for each warden post prepared by Colonel Bolles for The Post yesterday. Equipment beyond this is acquired at the discretion of the individual area.

DESK AND CHAIRS

Both these items can be varied. They may be collected and donated from local attics. They can be as simple as a board on a couple of trestles plus a sufficient number of boxes or stools for the personnel.

There are many thousands of telephones in Washington already in use. The subject of communications is now under study and certain tele-

Traffic Stops While Thousands of Federal Workers Leave Desks

By Christine Sadler

Washington's "hectic life" came to an abrupt halt yesterday morning while residents and visitors participated in the first real air-raid drill staged in the District during business hours.

Traffic—one of the city's perennial headaches—turned in a performance commended by Director William A. VanDuzer and all who witnessed it. Telephone calls dropped to less than 25 per cent of normal.

Approximately 240,000 Federal employes left their desks for shelter areas. Those at the Treasury listened to a pep talk on war bonds delivered over the loud speaker system by Commissioner of Accounts E. F. Bartlett. Mostly, however, they leaned against corridor walls and were as silent as the city outside.

Secretary of State Hull shared the safety zone outside his office with Secretary of the Navy Knox and Secretary of War Stimson, with whom he was in conference when

Lyttelton Arrives For Supply Talks

Arrival of Oliver Lyttelton, British minister of production, for conversations with Donald Nelson, War Production Board chairman, and Harry Hopkins on "Anglo-American combined production problems" was announced last night by the British Supply Council.

Informed officials here view Lyttelton's visit as having a significant bearing on the question of opening a second European war front.

National Gas Rationing Hint Causes Blast

Ellender Demands Hearing Before War Board Takes Action

By Arthur Hachten
International News Service Staff Writer

A strong hint late yesterday by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson that Nation-wide gasoline rationing would be ordered shortly, was followed by an explosion of opposition on Capitol Hill.

Senator Ellender (Democrat) of Louisiana declared that "it would be calamitous to order Nation-wide gasoline rationing to save rubber, when there is ample evidence to show there is enough scrap rubber available to keep all necessary automobiles rolling for the duration of the war."

Hearing Is Demanded

Earlier, it was reliably learned that President Roosevelt had given a "go ahead" signal for Nation-wide gasoline rationing at a conference between the Chief Executive, Nelson and Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Ellender, who has a bill pending in the Senate to launch a comprehensive effort by the Government to retread used automobile tires, demanded that the WPB give Senators, Representatives and spokesmen for the oil and rubber industries an opportunity to be heard before ordering Nation-wide gasoline rationing.

Ickes at Conference

In Nelson's hands is a letter from Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas, and Senator Thomas (Democrat) of Oklahoma, requesting such a hearing.

Nelson told newsmen, after a two-hour session of the WPB on the rationing issue, that there is a "chance" an announcement will be made before the board meets next Tuesday.

"I didn't ask the board for a final

House Committee Approves Aid For Dependents of Selectees

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Anticipating induction of some men with dependents into the Nation's armed forces, legislation providing family subsistence allowances yesterday was cleared by the House Rules Committee.

The May bill, supplementing allotments from pay of enlisted men with Government financial aid to their dependent families, was tentatively set for House approval today. The more liberal Johnson bill was slated for action in the Senate next week.

Leaders, now struggling to break a deadlock on the military pay adjustment bill, were on guard lest another House liberalizing move sweep allowances for dependents above the scales recommended by the War Department.

The Administration, meanwhile, was casting out feelers on a possible compromise to break the impasse on the pay bill. A plan to pay enlisted men the $42 basic wage approved by the Senate, plus $8 in non-negotiable Government bonds to reach the $50 total twice de-

Toll Mounts

By International News Service

New York, June 2.—Torpedoing of two more United Nations merchantmen in the Caribbean area with a loss of nine lives was disclosed by the Navy tonight.

Two torpedoes struck a medium-sized United States freighter killing eight of the crew in a recent U-boat attack northwest of Trinidad, survivors, who were brought to New York, related.

Ammunition aboard the vessel exploded when the torpedoes struck. The first underwater missile hit the vessel on the starboard side beneath the bridge while a second tore off the vessel's stern.

Fifty-nine crew members abandoned ship in two lifeboats and two liferafts. During their ordeal at sea, a patrol plane spotted occupants of the craft and signaled that help was on the way. On May 18, the survivors were picked up by a friendly vessel and brought to Trinidad, whence they were taken to New York and a Gulf Coast port.

The Panamanian merchantman was torpedoed May 20. After a torpedo struck amidships, two lifeboats were launched and the crew abandoned the vessel. Of the 45 aboard, one man was lost. After being picked up by a rescue vessel, the survivors were brought to New York.

Entire Crew of 62 Of Sunken Ship Saved

An Atlantic Port, June 2 (AP).—Sailing for eight days in open lifeboats in the North Atlantic, following the sudden smashing of their British merchant vessel by two U-boat torpedoes, Capt. Angus Shaw and his crew of 61 have landed at an Atlantic port without the loss of a single man.

Three lifeboats cleared the merchantman within five minutes after the first torpedo struck while most of the men were at their Sunday midday meal. They were within 200 yards of the ship when a second torpedo crashed into the engine room. The vessel sank five minutes later.

"I'd give the teeth out of my head (they're of the store variety) if they'd give me something to hunt those submarines with," snapped Captain Shaw, a sea-bronzed Scot, 42 years at sea. "A sensation of absolute vindictive bitterness swept over me when I saw my ship go

British Promise Greater Raids With U.S. Aid; Axis Loses Half Of Striking Force in Libya

R. A. F. Alone Reported to Have Knocked Out 1000 Tanks, Armored Cars

By the Associated Press

Cairo, June 2.—The Libyan battle of destruction raged on with great violence today around two thin gaps in the desert Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line, with the dwindling ranks of the Axis' African Corps lashing out in a supreme effort to split the British fortified positions.

Already having lost some 260 tanks, or half their original striking strength, the sizable German armored forces still remaining east of the semi-fortified line, had been reorganized and were trying to drive out the British forces stationed between them and the narrow lanes of escape, which are 15 miles apart.

Another body of the Nazi mechanized forces, which for the last 72 hours has moved westward—and rearward—through the two gaps, was reported to have pushed to a position 20 miles west of the line, where it was regrouping with the Axis forces previously there.

New U. S. Tanks Get Test

[R. A. F. planes alone knocked out more than 1000 tanks, armored cars and transport vehicles in the week since the Germans launched their offensive in Libya, the Air Ministry announced in London tonight, an International News Service dispatch said.]

The Eighth Army of Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, composed of Britons, South Africans, Indians and Free French, had suffered losses too, but it had given more than it had taken in punishment from the three armored and two motorized divisions which German Marshal Erwin Rommel used in his vain attempt to seize Tobruk.

(The Germans claimed annihilation of a British unit and the capture of 3000 prisoners, including a brigadier. The Italians spoke vaguely of a "pincers movement" near El Ualeb, in the vicinity of the German gaps, where, they said, British resistance was broken and 2000 prisoners taken.)

Sea-Borne Attack Beaten Off

The British said the American "General Grant" tank, armed with a 77-mm. gun firing high explosive and antipersonnel shells, plus a 37-mm. antitank weapon and a machinegun, was being used with great success. This is the United States Army's M-3 medium tank, a 28-ton land cruiser now getting its first battlefield test.

"The enemy succeeded in withdrawing many of his tanks and much transport" through two gaps he blasted in British mine fields laid out for 50 miles between coastal Ain el Gazala and the odorous water-

Allies Smash Jap Facilities On Pacific Isles

Raid Timor, Florida Bases; Curtin Dares Foe to Try Invasion

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters, Australia (Wednesday), June 3.—Allied bombers destroyed Japanese warehouses, barracks and road transports in heavy attacks yesterday on Timor and Florida islands above this continent, General MacArthur's Headquarters announced today.

The Allied airmen chose a new target on Timor, the town of Atamboea on the north coast near the island's center. Barracks were demolished and extensive fires left raging. Ten miles south of Atamboea another barracks and road transport were set afire. One Allied raider was lost.

On Florida Island in the Solomon group, a large warehouse was destroyed and other enemy installations were set afire.

Curtin Dares Japs To Try Invasion

Melbourne, Australia, June 2 (AP). Heartened by the growing strength of the United Nations forces on Australian soil, Prime Minister John Curtin today shed his characteristic caution and dared the Japanese to try an invasion.

"I defy the enemy to land large forces in Australia," he said in a speech which launched Australia's second liberty loan.

"The enemy is being desperately driven to shortages in essential supplies which show themselves more directly in the forces of the Axis powers than is the case with the forces of the United Nations.

"And thus time runs against the Axis in every theater. . . ."

Japs Trying To Cut Off Part Of East China

Chinese Attack Flanks In Chekiang Theater, Recapturing 5 Towns

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 2.—Fierce fighting raged on three fronts in China today as the Japanese started two new offensives and continued to make progress in the third through the coastal province of Chekiang.

Suddenly assuming the nature of a real threat, a Japanese thrust from Nanchang in Kiangsi Province, which adjoins Chekiang on the west, was aimed south and east along the Kiangsi-Chekiang railway and at a possible junction with the columns coming from the east. With two claws the Japanese thus were attempting to pinch off a large piece of eastern China.

Also menacing was the northward Japanese drive from the Canton area in the South China province of Kwangtung. This was following the Canton-Hankow railway, with another column driving through the mountain country east of the railway. (The Japanese agency Domei reported the latter column had captured Tsungfa, 50 miles northeast of Canton, and had continued to advance to the north and northeast.)

Along the railway the invaders were reported approaching Heng-

'A New Phase'

By the Associated Press

London, June 2.—A mighty aerial corps of British bombers and fighter planes, 1036 of them, cast down fire and explosive with terrible effect on the German Krupp munitions center of Essen and its war plant environs last night in a second great raid on Germany in 48 hours, an assault that was proclaimed as only a token of what is yet to come from the combined air forces of Britain and the United States.

Thousands of tons of bombs were dropped upon the Krupp and Rhein Borsig metal plants, and if, as would seem obvious from the weight of the attack, the damage caused at Essen were as great as in Saturday night's 1000-plane raid on Cologne, persons familiar with German production believed that a good-sized percentage of the Reich's war industry could now be marked as crippled.

Daylight Foray Follows

[One pilot, whose four-engined bomber helped spill nearly 7,000,000 pounds of explosives and torrents of incendiaries on Essen, said he saw "many huge flame centers" throughout the area, International News Service reported. Other pilots said "hundreds of fires" sprang up and were visible some 135 miles away.]

Again today the R. A. F. sprang back to the assault, going over the Channel in great force in one of the biggest daylight aerial offensives of the war.

During the morning there were large-scale sweeps over the Gravelines and Hardelote areas of northern France. One German plane was shot down and several damaged.

German troops and gun posts were attacked from low levels.

Another force of morning raiders blasted railroads in northern France and then in the afternoon Pas de Calais, Dieppe and offshore shipping were attacked.

Air Offensive to Increase

In all, the Air Ministry said the R. A. F. lost nine fighters, and knocked down three enemy fighters.

(The Germans claimed a bag of 16 R. A. F. planes during Tuesday's fighting. They did not mention their own losses.)

It was the raid on Essen, however, that overshadowed all else. Giving Commons a preliminary report today on this tremendous attack, Prime Minister Churchill declared that many fires were left, at a total cost of only 35 British bombers, and went on to predict what lies ahead for the Germans.

The Cologne and Essen raids, he said, "mark the introduction of a new phase in the British air offen-

Luther Patrick Beaten in Runoff For House Seat

Birmingham, Ala., June 2 (AP).—Representative Luther Patrick (Democrat), of Alabama, conceded defeat in his bid for reelection to Congress tonight as Businessman John Newsome moved ahead of the incumbent in unofficial returns from the Democratic runoff in the Ninth Alabama District.

Patrick congratulated his opponent.

Returns from 218 of the district's 248 boxes, all unofficial, in the Democratic primary, gave Newsome 15,169 votes, Patrick 12,676.

Patrick has served six years in Congress.

Fort Knox, Ky., June 2.—They have made a science here of building something out of nothing and making it work. The Armored Force Replacement Center and School must take what equipment they can get; it is still so scarce that all of it must go to the divisions formed and forming in the field.

So at Fort Knox they take whatever the Army says can't be used again and they use it. You'll see a motorcycle, for instance, which has been run over by a medium tank and which looks just about as you'd expect it would. It has been condemned as not worth repairing and the school has gratefully accepted the wreckage.

ANDREWS

In the school's motorcycle shops, student mechanics are given excellent training beating it back into shape, making new parts to replace those hopelessly broken, and reassembling the motorcycle again. Every part of the shops gets a whack at it, including the welding and blacksmith branches.

When the wrecked motorcycle has been given a new lease on life it is turned over to the section of the school where riders are trained. There it is ridden, day in and day out, on circular tracks, across rough and rutted fields, through dust and mud on road marches just as if it had never seen a medium tank.

That is one way the school and center got the equipment they needed to train new men for the fast-growing armored force. Some of the rest they made for themselves from the bottom up.

It is much cheaper for instance, and quicker, to train gunners on indoor ranges than to take them out and bring them in from

All Cargoes to Be Controlled

WPB Will Restrict Imports Of Coffee, Bananas and Beef

The War Production Board last night announced it would take control on July 2 over all imports into the United States, compelling foreign vessels to give preference to war-essential cargoes rather than shipments transported primarily for profit.

Among civilian commodities classed as least essential imports, which would be affected by the action, were coffee, cocoa, bananas and beef.

WPB spokesmen said the action, taken in a complete revision of previous import control orders, would establish a priority system on shipping space for imports through controls over purchases in this country.

Commodities for import are listed in three groups, with strategic materials first, essential civilian commodities second, and non-essentials third. No one may import items on any of the three lists without first obtaining specific permission from the WPB. The board will be guided in granting permission by the relative importance of the goods involved.

Narrow Escape

How D. C. Man Got Back From Lae

By Tom Yarbrough
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Advanced Allied Base, Australia, June. 1 (Delayed).—Lieut. John C. O'Donnell, 22-year-old bomber pilot, 2520 Fourteenth Street Northwest, Washington, D. C., former University of Maryland student, was suspicious of his left engine on a recent mission over Lae, New Guinea, but it has his O. K. now.

O'DONNELL

Japanese Zero fighters jumped O'Donnell's twin-engined plane and its flying mates over the target, starting a running air battle which lasted 35 minutes.

The right engine was machine-gunned and cannon-shelled into silence, but the suspected left one kept the bomber in the air while its two gunners shot down four Zeros.

Then it pulled the plane home safely despite hits in the tail and other places. Never before has a bomber of this type been known to fly so long on one engine.

O'Donnell said Tail Gunner Pvt. Ivan W. Henderson of South Bend, Wash., bagged three of the enemy fighters, and Sergt. Harry Berg of Cedarville, N. J., downed the other. Lieut. Louis McCord, 24, of Montgomery, Ala., was copilot.

Bombardier Lieut. R. L. Callaway, 26, of Seguin, Tex., said:

"When Henderson reported he had shot down three Zeroes we asked him on the phone what it was like. He shouted: 'Just like shooting clay pigeons.'"

The navigator, Lieut. Cecil E. Riddle, 24, of Ashland, Ky., reported an exciting moment for himself and the radioman, Corpl. A. J. Capello of Rochester, N. Y.

"A bullet came through the fuselage," he said, "and hissed around like a Fourth of July pinwheel. It spent itself without touching either of us."

Still a long way from base and having a difficult time coaxing one engine to do the work of two, O'Donnell radioed he probably would have to make a forced landing. Too short on power to climb over mountains, he edged along the coast in order to crash-land on the beach if necessary.

Back on the home runway, officers had about exhausted their hope and scanned the sky just once more, then spored O'Donnell's plane as missing. But in a few minutes he roared in and sat her down. The left tire was flat; it had been punctured by a bullet.

The plane spun off the runway and back on again, and crunched to a stop with all hands safe.

Parents Here 'Thrilled Beyond Measure'

Lieutenant O'Donnell, a native of Oakland, Md., entered the Army from the University of Maryland July 30, 1940. He received his training at Langley Field and sailed for Honolulu, Hawaii, last January, after which he was sent to Australia.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. O'Donnell, who have been living here for five years. Mrs. O'Donnell said she received a cablegram from her son last April 26 from somewhere in Australia.

"We were thrilled beyond measure to hear about our son," Mrs. O'Donnell told The Post last night. "We know all his friends at Maryland and at Antioch College where he also went to school will be proud to know that he's doing such a fine job."

Mrs. O'Donnell is a magazine writer using the name of Frances Frisbie O'Donnell. Her husband is employed by the Postoffice Department.

Asked whether President Roosevelt would make the final decision, Nelson replied:

All Government officials interested in the transportation problem attended today's WPB meeting, including Oil Coordinator Ickes and Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures.

'Kharkov Tactics' Used Against Nazis On Kalinin Front

By the Associated Press

Moscow, June 2.—The Russian armies, applying "Kharkov tactics" to the deep northwestern areas, attacked sharply today in several sectors with the object of upsetting German offensive plans from this direction.

Vigorous although localized sections in two sectors of the Kalinin front, which runs west from Kalinin to the Valdai Hills in the direction of the German garrisons of Rzhev and Veliki Luki, were reported to have resulted in at least 1850 German dead and 1500 wounded.

The midnight Soviet communique told of "battles of local importance" in some sectors of the front but said on the whole there were no significant changes in positions.

On what is known here as the "Northwstern Front," extending from the Valdai Hills north around Lake Ilmen to the Leningrad Front, the Russians were said to have maintained pressure which forestalled any "adventurous plans" of the Germans.

South Comparatively Quiet

With the Russians thus improving their positions and drawing the enemy into costly counteraction in these regions, the southern sectors of Kerch, Kharkov and Izyum-Barvenkova were comparatively quiet. The Germans there were pictured as spent by heavy losses, and the Russians as holding firmly to fortified lines.

(A Stockholm dispatch, not confirmed elsewhere, said the Germans, in a new stab intended to regain lost ground, had reoccupied Tamilovska, a town 8 miles northeast of Kharkov.)

Dispatches to the army newspaper Red Star, describing the action on the Kalinin front, said one Russian unit had fought its way into an inhabited point and now was engaged in battles in the streets and in the fortified suburbs. The sudden assault was reported to have taken a factory which was part of the German fire system.

Six German counterattacks failed to dislodge the Russians, the dispatch said, and the Nazis lost more than 1000 dead in two days.

In another Kalinin front sector the Germans used two infantry regiments, 12 tanks, artillery and mortars on a narrow terrain in an attempt to take a forest which would have provided cover for future major operations.

Chinese Recapture 5 Chekiang Towns

Chinese troops resisted stubbornly and inflicted heavy casualties everywhere, but scored their chief successes in the Chekiang theater as they closed in on the elongated flanks of the Japanese and recaptured five towns.

The Chinese communique said these were Showchang, 25 miles northwest of Kinhwa, the provincial capital which they have lost. Yungkang, 35 miles southeast of Kinhwa, and Paishapu and Kenglouchen, points south of Showchang. A spokesman listed Shakichen, north of Showchang, also as having been retaken.

The regulars and home militia which joined in these attacks were said to have put battered Japanese remnants to flight and to have captured large quantities of supplies.

But the Japanese were admitted to be within 10 miles of Chuhsien, 45 miles west of Kinhwa and apparently one of the main Japanese objectives. Ever since Tokyo was bombed the Japanese have suspected this place of being used as an air base. They bombed it repeatedly before starting their overland drive from Hangchow, 150 miles to the northeast.

One Japanese column was said to have been repulsed on the approaches to Chuhsien and 500 of its men killed and wounded.

Ominously concentrated at Nanchang were perhaps 40,000 Japanese. One column of 6000 moving southward toward a junction in Chekiang was met by fierce resistance at the Fu River, where 200 were drowned.

Along the Burma Road on the southwestern front, there also was activity, with the Chinese claiming the killing of 200 Japanese, including a battalion commander, west of the Salween River.

Many of the men were exhausted and could not partake heavily of a staple diet of biscuits and pemmican. Raisins, prunes and peanuts were added to the "menu," as the boats were well stocked. Late on the seventh day two planes spotted Captain Shaw's boat and at dawn other planes appeared, one of which dropped supplies.

"I'm glad he was not dropping bombs, because he was an expert," Shaw said. "The first package was 10 yards from the bow and the second almost in the same spot."

Coastal naval vessels picked up all three boats on the eighth day.

the alarms sounded at 10:20 o'clock.

White House gates were barricaded and troops rushed to their posts at the Executive Mansion to give a realistic demonstration of what would happen should the Capital city have an actual bombing. The staff "evacuated" to designated areas.

Ninety-eight of the District's 99 office buildings joined in the drill, approximately 55,000 persons going to shelter halls for 15 minutes. Among the 55,000, according to estimates of Deputy Warden Rufus Lusk and his assistants, were about 5000 "people who came in off the streets."

Elevators stopped in the office buildings and evacuations were carried out on foot.

"It wasn't perfect," Lusk said. "We need another practice to get people away from the doors and windows. But it was surprisingly good."

Pedestrians caught in the vicinity of lower Constitution Avenue, where nearly all buildings are filled with emergency war workers, found themselves left out in the streets.

Enemy Agents Unwelcome

This was not due to a lack of neighborliness, but to the fact these buildings cannot run the risk of receiving an "enemy agent" among their refugees.

Emergency buildings without proper shelter areas went through the evacuation motions by utilizing halls and keeping workers away from windows.

John J. Hasley, deputy warden in charge of commercial and industrial estabishments, toured the F Street district with Defense Coordinator John Russell Young and Director Lemuel Bolles. visiting a store, a bank, a theater and a Government building.

Banks did a particularly good job clearing away money and securities and getting their customers to shelters. Almost a dozen Army officers were caught among the customers at Riggs National Bank, where a complete evacuation was made in seven minutes.

Stores had swarms of pedestrians run in off the streets and some did not get them all cleared to shelters before the all-clear sounded.

On Capitol Hill a "smooth performance" was reported by Warden Horace Rouzer. The Senate District Committee inadvertently found itself a lone exception. The members were waiting around for the official reporter when they heard the siren. They started to shelters, only to learn it was the all-clear signal—and that their "lost" reporter was the only one of their group who had heard the warning sound.

Reports from 56 civilian defense areas of the city showed that 16,500 wardens were on duty, that the sirens could be heard, and that the only accidents were minor cuts and falls suffered by children playing when the horns went off.

Director Van Duzer reported that traffic began to move immediately on the all-clear and that no jams resulted. He attributed this to the fact all ligns were left on—except a few on Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues, which had switches pulled by wardens who forgot the daylight drill was not a blackout.

School children found the drill just another practice. Some of them were on the playgrounds for morning recess, but soon lined up in an orderly fashion and marched to their designated places.

Hospitals Are Unexcited

B. B. Sandidge, superintendent of Emergency Hospital, reported to Deputy Hasley that no excitement was noted in the city's hospitals.

Many churches had impromptu visits from pedestrians caught in their areas. The basement of Covenant-First Church in the 1700 block of N Street Northwest was a busy place, its activities being typical of those in other churches. The emergency feed unit simulated preparation of a meal for refugees.

No accident was reported for the downtown area, and the only "incident" was the fainting of one woman in a department store. She received prompt attention in the first-aid room.

manded by the House, will be submitted to conferees at their next meeting.

To prevent a pay showdown on the Senate floor in advance of conference recommendations, efforts were being made to persuade Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, not to proceed with his motion to discharge the conferees and force the question to a direct Senate vote tomorrow.

All Enlisted Men Included

The House family allotments bill proposes aid to dependents of soldiers from line sergeants down to buck privates, with similar provision for corresponding ranks in the other armed branches.

Separate treatment is provided for Class A dependents, restricted to wives and children of soldiers and sailors, and Class B dependents, covering dependent parents and brothers and sisters.

A dependent wife would receive $40 a month, of which $20 would come from her husband's pay and $20 from the Government. An additional $10 would be paid by the Government for each dependent child. Class A pay deductions would be compulsory, but it would be optional with the soldier whether he contributed to the support of Class B dependents. If he elected to do so, his contribution would be $20 and the Government would put up an additional $15 for one dependent parent, $25 for two dependent parents, and $5 for each disabled and dependent brother and sister.

Larger Benefits in Senate Bill

The Senate bill sponsored by Senator Johnson (Democrat), Colorado, provides larger allowances. Under the Senate bill, the dependent wife would receive $50, of which $22 would be deducted from her soldier-husband's pay, and $28 paid by the Government. An additional $12 would be paid by the Government for the first child, and $10 more for each additional dependent child.

In asking special provision for the families of soldiers, the House Military Affairs Committee noted the possibility of 3-A inductions.

"While the War Department has repeatedly stated that it does not contemplate employing the services, as enlisted men, of any more persons with dependents than the present emergency actually requires," the House group reported, "your committee believes that the time has now come when many men with dependents must of necessity assume the responsibility of defending their country."

Duchess of Windsor Motors to Baltimore

Baltimore, June 2 (AP).—The Duchess of Windsor, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, arrived here late today by motor from Washington to spend several days with her uncle, Henry M. Warfield, and Mrs. Warfield at their Timonium home.

The Baltimore-born duchess paused here for a general physical checkup before continuing to Timonium.

sive against Germany, and they will increase markedly in scale when we are joined, as we soon shall be, by the air force of the United States.

"As the year advances all German cities, harbors and centers of war production will be subjected to an ordeal the like of which never has been experienced by any country in continuity, severity or magnitude."

The communique of the air ministry identified the industrial Ruhr generally, "including Essen," as the theater of the assault and while the Germans did not mention Essen they did report Duisberg and Oberhausen as among those raided.

With Essen itself, these cities form a great production triangle in the Ruhr.

While the main force of the British attack was being centered in the Essen area, other squadrons smashed at the enemy's airdromes over great areas of Germany, France and the Low Countries to pin down his fighter plane defense.

British Losses Light

All was conducted on a pattern of the closest cooperation and the British losses of 35 planes were light against the vast scope of the operation. (The German accounts put British losses at 59 planes yesterday and through last night.)

The bombers which raided Essen shot down a ME-109, a Focke-Wulf 190 and sent a ME-110 down with its port engine in flames when German night fighters tried to bar the way to the Ruhr.

The Nazi high command, describing R. A. F. assaults as "terror attacks directed against the civilian population," announced that its own bombers overnight had attacked the historic cities of Canterbury and Ipswich.

Haze Over Target

Air ministry accounts of the Essen raid said that low clouds and ground haze forced the pilots to make a careful search for the targets.

Nevertheless, the pilot of a Lancaster four-motored bomber who spent 37 minutes over his objective said "the streets marked dark lines" in the flaming center of Essen. With typical British understatement he added: "Widespread damage had been done."

Discussing future raids, London sources said the main weight of the summer attack probably would be directed at western Germany, but that as the nights lengthen the edge of the devastated area will creep eastward to include German cities and towns now relatively undamaged.

An air raid alarm sounded in London early Wednesday but the all-clear followed shortly.

A single German raider approached the city before veering away.

Flames of Essen Visible 135 Miles Away, Pilot Says

London, June 2 (INS).—The pilot of a four-engined Lancaster bomber which had pounded both Cologne and Essen said today on his return from the Essen raid:

"There was not one big blaze like the fire at Cologne in the Essen industrial region, but there were many huge flame centers when I left. There is no doubt that terrific damage was done. En route back home we saw from the coast (about 135 miles distant) the fires of Essen reflected in layers of low-lying clouds."

The German radio was quoted by Reuters News Agency as admitting that 109 were killed and 285 injured in the raid on the Essen area.

The official German radio had admitted 366 were killed and 419 wounded in the Cologne raid. Authoritative British quarters considered these figures far below the real casualties suffered in the two German cities.

hole of Bir Hacheim at the southern extremity of the main British positions, Auchinleck said in a communique.

"A large number of his tanks and many motor transport vehicles, however, remain on the wrong side of this barrier. These are still being ceaselessly harried and destroyed by our troops vigorously aided by our airforce."

The British commander wired a lengthy review of the battle—the wildest and fiercest ever fought in Africa—to Prime Minister Churchill, who read it to the House of Commons.

The communique disclosed for the first time that the Germans on the opening night of their offensive May 26 attempted to land a seaborne cooperating force north of Acroma, some 15 miles from Tobruk, but the Royal Navy drove off the flotilla.

Auchinleck's control over the battlefield, the capture of two of Rommel's largest repair units, and the splendid performance of new British heavy antitank guns and the 28-ton United States tanks all were factors of great cheer to the Britons.

Control of the battlefield enabled the Eighth Army to salvage a large proportion of the damaged vehicles, using perhaps the United States service troops, who are in Egypt for just such a purpose.

Increased dust storms restricted the R. A. F., but they continued to harass Rommel's land movements and shot two of his planes down. The R. A. F. lost four.

Main German Plan

General Auchinleck's communique gave this as the main German plan:

"First, to capture our defended locality at Bir Hacheim held by our gallant Allies, the Free French;

"Secondly, to pass around by the south of Bir Hacheim;

"Thirdly, to attack in strength our position running south from the coast at Ain El Gazala to Capuzzo Road."

British scouting planes detected indications of the German aims and opened an aerial offensive five days before the attack was launched by Rommel.

During the night of May 26 the five Axis divisions skirted Bir Hacheim and struck rapidly toward Acroma, where British armored forces drove them off. It was then that the coordinated sea attack was defeated by the navy.

British ground forces and the R. A. F. swung into immediate action. The Free French at Bir Hacheim gallantly beat off attacks by superior Italian forces.

Simultaneous attacks against the main British position near the coast in the north "were easily stopped" and heavy losses were inflicted.

Continuous fighting raged until May 30.

No Rest for Nazis

"The battle swayed backward and forward over a wide area from Acroma in the north to Bir Hacheim, 40 miles to the south; from El Adem outside Tobruk to our mine fields 30 miles to the west," the communique said.

"Our troops gave the enemy no rest and finding himself running short of supplies and water he had to make gaps in our mine fields, one along a general line on the Capuzzo Road and the other 10 miles to the south."

War Sidelights

Flier Gives Oxygen Mask, Saves Lives

Somewhere in Australia, June 2 (AP).—Pvt. William E. Brown, 23, of Blackfoot, Idaho, was commended today by his superior officer for two striking instances of heroism.

Brown's flight captain, Capt. E. W. (Jack) Bleasdale, said the soldier, a radioman, on two consecutive high altitude missions above 20,000 feet discarded his oxygen mask at great risk to help his comrades. Bleasdale said:

"On our first mission we were using oxygen when attacked by Japanese Zeros whose machine-gun fire tore through the tail of the plane and wounded our two side gunners.

"Brown, knowing that without oxygen they couldn't remain conscious more than five seconds, took off his own mask, lifted and dragged them 20 feet to the oxygen supply and provided them with oxygen. They were unable to operate the oxygen controls themselves and owe their lives to Brown.

"Two days later on a mission above 20,000 feet when Private Lowry, our new side gunner, collapsed, Brown informed me over the radiophone. I warned him about the danger of taking off his mask. But he went straight to the gunner, traded masks and carried him to the radio compartment.

"Brown administered artificial respiration to Lowry for two hours, then to other members of the crew for another two hours until we landed."

Lowery, however, failed to survive. Brown was in the hospital for two weeks.

Jap Building Annoys

New York, June 2 (AP).—If the city government doesn't hurry up and tear down the Japanese pavilion in Flushing Meadow Park, site of the world's fair, nearby residents threaten to do it themselves.

Declaring that the Jap building stared back at them unpleasantly, members of the Flushing Ridge Civic Association today sent Park Commissioner Robert Moses a letter which was virtually an ultimatum.

Richard E. Treharne, president of the association, said that a meeting of the group would be held on June 12.

"If the Jap house isn't down by then, we'll organize a wrecking crew and tear it down," he said.

Timoshenko Wounded

London, (Wednesday), June 3 (INS).—Russia's Marshal Semeon Timoshenko was slightly wounded in the bloody Kharkov battle last week, the Daily Herald said today in a Stockholm dispatch.

The Red commander was said to have been injured while he was walking to his car parked on a temporary airdrome, when German dive bombers swooped low to strafe him and his party. Most of those with Timoshenko were reported severely wounded.

Russians Give Blood

New York, June 2 (AP).—Two Russian sailors gave blood today to the Brooklyn Red Cross as "a simple gift, in token of thanks for America's generous relief to our country."

Nikolai Zaporozhetsev, 31, a first class seaman in the Soviet merchant marine, whose home town of Taganrog is now held by the German army, and Ivan Sokoloff, 35, seaman in the Red navy whose home city of Bezhetzk has been the scene of action on the Moscow front, donated a pint of blood each.

The blood will be processed and placed in an Army or Navy blood bank.

Big Convoy Reaches Russia After 5 Days Battling Subs, Planes

By the Associated Press

London, June 2.—Battered for five days and nights in eerie unending light of the Arctic's midnight sun by U-boats and at least 100 German planes, a big U. S.-British supply convoy was disclosed today to have reached a Russian port with an indicated loss of but half a dozen ships.

The result was announced by the admiralty in a communique which gave a graphic picture of the perils of the Arctic convoy route to Murmansk and Archangel, where there never, at this time of year, is any protecting darkness and where the breaking of the Arctic ice restricts maneuverability of ships to a minimum.

Attacks Over Many Days

German claims to the sinking of 17 or 18 ships were termed "an exaggeration of over 175 per cent."

German dive bombers, torpedo planes and level-flying bombers assaulted the convoy almost without pause from the evening of May 25 until May 30. Three of the attacking planes were reported shot down for sure, two others probably destroyed and two others damaged.

One Heinkel, the Admiralty disclosed, was destroyed by a Hurricane fighter catapulted from a specially fitted merchantman.

In such cases, it was explained, the catapulted plane must land in the sea when its flying endurance is exhausted, and the pilots must take their chances of being picked up.

Pilot Picked Up

This time, the British flier, Pilot Officer Alastair Hay, was picked up wounded by a British warship.

The Admiralty paid unusual tribute to "the gallant defense and magnificent handling of the heavily laden ships in the convoy" and to the skillful work of the Navy. It added: "Officers and crews of both the convoy and the escorts have the satisfaction of knowing that they have delivered large and important reinforcements to Russia's equipment in her present struggle."

U. S. and China Sign Agreement On Lend-Lease

The United States and China signed a lend-lease agreement yesterday providing for continued reciprocal aid in the war against the Axis and laying down the broad principals of a final settlement of lend-lease accounts.

The agreement, which Foreign Minister T. V. Soong signed for China and Secretary of State Hull for the United States, is the same in all substantial respects as the lend-lease agreement concluded with Great Britain last February.

Soviet Russia's approval of the lend-lease proposal handed to Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff last week has not yet been received. The proposed Russian agreement also is substantially the same as the agreement concluded with Britain.

The pact with China does not attempt at this stage to define the precise terms of settlement. Article VII provides that the ultimate settlement "shall be such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world wide economic relations."

Roosevelt And Hull Hail Mexico as Ally

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday saluted Mexico's declaration of war against the Axis as further demonstration of solidarity of the America's and a new warning of eventual doom for Germany, Japan and Italy.

Mexico's formal declaration of war, retroactive to May 22, completes the solid North American bloc. Now exclusively at war against Germany, Japan and Italy, Canada, Mexico, Costa Rica, Cuba, Guatemala, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Honduras, Panama, El Salvador and Nicaragua now are comrades at arms in active war with the foes of the United States.

Ten Latin American countries are at war with the Axis. Of the 20 Latin Republics, all but Chile and Argentina now have severed relation with the aggressors, and Chile reportedly is tending daily closer to the joint stand of the nations of the New World.

In a telegram to President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico, Mr. Roosevelt welcomed Mexico "to that community of nations united in fighting for the preservation of freedom and democracy."

"Mexico, too, became the victim of unprovoked attack and Mexico has, in characteristically resolute and virile fashion, answered this challenge to its dignity and liberty," Mr. Roosevelt said. "Once again the Axis tyrants have woefully erred in their appraisal of the temper of a free nation."

Secretary Hull said in a statement that Mexico's entry into the war "is a further evidence that the free nations of the world will never submit to the heel of Axis aggression."

"The people of Mexico must indeed have a deep sense of pride in the fact that they have again demonstrated that the free peoples of the world are determined to make whatever sacrifice may be necessary to maintain the sacred principles upon which their independence was founded," said Hull.

"The United States will never forget the friendly policies adopted by Mexico as a participant in the defense of the Western Hemisphere. Still less will the United States forget the moral and material support resulting from Mexico's declaration of war."

CAA to Train 20,000 Reserves

The Civil Aeronautics Administration concluded arrangements with the Navy yesterday by which 20,000 members of the Naval Reserve will receive flight instruction at the CAA's 600 pilot training centers within the next year. The plan depends upon appropriation of funds.

The reservists to be trained will include both those able to take full time courses and college students taking instruction after classes. The reservists who complete the courses will be given preference in filling Navy quotas for aviation duty.

President Asks War on Three Balkan Nations

By Michael Chinigo
International News Service Staff Writer

President Roosevelt, in a historic move affecting the future of 34 million Balkan people, yesterday asked Congress to declare war on Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

The President's request was contained in a brief, two-paragraph message delivered and read to the House of Representatives at noon.

Congressional leaders declared that the House would pass the war declarations today, but that formalities would not be completed until tomorrow, when the Senate reconvenes after a three-day recess.

President Roosevelt's decision has been long awaited. It was motivated not by the fact that these three vassal states have already declared war on America, but rather because their puppet governments, at Hitler's bidding, have actively participated and are planning to participate in the drives against Russia.

In his message, the Chief Executive stated:

"The governments of Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania have declared war against the United States. I realize that the three governments took this action not upon their own initiative or in response to the wishes of their own peoples but as instruments of Hitler. These three governments are now engaged in military activities directed against the United Nations, and are planning an extension of these activities.

"Therefore, I recommend that the Congress recognize a state of war between the United States and Bulgaria, between the United States and Hungary, and between the United States and Rumania."

Secretary of State Hull justified America's action in a stirring denunciation of the three enemy governments which he branded as the "puppets and tools" of Adolf Hitler.

Both he and Undersecretary of State Welles have, in fact, repeatedly warned the Axis satellites that their continued participation in Hitler's mad dream of domination would bring forth a declaration of war by the United States.

As recently as April 13, Welles warned that President Roosevelt would ask for a declaration of war if it were definitely established that the three Balkan powers were effectively assisting the Axis.

Hull told his press conference yesterday that advices reaching the American Government no longer left any doubt as to the intentions of these governments.

Navy to Get 100 More Fighting Ships This Year

By the Associated Press

The Navy informed Congress yesterday that approximately 100 more fighting ships would be put into commission this year, ready to take battle stations on the far flung seafronts and to guard the vital shipping lanes between this Nation and its troops and allies.

The progress report on construction of naval vessels was furnished, in executive session, by Rear Admiral A. H. Van Keuren, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ships, to the House Naval Committee, and was made public by Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia, with the admiral's permission.

Committee "Satisfied"

Vinson described the committee as "well satisfied" with the report. Simultaneously, he announced committee approval of a $1,100,000,000 measure authorizing additional construction of 500,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, such as tenders and supply ships.

He served notice, too, that he would introduce today another big measure for a major increase in the number of aircraft carriers, thus carrying out, he said, the Navy's plan to "build and build" that type of ship and obtain an "overwhelming" aerial punch.

The Georgian emphasized that the approximately 100 ships to be commissioned during the next seven months did not include those which had been put through their trial runs and accepted by the Navy through May 31.

The new ships will provide a major increase in this Nation's sea strength. In the last official disclosure of its strength on October 27 of last year, the Navy reported 346 fighting ships in service with 347 building.

All Types Included

That type would include battleships, cruisers, carriers, destroyers and submarines. Since then, it has reported the loss of 38 naval vessels, of which 20 were of the auxiliary type and the other 18 fighting ships.

However, the reported launchings in the last seven months have made it obvious that construction of new ships have more than offset the naval losses.

The Navy report came only three weeks after Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, War Shipping Administrator, told Congress that he expected construction of 800 merhant vessels this year.

Nassau Laborers Riot, Smash Stores, Force Duke's Return

By the Associated Press

Nassau, Bahamas, June 2.—Unskilled laborers on a large American project staged a demonstration in Nassau yesterday, smashing show windows and looting fashionable stores, and two of the rioters were killed and others wounded before police and troops restored partial order.

While the Duke of Windsor interrupted a business trip in Washington to fly back, conditions remained unsettled. A curfew from 8 p. m. to 6 a. m. was established.

The demonstrations were protesting against wages of 4 shillings (about 80 cents) a day for unskilled labor on the project.

Laborers marched into fashionable Bay Street, smashed windows and looted stores of liquors, expensive English fabrics and rare perfumes.

British garrison troops were summoned and by Monday afternoon order was partly restored in the downtown streets, but rioting continued in the suburbs.

In the outskirts, a police station, a fire engine and ambulance were burned.

There were several casualties among police and troops.

Before the riot, the government had informed protesting labor leaders that the wage for unskilled labor had been fixed by agreement of British and United States governments.

House Group Approves Tax On Alimony

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday tentatively voted to require divorced wives to pay income taxes on their alimony payments, now generally tax free.

The committee accepted a Treasury recommendation that husbands paying alimony be permitted to deduct the payments in computing their tax. The alimony instead would be taxed in the hands of the divorced wife, which the Treasury said now "possess a privileged status under our tax laws."

Change Beaten Last Year

The Senate approved a similar change in the tax laws last year, but it was dropped from the final draft of the law.

The committee tentatively approved more than a dozen other administrative changes in the tax laws, but withheld formal announcement of its action until today. Nearly 100 administrative changes were recommended by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and the committee today will continue its scrutiny of these.

Among the changes approved yesterday was a recommendation that legitimate investment expenses be allowed as tax deductions, much as taxpayers are now allowed to deduct expenses incurred in connection with a trade or business.

Liberalization Voted

The committee, it was learned, also voted to liberalize tax relief for bad debts. Amounts received in payment of the debt would be excluded from income in cases where a taxpayer received no tax benefit from a bad debt deduction in the prior year.

No action was taken yesterday on recommendations for deduction of large medical bills, and allowances for children over 18 who are in school.

The committee was expected to pass several days in consideration of the many administrative items before returning again to the controversial question of excise taxes recommended by the Treasury. The excise section will launch sales tax advocates on an independent effort to make up the two billion dollar revenue shortage in the measure by taxes on all but a few vital necessities.

Protest Against 20 Negroes Halts Dodge Plant Job

Detroit, June 2 (AP).—The Chrysler Corporation today closed its Dodge truck plant which employs 9000 men after, the management reported, some 700 employes demonstrated inside the factory protesting the transfer of 20 Negroes into the plant.

A company spokesman said the Negroes were transferred from the main Dodge plant under the Chrysler agreement with the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) and at the request of International Union officials.

When the Negroes entered the plant, the management reported, 350 workers left their machines and threatened to throw them out of the factory. Fighting was averted, it was said, but about 700 employes then staged a protest in front of the plant manager's office.

Morris Field, assistant director of the Chrysler department of the International U. A. W.-C. I. O., said "the local will have to accept the Negroes. The U. A. W. and C. I. O. policy calls for equal treatment of Negroes, and so does the American Constitution. The union will abide by that policy."

phones will be made available to wardens on a restricted basis in close proximity to the location of the posts. The installation of additional telephones solely for the use of wardens posts is not considered essential except where there are no established telephone installations available within one minute's walk.

FLASHLIGHTS

A type of flashlight for use in blackouts has not as yet been officially approved. The District Government is not purchasing flashlights until such a model is approved. Flashlights, however, are almost as common as belt buckles and with some very inexpensive material such as colored cellophane, paint, paper, etc., plus a little initiative, any ordinary flashlight can be altered to suit the needs of the warden.

FIRST AID KITS

Not available in quantity at the moment and we have been advised that due to shortages in this type of material for use of the armed forces, too much emphasis should not be placed upon procuring the standard needs at the moment.

GAS ALARM DEVICES

Can be improvised locally by using large tin cans, metal buckets, bells; or other improvisations make entirely satisfactory gas alarm devices.

GAS DETECTION DEVICES

According to Chief Murphy, the best gas detection device is the human nose.

LOG BOOK OR DIARY

Ordinary copy book is suitable. These can be purchased at 5 or 10 cents at many stores.

PRESCRIBED REPORT FORMS

Have been mimeographed and issued.

INSTRUCTIONS, PAMPHLETS

Have been issued to the chief air raid warden in bulk in sufficient quantity to cover the needs of the service.

TYPEWRITERS

Must be procured locally by borrowing, as the supply of typewriters is limited and frozen and any large purchase must go through priorities.

BATTERY-OPERATED RADIO

Any standard type of portable radio is suitable. These are in common use and it should not be difficult to locate one for use of the warden post.

TOILET FACILITIES

Must be supplied locally.

ROPE OR CLOTHESLINE, STANDS AND SIGNS

Rope has been purchased by the District of Columbia and issued by the chief air raid warden to zone wardens where it is availabe on call as needed. Danger signs have not been fully supplied, but pending a complete issue, can be improvised by the use of cardboard, sheet metal or any other material that will take paint.

On page 6 of the Warden's Handbook, personal equipment is listed as follows:

ARM BAND OR SUITABLE UNIFORM

The standard arm band for wardens are of two sorts: the temporary band marked "CD" is authorized for issue to wardens, etc., who have not completed the prescribed training courses. The regular arm band for the warden or other services may only be issued to those members who have completed the prescribed courses of training and have been certified as meeting the Federal standards and regulations. The warden service has been supplied with temporary arm bands through the chief air raid warden.

In addition, there have been purchased from the District funds 7800 arm bands, and these have also been placed at the disposal of the chief air raid warden. At an early date, 53,000 of standard arm bands will be available to the District of Columbia from Federal funds on a loan basis. It is considered that this quantity is adequate for the personnel that has completed the training and is eligible for them. Ultimately, additional arm bands will be purchased from District funds and the Commissioners have given an assurance that funds for the purchase will be available. No uniforms has been prescribed or authorized for the use of wardens in the District of Columbia.

STEEL HELMETS

Air Raid Warden Service has been issued 20,000 steel helmets purchased from District funds. Additional helmets will be received from the Federal Government at an early date on a loan basis.

GAS MASKS

Are not available for issue. Supply is completely controlled by the Federal Government and will only be issued when, as, and if, directed by the Federal authorities.

GAS-PROTECTIVE CLOTHING

WARDEN'S WHISTLES

The District of Columbia purchased a number of whistles which were issued in bulk to the chief air raid warden.

HEAVY WORK GLOVES

Work gloves are in more or less common use and stocked in many stores. They are not expensive and at the moment no arrangements have been made for the purchase or issue of these gloves at public expense.

The equipment necessary in each sector to be used by fire watchers in case of a raid follows:

PACK-TYPE PUMP containing approximately 7½ gallons of water and contained pump similar to stirrup type. This pump is for use in combating fire caused by an incendiary bomb and is easily carried.

EXTRA BUCKETS for carrying water for pump. Since the water supply may be outside the building where bomb is being tackled it may become necessary to send for more water. A reserve supply should be stored in the buckets at all times.

BUCKET FOR SAND. If the fire watcher is not issued a pack-type water pump he will combat incendiaries by the sand method.

LONG-HANDLED SHOVEL OR SCOOP. This shovel or scoop is for covering the incendiary with sand or dirt, for lifting the sand-covered incendiary into sand bucket, and for carrying bucket containing incendiary outside the building.

HAND AXE OR HATCHET. The hand ax or hatchet is for use in event an incendiary crashes through roof and attic flooring into the space between floor and ceiling, or through the side wall of frame house, lodging between outer and inner walls. It may become necessary for the fire watcher to chop away portions of the floor or wall to reach the bomb.

FLASHLIGHT. The fire watcher may need to use light in searching through attics, side walls or roof spaces of houses in which an incendiary has fallen.

Much of this material is available in each community. Some of it may have to be purchased. Again the defense committee in each area must pass on these questions.

Colonel Bolles sounded a note of encouragement to the thousands of men and women who have contributed their services to civilian defense.

"It is inspiring to know that, even in the period of uncertainty through which we have passed, this community has made such splendid progress," he said. "No one can tell me Washington has no civic consciousness. This city's record on blackouts and other tests has been superb. The spirit in each area in preparing for the worst when the emergency comes is magnificent. My only caution is to avoid unnecesary expense, for every cent will be needed later. In the meantime, carry on."

House Acclaims Quezon Speech

By the warmth of its welcome for a former colleague, the House yesterday proclaimed for Manuel Quezon, now president of the Philippines, that it stands ready to back the pledge of President Roosevelt one day to redeem freedom for his valiant countrymen.

The indomitable little man who cheated the Japanese in the bombing of Manila and Corregidor, returned to the chamber where he once sat as Philippine commissioner and declared in a speech from the Speaker's rostrum:

"I hope the pledge of President Roosevelt—Their freedom will be redeemed'—will be considered by all of you and will, in time, be supported by the Congress of the United States."

The House left no doubt that it accepted the pledge with a roar of applause for Quezon's words and with the ovation it accorded his closing sentence: "Neither death, nor ruin, nor destruction shall dampen our spirit nor lessen our faith in America."

Murray Plan Rejected 'With Contempt'

Lewis Policy Group Again Hits C I O Chief

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

John L. Lewis' hand-picked United Mine Workers policy committee yesterday took pains to stoke the flames of its burning feud with the C. I. O. by denouncing the latter's president, Philip Murray, and by recommending a move to strip authority from a mine workers district president who is a Murray partisan.

The policy committee, which last week ousted Murray as international vice president of the U. M. W., yesterday accused Murray and C. I. O. officers of sabotaging the organizational activities of District 50 of the U. M. W.

Subsequently, it approved a special committee report recommending a split in District 17, now headed by Van A. Bittner, who has been on Murray's side in the long-brewing conflict between Lewis and the C. I. O. president.

Rejected "With Contempt"

The excoriation of Murray was in a resolution adopted by the policy committee dealing with the points of conflict between the U. M. W. and the C. I. O.

The resolution declared that the C. I. O. owed the miners $1,665,000 and refused to credit per capita taxes of the U. M. W. against the debt. It rejected "with contempt" a suggestion of Murray made last week that if the money was indeed a debt, the C. I. O. would levy assessments on its membership to pay it back.

Next, the resolution insisted that Murray allow peace negotiations with the A. F. of L. to continue under the direction of Lewis, as chairman of a standing peace committee, and declared it would not be bound by any peace action where the UMW was "without precise and adequate representation."

The resolution then declared that District 50, which has recently been attempting organization of dairy farmers, cosmetic workers and chemical employes, "has been subjected to a campaign of slanderous propaganda and hindrance" by top officers and agents of the C. I. O.

Per Capita Withheld

Finally, the resolution said that until the C. I. O. recognized the debt, entered into peace conferences with the A. F. of L. according to Lewis' specifications, and ceased its attacks in District 50, the U. M. N. would continue to withhold its per capita tax.

According to a Lewis spokesman, the resolution was passed overwhelmingly, with only eight dissenting votes, including those of Bittner, Partick Fagan, District 5 president; C. F. Davis, District 31 president, and Hartin Wagner, international board member for District 50.

The resolution was passed on the eve of a special meeting of the C. I. O. executive council, convening here today to take up the U. M. W. feud and national problems of wage stabilization and war cooperation. President Murray said that the issues with Lewis would not be discussed today, since questions of wages, labor mobilization and war production "certainly must take precedence over this minor question."

Murray revealed that he had asked Lewis and Thomas Kennedy, U. M. W. secretary-treasurer, to attend the meetings. He promised that before the meeting ended, consideration would be given to the U. M. W. refusal to pay per capita taxes, to the raiding activities of District 50, and to problems of unity with the A. F. of L.

Observers predicted that Lewis would hold his policy committee members in Washington for the duration of the C. I. O. meeting.

U. S. Seizes Axis Cargo Plane Patents

Valuable patents covering cargo-hauling airplanes, held by the Junkers Company of Germany, were seized yesterday in a group of 600 German and Italian-owned patents, many of which were said to be of "immediate importance to the war effort."

The seizures were announced by Leo T. Crowley, alien property custodian, who said the processes and equipment covered by the patents would be made available to American industry.

Early attention was paid to the cargo plane patents at the instigation of the Army. The Government now is investigating the feasibility of large, long-range freight hauling planes to transport weapons and materials to war zones.

Besides more than 100 Junkers patents covering aircraft designs and instruments, the seizures included patents held by Arado, another German producer of military craft; patents owned by Robert Bosch of Germany covering electrical equipment in the ignition field, and German-held patents relating to the electron microscope, of high scientific importance.

Other patents covered radio, television and aircraft instruments.

About 3000 patents already have been taken over by Crowley. Earlier acquisitions included synthetic rubber and magnesium processes.

It Was Not Like This During First World War

Contrasts Are All in Cash Customer's Favor; Cross Roads Lone Summer Theater Survivor; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THOSE WHO REMEMBER BOTH must be aware that the trend of motion picture production in this World War II is closely following the pattern traced by the industry a quarter-century ago in World War I.

ANTON WALBROOK

We haven't been actively in the present struggle quite long enough to make the analogy complete, but the service films, bolstering the war effort; the anti-Nazi "propaganda" features, both factual and fictional, and the utilization of the screen and its people as an active agency for the sale of War Bonds and Stamps are about the same now as they were 25 years ago. The studio facilities, of course, have been greatly enlarged, improved and speeded up. What formerly required months now can be accomplished in days or weeks.

The greatest difference between the two eras is all in favor of the film patrons. They enjoy in comfort now the entertainments they used to attend in acute discomfort.

At this stage of World War I, the center of downtown picture activity lay farther to the East. The Fox Theater, now Loew's Capitol, had not even been blueprinted, let alone built. The Palace, Metropolitan and Rialto were brand new, in 1918, and the last words in "modern palaces of the cinema." None had an air-conditioning system, beyond the exhaust fans that could be set in the side-walls and roof. There was no such thing as sound on the screen. That didn't come along for almost a decade. The messages to be imparted to the audiences had to be conveyed through the medium of the old printed subtitle.

Radio and airplane communication not having been brought to the point of practically instantaneous contact with events, even news on the screen was considerably behind time.

These contrasts are recited only to suggest to the present generation of picturegoers, to whom this is the first war in their experience, that they are getting "all the breaks." To the old-timers, it is only a reminder that that voice is right when it observes that "Time marches on."

Despite the darkening effects of the gas and tire rationing, a flicker of light still shows over the summer theater horizon. By every sign and portent, the Cross Roads Theater, over at Baileys Cross Roads, in Virginia, will make good its promise and open on June 15 with Patterson Greene's quaintly amusing comedy of "Papa Is All," presented early in the season at the National, with Jessie Royce Landis at the head of the cast. Although the Army has accepted the enlistments of Producers Charles and George Hohein, Neil Linger, of the original organization, remains to carry on, and Paul Messink will temporarily abandon his radio chores in New York to retturn home to direct. Perhaps most important to the local straw-hatters is the fact that a regular 15-cent bus service will be established and maintained between downtown Washington and the Cross Roads haymow. Schedules will be announced in the near future.

Old Favorites in Company

For the reassurance of those who recall the excellent work done by the Cross Roaders during their five previous seasons of successful operation, it may be said that the acting company again will be headed by Catharine Ryan and M. Forney Reese, long favorites of Washington audiences. Also in the company will be Ruth May, Roy Gaintnor, Peggy Mansfield and Douglas Pendergast, tried troupers all. Six productions are on the schedule, to run two weeks each, with performances nightly, except Sundays.

Reference to the midweek announcements of coming attractions, which should be bobbing up somewhere around here, will indicate the corroboration of numerous exhibitors' forecasts. "Warsaw Concerto," starring Anton Walbrook, goes into a second week at the Little; "The Real Glory," more timely now than it was three years ago, is held over through Friday, at the Pix; "My Gal Sal," the Technicolor musical, celebrating the life of the late Paul Dresser, continues at Loew's Palace, with Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature co-starred. The managements, if you must know, were betting on what were virtually "sure things."

And if ever an attraction deserved to remain two weeks—or longer—at the National, the current Katharine Cornell revival of Shaw's "Candida" is it. Miss Cornell, in this production, has no "supporting cast." Raymond Massey, Burgess Meredith, Brenda Forbes, Ernest Cossart and Stanley Bell all are stars in their parts. Under the direction of Guthrie McClintic, there is here a perfect combination and coordination of all the elements of distinguished drama that deserves perpetual life as a demonstration of what the theater can be like at its supreme best.

New Pictures and Holdovers Mingle in Week's Amusements

"IN THIS OUR LIFE." A picturization of Ellen Glascow's Pulitzer-prize novel, starring Bette Davis, Olivia de Haviland, George Brent and Dennis Morgan. The Earle Theater will house this new attraction, which concerns a once proud family which has lost most of its prestige due to the avaricousness of one member. "Summertime Revue," the gay and dashing stage show for the week, will offer Johnny Barnes, the All-American Girls, Ray and Trent and the delovely Roxyettes in four summer scenes. Opens Friday.

Capitol

"TWIN BEDS." The marital farce which enjoyed an extended engagement as a Broadway play brings together Joan Bennet and George Brent as the harassed couple whose lives are complicated by the ever-changing standards of society. Connie Boswell, perennial favorite of 'blues" lovers, heads the new stage presentation. House features include the music of Sam Jack Kaufman and his orchestra. Opens Thursday.

RKO-Keith's

"SYNCOPATION." A vivid picture of American life against a colorful background of the growth of "ragtime" into "swing." Adolphe Menjou, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and Tod Duncan head a distinguished cast that includes the seven topnotch band leaders of the country. More than 30 songs are brought into the picture, most of them oldtime favorites, many of them authentic Negro "blues" and spirituals. Opens Thursday.

Palace

"MY GAL SAL." Starring Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature, this is a tuneful and nostalgic picturization of the life of Paul Dresser, who wrote most of the songs that were popular at the turn of the century, including the ever tuneful "On the Banks of the Wabash." His brother, Theodore Dreiser, wrote the screen play. Held over.

Metropolitan

"REAP THE WILD WIND." Cecil B. DeMille's colorful and thrilling adventure film in Technicolor which tells the story of the ship salvagers off the coast of the Florida Keys. Paulette Goddard portrays the lovely owner of one of the salvaging companies fighting pirates who wreck ships in order to strip them of their booty. Ray Milland and John Wayne appear as rival suitors for the young girl's fancy. Newsreels and short subjects round out the program for the week. Opens Friday.

Columbia

"RIO RITA." Fresh from a successful engagement at the Palace this remake of the old musical play stars the Nation's favorite zanies, Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. John Carrol and Kathryn Grayson appear in the juvenile leads. Any resemblance between this version of "Rio Rita" and the original is purely accidental. Opens Thursday.

Trans-Lux

"INDIA IN CRISIS." A new and pertinent 'March of Time" release in which India is shown as to its deligious and political problems. H. V. Kaltenborn again edits the news and Tex McCrary will report the latest in his inimitable style. In the cartoon section Walt Disney brings Donald Duck with his Camera. Thirty-five minutes of the 75-minute program will be taken over by newsreels. Opens Friday.

Little

"WARSAW CONCERTO." The story of a young concert pianist who sacrifices his career to fly with the Polish Air Force. Anton Walbrook plays the musician-pilot and Sally Gray is his wife. Richard Addinsell has composed some splendid theme music for the picture. In a 20-minute short the great Polish master, the late Ignace Paderewski, is seen playing three of his favorite selections. Held over.

Pix

"THE REAL GLORY." Adventuresome epic of the taming of the Philippino natives by American troops will be held over through Friday and will be succeeded on Saturday by 'Valley of the Sun," starring Lucille Ball and James Craig. This exciting picture of pioneer days deals with the turbulent conditions in the Southwest shortly after the Civil War.

New York, June 2.

The flying comrades of Colin Kelly made their own memorial to him. The men who flew with the war's first hero pooled their funds in Australia to make a community long-distance phone call to their families in America. The San Francisco operator arranged for those families to be ready when the phone call came. And one of those to whom the fliers asked to speak was the widow of their comrade . . . They told Mrs. Kelly that they had recovered and were sending to her the wallet, watch and West Point ring belonging to her husband . . . Mrs. Kelly now has them.

Oscar Ewing, the law partner of Charles Evans Hughes, who now is the special prosecutor in the William Dudley Pelley case, may get Ed Flynn's backing for the Governorship. Ewing was Flynn's aide in the Presidential campaign . . . There will be a court dispute over the estate of the late Mrs. Susie Flora Reich, the victim in the Shenbrun-Cullen-Madeline Webb case . . . Alice Damrosch, head of the Skilers of America, has offered to Mrs. Ovets C. Hobby the wholesale services of that organization, for the newly-created WAAC . . . Within the next few days Mayor LaGuardia is expected to announce the designation of 100,000 more auxiliary firemen.

Dorothy Draper, the decorator, is going to Brazil to decorate the new, largest hotel there. She'll use only native materials, adapted to North American comforts . . . Ed Foley, acting Secretary of the Treasury, soon may be in the Army . . . Hamilton Fish's daughter says that at least one Manhattan newspaper will back her father's candidacy for re-election to Congress . . . W. L. White, the correspondent who brought an adopted daughter back from the London air raids—and wrote the best-selling book about her, "Journey for Margaret"—now vows that if the LaGuardia-OCD fight continues he'll take Margaret back to London, which may be safer.

A strange young man came to the home of W. C. Fields and represented himself as the long-absent son of the famed, strong-drinking comic. The suspicious Fields challenged the young man—who thereupon produced documents in attestation . . . "They look okay to me," Fields told him. "Sit down. Have a drink?" . . . "Yep. Guess, I will," said the young man . . . "What'll you drink?" asked Fields . . . "Make it a coke," said the young man . . . "A coke?" raged the triumphant Fields. "Get out of this house immediately, imposter. You can't possibly be a son of mine."

Al Siegel, the voice-coach whose discoveries include Ethel Merman and a legion of other stars, for the first time in his long career is taking three male singers under his charge. Siegel decided that too many of his girl discoveries disavowed their contracts because they were under 21 at the time . . . Eric Knight, author of "This Above All," reports that the brick and mortar left by the London blitzes were used as ballast for the lend-lease boats coming here. The rubble then was unloaded and converted for use in building the East River Drive. Knight's friends now sing it: "There'll always be an England, especially as long as there's an East River Drive" . . . Publisher Cass Canfield has become a director of "Alert," the civilian defense paper.

The Washington Square Park artist from whom Eleanor Roosevelt purchased a painting last week, during the semiannual outdoor showing, now has a sign posted: "Artist to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the President's Wife" . . . The Teamsters Union, which almost had a run-in with the new Father Duffy Canteen, has purchased and presented another rolling canteen to that unit . . . When the indictment against Jones & Laughlin—for violating the priority regulations and selling steel for private purposes—comes to trial, the prosecution will show that the steel went to one of the world's largest oil companies . . . The Ulrich Bell-John O'Donnell feud is Washington's hottest.

This is how Dorothy Lamour came to make her record-breaking tour in behalf of the War Bonds campaign: The idea came to her during the evening, and she phoned the home of Y. Frank Freeman, head of Paramount, who was being treated by his doctor. Miss Lamour insisted that she must see him immediately. Freeman dressed, received her, and greeted: "What's up? Getting married?" . . . "No," replied the screen star, "this is really important" . . . She outlined her plan. "Okay, I'm for it," Freeman consented. "And let me be your first customer." He bought $50,000 worth.

Herring, Wilson Win Iowa Races

Republican Governor Faces Democratic Senator in November

Des Moines, Iowa, June 2 (AP).—Senator Clyde L. Herring (Democrat) of Iowa finds himself teamed with his old associate, Nelson G. Kraschel, at the head of the Iowa Democratic ticket for the fall general election.

Herring was renominated and Kraschel was named the party's candidate for Governor in nearly complete unofficial returns from yesterday's primary voting.

They will oppose Gov. George A. Wilson, nominated for the Senate by the Republicans, and Lieut. Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper, who won the G. O. P. gubernatorial primary race.

All nine sitting Congressmen but Representative John Gwynne (Republican) of Iowa appeared certain of nomination. Gwynne, whose pre-Pearl Harbor record was subjected to attack during the campaign, was neck-and-neck with James E. Coonley, Hampton, Iowa, attorney, in the Third District Republican primary.

Illinois G. O. P. Wins

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—Republicans scored a clean sweep in the downState judicial elections, winning a 5-to-2 majority on the Illinois Supheme Court by the defeat of two Democratic incumbents.

Losing Democrats were Paul Farthing, the blind judge from Belleville, and Elwyn R. Shaw, of Freeport.

Farthing conceded that he had been beaten by State Senator Charles H. Thompson, of Harrisburg, who has never lost an election.

Circuit Judge William J. Fulton, of Sycamore, defeated Justice Shaw by a 3-to-1 margin.

Justice June C. Smith of Centralia retained his seat by defeating Circuit Judge Dick H. Mudge, Edwardsville Democrat.

Republicans carried 48 of the 57 contested counties.

House Completes Pension Action

The House completed Congressional action yesterday on legislation to increase from $30 to $40 monthly pensions of World War veterans having nonservice connected disabilities.

The measure, according to the Senate Finance Committee, will affect about 17,500 veterans and raise annual pension costs about $8,400,000.

Weapon Output Conquered, Shipping Lags, Says Patterson

By William F. Frye.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Weapons are coming from American factories in quantities sufficient to supply our own army and meet the requirements of our Allies, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said yesterday.

Despite the huge expansion of the United States armed forces, Patterson said in an interview, and despite the fact that the per capita issue of weapons has been increased in the Army, the major problem now was shipping, not production.

"I am sure," said the Undersecretary, "that the production of armaments will keep pace with need, and ahead of shipping. We will be able to equip all the troops we can raise.

"I am not saying that this will not call for continuous effort on the part of American industry. Production problems have not all been solved. However, I am confident we will find a solution for all of them, and anticipate no real shortage of production of military weapons for the Army."

The increased issue of small arms resulted chiefly from the new danger of attack by parachute troops, Patterson said. Such units as Air Corps ground troops, supply personnel and antiaircraft gun crews, not previously equipped with small arms, now are receiving them as protection against parachute troops, and the Undersecretary estimated that these and other new requirements had doubled the Army's demands for light weapons.

A serious shortage of certain raw materials still exists, he said, including rubber, nickel and copper, and there were still "tight situations" in the supply of such materials as aluminum forgings and parts.

The Japanese now control the source of about 95 per cent of the world's natural rubber, Patterson said, and production of synthetics in quantities sufficient to meet the country's requirements has not yet been realized.

Ford and C. I. O. Begin Parleys On New Contract

Detroit, June 2 (AP).—Spokesmen for the Ford Motor Co. and the United Automobile Workers—C. I. O. today began the negotiation of a new contract covering more than 100,000 Ford employes in all Ford plants in the United States.

A dollar-a-day wage increase for all employes, a $100 War Bond in lieu of vacation and an umpire appeal system for handling grievances are among the union's demands.

The company, through Personnel Director Harry H. Bennett, has said it would not yield to the wage increase demand.

D. C. Man Seeks IATSE Presidency

Columbus, Ohio, June 2 (AP).—William Bennett, business representative of the Washington, D. C., Stagehands Local, No. 22, today announced his candidacy for president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, in convention here. The election will be held Friday.

A "thorough housecleaning of all officials identified with the Bioff-Browne machine" was demanded today, in a resolution offered by supporters of Vincent Jacobi, of New York, a candidate for president of the union.

The resolution referred to George E. Browne, former I. A. T. S. E. president, and William Bioff, his personal representative, who were sentenced to a Federal prison for extorting money from motion picture executives.

CCC Recruiting Campaign in Rural Areas Supplies Foes With Argument for Abolition

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

An increasing tendency on the part of the Civilian Conservation Corps to recruit enrollees from rural areas and small towns and thus to cut into already dwindling farm labor supplies last night was expected to provide foes of the agency with a strong argument for its elimination.

Funds for the CCC as well as the National Youth Administration, both marked for drastic curtailment or abolition by economy-minded legislators, will be carried in the Labor-Federal Security appropriation bill on which the House is scheduled to start debate today.

Most Come From Farms

The fact that CCC during 1941 drew 43.1 per cent of its enrollees from the farms and an additional 20 per cent from towns of 2500 population or less as against 19.6 from the farms and 34.8 per cent from the small towns during 1940 is expected to lead rural legislators to join the move to abolish the agency.

CCC barely escaped a recommendation for abolition in the Appropriations Subcommittee that handled the Labor Department-Federal Security bill. The subcommittee vote for elimination was three for and three against, but under the rules a motion of this sort is lost on a tie vote.

Informed observers last night predicted that the full committee today will follow recommendations of the subcommittee calling for appropriations of $75,818,000 for the CCC and $58,049,000 for the NYA.

Five Millions Already Cut

CCC's fate on the House floor may depend on the extent to which its foes are satisfied with the five-million-dollar reduction the subcommittee has decided to recommend in CCC's administrative funds. The subcommittee voted that five millions should be transferred from CCC to NYA for continuation of Federal aid to college students.

The President recommended that about 28 million dollars be spent on 76,348 enrollees while $17,763,000 should be spent to keep 10,795 persons on the Federal payroll.

It was reported last night that the subcommittee voted to reject President Roosevelt's request for appropriation of about 13 million dollars for Office of Education Loans to students needing funds to complete courses in medicine, dentistry and other professions.

OPA Aide to Face Grand Jury Action In Assault Case

Arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of criminally assaulting a 20-year-old Office of Price Administration stenographer in Rock Creek Park early Sunday, J. Franklin Huber, 24, also of the OPA, was ordered held by Judge Walter J. Casey for grand jury action. Huber, a "junior business economist," lives at 5128 North Capitol Street.

Bond was fixed at $3000 upon the recommendation of Assistant U. S. Attorney Sylvan Schwartz, who represented the Government at the preliminary hearing.

The alleged victim testified yesterday that the former University of Iowa student had attacked her near the golf course in the park after they had gone there in his car late Saturday night from a restaurant. She said she had refused to drink with him earlier.

I ESCAPED FROM HONG KONG
Six weeks a Jap prisoner after Hong Kong's fall, the author witnessed tortures, rape and wanton murders
IN the Post, out today, is an eye-witness account of the wanton torture of British officers and soldiers, the rape of Englishwomen by Jap soldiers, the bayoneting of helpless civilian prisoners. This Dutch-born U.S. citizen brings you an unhappy picture of what went on during and after the siege, as seen by him and scores of other Americans and English in a Hong Kong hotel, turned by war into a fortress-refuge of horror. The first part of his story begins today.

Oliver Lyttleton

The conferences in this country between the production chiefs of Britain and America will be every whit as important as the conferences of the Allied strategists in London. A common production policy must go hand in hand with a common strategy. That they are both being worked out shows how fast we intend to get on with the war.

Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, Britain's Minister of Production, has not yet met our Donald M. Nelson. Their backgrounds are similar enough to insure that they will have no difficulty in getting acquainted. Lyttleton, like Nelson, is a business man, and a successful one. Before he entered public life he was managing director of the giant British Metal Corporation. In September, 1939, he was made comptroller of nonferrous metals, with a mission to speed up the metal deliveries to war plants. So well did he do his work that Mr. Churchill within a year took him into his cabinet.

Of late he has been speeding up the output of munitions in Britain. There is no need to add that he has done this work well. The news of the air raids over Germany is enough testimony to his gift of organization on the factory front. It assures him a hearty welcome in Washington. Captain Lyttleton on his part will be cheered to hear that our war production is five times as much as it was this time last year. Soon we shall be ready to join the British in the Battle of Germany.

Silver Plan

Our economic unwisdom in hoarding silver when we might have hoarded more valuable things requires no further demonstration. It is obvious nowadays even to the monetarily illiterate. And yet we continue to compound that unwisdom—and in the bargain advertise Congress as the happy hunting ground for pressure groups—when we can no longer afford either fatuity or wastefulness in our national affairs. Even Secretary Morgenthau seems to have concluded that it is politically inexpedient to run his head against the mountain of folly represented by the silver-buying policy.

At any rate, he has been content to ask for a minor adjustment of the silver policy. Together with the Secretary of Commerce and the head of WPB he has appealed to Congress to permit the Government to make available to war industries 53,000 tons of silver now held as a backing for silver certificates. At present this pledged silver is utterly useless. Since it is valued for monetary purposes at $1.29 an ounce, compared with a market value of only 35 cents per ounce, it obviously provides a very inadequate security for silver certificates. Moreover, with the country on an irredeemable paper basis, silver monetary reserves cannot be used, in any case, for the purpose for which they were ostensibly set up.

Relying upon an opinion of the Attorney General as to the legality of its procedure, the Treasury has already made available to industry in the form of a loan about 42,000 tons of unpledged silver in its possession. Apparently the Treasury is now conferring with congressional silver bloc members concerning plans to "lend" its pledged as well as its free silver to war industries. Mr. Nelson is reportedly anxious to use this silver to replace copper in making butadiene from alcohol—a step in the production of synthetic rubber. Just how the Government would keep track of such a silver "loan" and eventually reclaim its scattered holdings is left to the imagination. Obviously the thing to do is to sweep away all restrictive silver legislation, instead of trying by devious means to circumvent the law.

Secretary Morgenthau has repeatedly called for a repeal of the Silver Purchase Act which makes it mandatory for him to buy foreign silver. Recently he also asked for repeal of the domestic silver subsidy legislation which compels him to buy the output of domestic mines for about twice the market price. So long as these laws remain on the statute books, silver will, of course, continue to flow into the Treasury, no matter how badly it is needed for war purposes. Not only is the metal useless to the Treasury, but as the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy says, "every paper dollar we put out for silver merely makes it all the harder to stem the inflationary tide."

Secretary Morgenthau ought to press his fight for repeal, therefore, instead of bargaining with the rapacious congressional silver bloc for permission to lend more of the Treasury's useless silver to industry. The price of that permission is much too high, if, as reported, it means continuance of the discredited silver buying policy. Now, if ever, the silver bloc should prove vulnerable to assault. If the public knew the facts, it would demand abrogation of laws that are hampering our war effort for the sake of benefiting a few silver producers.

Allied Air Goal

Undoubtedly the most encouraging thing about the R. A. F. raids on Cologne and Essen, aside from the enormous damage wrought, has been the establishment beyond dispute of the fact that the war in the air has entered a new, and, for the enemy, a truly fearsome, phase. Ever since the Battle of Britain one of the major Allied objectives has been mass retaliation on a scale that would outstrip even the most devastating performance of the Luftwaffe. Again and again Allied leaders have promised this—but always as a goal to be achieved, as something that lay in the future. The Cologne and Essen raids, thanks to the productive capacity of Britain and to superlative organization, prove that the goal has been attained at last.

There is, to be sure, a limit to the number of planes which can take off from British air fields. But less than a year ago competent authorities were certain that no more than 500 planes could be sent over the Continent to a specific objective. They based their estimate not on the number of planes likely to be available, but on the number of British air fields and on the organizational difficulties involved in getting even 500 planes off the ground. How wrong these authorities were has been proved, of course, by the two mass raids, in each of which well over 1000 planes participated.

Naturally, we have no way of knowing whether the raids represent the ultimate in mass air attack from Britain—though a British air official now says that there is "no reason whatsoever" why Britain should not send 2000, even 4000 bombers over Germany every night. But even if they do, it is apparent that such attacks pack sufficient striking power to pulverize strategic industrial objectives in any given area within range. Moreover, we are assured by no less an authority than Mr. Churchill that the raids are only a foretaste of what is in store for the enemy. To plan and actually to carry out these raids regularly will be not only a stupendous task but clear proof of Allied air superiority.

Lieut. Gen. Arnold, head of the United States Air Forces, who is now in London, expressed the job at hand neatly when he said: "No offensive against Nazi-occupied Europe can succeed without air superiority, and we mean to have it." British and American plane production should soon make this an established fact, if it is not, indeed, already established.

Freighters Of The Sky

The appointment by Donald Nelson of a special committee to investigate the use of air freighters to haul war cargoes is tantamount to an acknowledgement—belated but nevertheless welcome—that command of the air is not in itself enough for the United States. What we must also have, as some authorities have long recognized, is command of transportation by air. Indeed, we have only to bear in mind our geographical position in relation to the material requirements of global warfare to grasp this need. For some time now we have been flying planes from factories to battle fronts. This means, as Mr. Grover Loening, pioneer airman and committee member, points out, that we have achieved our critical range—that is, the range necessary to cover the world by air. Considerable as is this accomplishment, it is but the first step toward the ultimate realization of air power. This, it is clear, cannot come until we are in a position to transport the implements of war by air anywhere within our critical range.

To be sure, the Curtiss-Wright Corporation is building a new, long-range cargo plane for the Army, capable of carrying troops, light artillery, jeeps, and so on. And it is doubtless only a matter of time before giant land and sea planes, such as the experimental Douglas B-19 and the Martin Mars, and even larger planes, are produced in quantity for cargo purposes. The grim truth, however, is that we cannot afford to wait for the normal, peace-time development of such super-planes. We need cargo carriers now to speed the delivery of materiel.

There is sound sense, therefore, in the apparent intention of the committee to concentrate immediately not so much on the problem of developing larger freight-carrying planes as on the problem of determining whether and how existing facilities can be diverted to the production of cargo carriers. This is not to say that work on larger planes should be temporarily suspended. Such work is a vital prerequisite to the post-war production of fleets of giant carriers, by which this country ought to be able to dominate world air routes. But in the critical months ahead it will be our ability to convert and improvise on existing aircraft designs that, in some instances, will probably determine whether we succeed in getting the most essential materiel to the right point at the right time.

Satellite Enemies

There is no doubt whatever as to how Congress should vote on the President's request for a declaration of war on the three Axis satellite nations, Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania. Nothing less than immediate approval of the request is to be countenanced. All three nations declared war on the United States nearly six months ago, and, as the President points out, "are now engaged in military activities directed against the United Nations and are planning an extension of these activities." Some time ago Russia reported that troops of all three are fighting on the Eastern Front, and, ever since, has intimated that a war declaration by us would be most welcome. In effect, therefore, such a declaration will fulfill Moscow's wishes.

But Congress should have first in mind not Moscow's wishes, but Allied interests. There is not much doubt, to be sure, that the satellites of the Axis declared war because they were forced to. This, however, is hardly an extenuating circumstance. The fact is that Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania are actively furthering the Axis war effort militarily, economically and politically. They are supplying our declared enemies with troops, war materiel and foodstuffs. Moreover, they may be depended upon to facilitate an Axis drive southwestward to the Near East, if and when the Axis chooses to make such a drive. True, they have no freedom of choice. But, now that the extent of their actual and likely collaboration with the Axis is apparent, neither have we.

Murder In The Cathedral

The British censorship still refuses to let it be known whether Canterbury Cathedral was destroyed or damaged in the latest and most idiotic of the Nazi "Baedeker raids." It is not too easy to guess the reason for this reticence. Surely it would take a pretty good stretch of language to classify a cathedral as of "military importance." The best explanation we can think of is that if the Nazis were sure that this venerable edifice had not been utterly demolished they would certainly return to finish the job.

From the standpoint of architectural beauty Canterbury is not considered by any means the finest of the great English Gothic cathedrals. But in point of associations and traditions it surpasses them all. Canterbury, indeed, was the pivot of all post-Celtic Christianity in England. It was there, more than 1300 years ago, that St. Augustine established the primatial see and erected a basilica in the Roman style. In Saxon times it is associated with such famous names as St. Dunstan and St. Anselm, in Norman times with Stephen Langton and St. Thomas a Becket, in Tudor times with Cardinal Pole, and in Protestant times with Cranmer and Laud. But the fondest association of all is that with the language itself—with the first great landmark of English literature.

Morale Problem

New Federal employes are complaining that they are made to feel unwanted by those who consider this city their home town and who resent overcrowded conditions provoked by the newcomers. This form of snobbery has led more than one victim to address letters to and call at this newspaper. It is said that the inhospitality of this city is a factor in the resignations of new employes. Streetcar conductors who give a soldier a friendly steer are said to bark at timid Government clerks asking directions; the corner grocer who chats affably with Mrs. Jones, his neighbor for years, is said to waste no words with Mrs. Smith who has just come to town and could do with one or two; Mary Robinson who enjoys all the comforts of being at home in the Nation's Capital is not anxious to share them with office associates from Keokuk. With difficult housing, eating, and recreational problems to master, the Government worker who came here to help win the war finds this "class" distinction hard to take. It would seem in order to suggest that more of us take time and effort to exercise a little consideration as part of our share in the war effort.

FLOWERS ON THE LEDGE

A careless wind had sowed the seeds
And passed, forgetful of their needs
As of the dust some wind had blown
In little crevices of stone.
And in this dust the seeds took hold
Upon the ledge—to lift their gold
As if no good or ill intent
Of wind could alter the event
Of bloom some inner force ordai.
Allied with dust and sun and rains.
And so, denied a richer ground,
These flowers bloom from soil they found—
Like others of their kind we've known,
But seeming lovelier . . . from stone!
And growing closer than we guess
To brinks of our own consciousness.

Pay Raises

May I answer Mr. Taxpayer's letter on May 27, with regard to pay raises for Federal employes?

I am heartily in accord with the idea of the danger of inflation since most of us will use this money to buy clothes and food, trying to replenish our wardrobes and letting our stomachs get a square meal for a change.

But have you broken this proposed increase down to a daily wage? I think you will find it approximately 81 cents. Most people employed by private concerns have received equivalent increases since Pearl Harbor. The majority of Federal workers who will benefit from this bill draw a salary under $2500 per annum, in fact, a vast majority draw less than $2000 per annum. Do you begrudge us the chance to live on a footing with the rest of the American public? You complain of the taxes you will have to pay so we can get an increase. Don't you think we would willingly pay taxes if we could only receive a living wage?

Mr. Taxpayer, do you feel that you could live on a salary of $97.50 a month, feed and clothe a family of four, and still buy a few war stamps each month?

I am sure your firm, if you are employed, is paying a per cent of your wages into the Treasury to insure your comfort in your old age, and I am equally sure that firm is paying in a comparable amount that is not deducted from your salary. We Government workers are paying 3½ per cent of our salary into our retirement fund at present, and will soon be paying 5 per cent into that fund.

If we are, according to your standards, the select or preferred groups, I feel sorry for you. Maybe you should take one of these select jobs at $1200 a year and live on the fat of the land. P. M. S.

The Truth

We read that gas must be rationed in the East because the U-Boats have sunk tankers—then we read that gas is being rationed to save rubber—then, the rest of the country cannot be placed on gas rationing until July 1, yet the rubber shortage is supposed to be the reason for rationing. Is it only necessary to save rubber in the East?

The President makes the statement that "Ersatz" rubber will be available soon to the public. At the same time Congress, Jesse Jones, Donald Nelson and others, say no rubber until 1944 and then just enough for defense needs.

Sugar rationed, yet some of our Latin American countries report so much sugar that they have no place to store it.

Johnnie-Q-Public, tax payers, all good Americans, are willing and anxious to make sacrifices, but they want the truth. The American people are treated like a small child—one parent says "no candy," the other one says "yes." Whom shall we believe?

Our Boys Make Good

Of course you are aware long before this that lots of American boys are in Australia.

The American boys have won a place for themselves in the hearts of the Australian people. From all sides come splendid reports about the behavior of the soldiers. Of thousands of men who were in Ballarat when we were, every one was a "distinct" credit to his native land, and was looked upon as a gentleman. We feel it our duty to let you know that these were the sentiments of all those people with whom your boys came in contact.

War And Aftermath

To win the war was our sole objective in the last world conflict, thinking thereby to make the world safe for democracy. From it we turned as individuals and as nations to rebuild our economic structure with only self-centered motives. We have seen these structures totter and fall one after another. They were not secure because that which surrounded them was not secure. Surely out of it all comes the costly lesson that if one is to have security, all must have security. And if one is to have freedom, peace or happiness, all must have them. The future existence of the world of men depends on their ability to live in brotherhood.

In this war we have two objectives, to win the war and to emerge from the war triumphant over the usual aftermath of misery following a war. To win the war without molding an economic and social security that can withstand the repercussion may easily cost us and the whole world the precious values for which we had fought. To lose the war would be to lose everything to slavery.

We say we will not lose the war. Let us also be as determined to stand fast together against the aftermath and not be washed away. It will take the combined total effort of every person to either win the war or to stem the aftermath. United and striving we stand but if there be those who merely look on while the rest work and sacrifice, they will undermine even their own security and are likely to bring destruction to all. District Public Welfare

Your editorial in The Post of May 30 entitled "District of Columbia Merger" is a very sensible explanation of the vexatious tieup between the Board of Public Welfare and the District Commissioners. For some 28 years I have been the executive head of the Prisoners' Relief Society, and daily I can see the flaws in the setup.

We have constant contact with the subjects handled by the Board of Public Welfare and know everything that there is to know about the weak points in administration. There has been an epidemic of mismanagement in the past and to date. No other bureau in the District government has been so poorly managed.

It's bad system run by inefficient heads. The employes, such as guards, are kept in a state of unrest by so many order-giving executives. This applies to every institution under the Board of Public Welfare.

A businessman with energy as director of public welfare could reduce the welfare budget several million dollars each year and give better service. If the President can manage the vast labors that are put before him then a good man can run this welfare undertaking. A director with a wide awake chief clerk are all that is needed.

My quick guess is that Congress will enact this legislation in a hurry and there will be no blocking it.

War Fantasy

At times we seem to be living in the realm of fantasy here in Washington. It is announced that there will be a 12-hour blackout in June, presumably from official sources, but since there are by no means 12 hours of darkness at any time during the month of June it is hard to see what purpose would be attained by having Washingtonians keep windows darkened either before twilight or after dawn. This would have to be done in order to have a "blackout" for the official 12-hour period.

The National Capital, according to newspaper reports of official discourses, is to be bombed by Japanese planes in retaliation or "face-saving" for the bombardment of Tokyo. It is going to be a humdinger of a flight from even the Marshall Islands to the District of Columbia, let alone one in the opposite direction from Soerabaya, Java. It is going to be a whale of a voyage for a Japanese aircraft carrier to the mouth of the Chesapeake via either Cape Horn or the Cape of Good Hope, particularly with the growing hostility of the Latin-American nations to the Axis powers.

These two are rather notable samples of an amateurish tendency among persons who know very little about modern warfare. The emission of such juvenile pap surely does not exalt us in the eyes of others of the allied nations and can furnish material to the Axis propagandists as evidence that we need not be given much consideration except as an aggregate of munitions workers or a huge source of raw materials.

Leaving Families Home

Merle Pusey's column in The Post is always interesting, but I should like to take issue with his statement on May 26 which says that "it may be reasonably argued that war workers coming to the Capital ought to leave their families at home and live in dormitories."

Does he honestly believe that most Government employes can afford to support themselves in Washington and their families elsewhere?

Does he realize that Federal income tax rules are often interpreted so as to treat the chief breadwinner of a family as a single person if his family does not actually dwell with him, thus depriving him of his exemption as a head of a family? Although on appeal this interpretation might be reversed, it would take time. I, myself, have gone through this ordeal. It cost me $60, not counting train fares to Baltimore and time lost from work.

Some Congressmen, it is true, argue that the families ought to stay at home, but Congressmen may be figuring it out on the basis of $10,000 a year, mileage and other perquisites. MIRIAM NOLL.

Labor Unity

I cannot refrain from writing about your splendid editorial, "Lewis Vs. Murray," in the issue of May 29. This is really a piece which promotes national unity and, in short, hit the nail right smack on the head.

I think that any labor man or woman sincerely behind the war effort will agree, too, with your conclusions as expressed in this editorial, that Murray and the great bulk of the C. I. O. membership will repudiate Lewis and work much closer than ever to establish a real unity in order to win the war this year.

Keep it up!

The Post Impressionist

Emperor Worship

If you are not a close student of Japanese history you have no doubt been impressed by the fact that in every course of study disseminated by them it is taught that Japan has, down through the ages, always been unswerving in its loyalty to its 124 Emperors, including the reigning Hirohito.

Further the curriculum states that "Japan has never known the shame of treason or treachery, so common in other nations." Also that the Japanese are a race apart and are distinguished for a traditional chivalry called "Bushido," unknown in "inferior lands."

As a matter of historical fact there is not one iota of truth in the entire study. No nation in the world has ever treated its rulers in such a free and easy manner as has Japan from the beginning of its history, which a true account reveals as reeking with intrigue, rebellion and murder.

Emperors have been assassinated in generous numbers—Emperors have been deposed by the dozens.

The Emperor named Sujin, which means "venerable and lofty," was murdered at the order of his uncle, the prime minister, who desired the Empress Suiko to ascend the throne.

Yuriaku paved the way to the throne by causing the assassinations of four princes, of higher rank, who stood in his way.

One, Yomei, was stabbed to death by a member of the royalty.

Muretsu (martial order) was a monster of such revolting cruelty that before his record even that of Nero pales. Upon his death there was great rejoicing by the sons of Nippon.

Godaigo was banished to the Isle of Yoshino-Yoma, from which he later escaped hidden under a boatload of dried fish.

The method employed by the gangster of today in ridding himself of an enemy by taking him "for a ride" might well have been lifted from a page of Japanese history. For the boy Emperor, Antoku, when only 8 years of age, was killed, his little body sealed in a cask and tossed into the sea.

These are but a few instances showing how "unswerving in loyalty" Japan has been to its Emperors, who were reverently referred to during their lives as Tenno (Lord of Heaven) or Tenshi (Son of Heaven).

The number of crown princes slaughtered in the Land of the Rising Sun is too numerous to mention.

From 1298 to 1304 A. D. there were actually no less than five former Emperors living at one time, and for a period of 57 years, dating from 1336, two lines of Emperors reigned simultaneously, one in Kioto and the other in Yoshino.

Even during the reign of Meiji, referred to by historians as the most glorious in Japanese history, a rival empire was set up in one part of the country and a republic proclaimed in another.

Notwithstanding these dark stains on Japanese history, Dr. Nitobe in his book, "Bushido," has the audacity to write: In the 45 (sic) centuries during which Japan has passed through many vicissitudes of national existence, no blot of the death of a Charles I or a Louis XVI ever stained the history of Japan."

By the repetition of this and like assertions by Japanese statesmen and propagandists, many who are not entirely familiar with Far Eastern history have been deceived. Therefore some of these sober historical facts might be interesting.

Prince Ito in his "Commentaries on the Empire of Japan" says, "The Emperor is Heaven descended—divine and sacred. He is pre-eminent above all his subjects. He must be reverenced and is inviolable . . . Not only shall there be no irreverence for the Emperor's person, but also shall he not be made a topic of derogatory comment, nor of discussion."

A sixteenth century historian presents a rather pathetic picture in the life of the "Venerable One" during that period. "The Dairi in which the Emperior lives," he writes, "is a roughly built structure. It is within earthern walls and is surrounded by nothing but a bamboo fence. Common people make and sell tea in the garden of the 'palace' under the very shadow of the Cherry of the Right and the Orange of the Left. Children make it their playground and model mud-toys by the sides of the main approach to the imperial pavilion. Sometimes they peep behind the blinds that screen the imperial apartments. The sovereign himself lives chiefly on money gained by selling his autograph to even the meanest citizen."

The following incident which occurred during the Russia-Japan War would have been considered an insult to the intelligence of any monarch other than the Emperor of Japan.

After Admiral Togo had defeated the Russian fleet in the famous "Sea of Japan" battle and the world was acclaiming his strategy and acknowledging the superiority of the Jap fleet the admiral dispatched this message to the Emperor: "That we have gained successes beyond our expectations is due to 'the brilliant virtue of your majesty' and the protection of the spirits of your imperial ancestors, and not to the action of any human being."

The overbearing attitude of Japan toward other nations is perhaps best expressed in the words of Baron Oura, former Japanese Minister of Agriculture and Commerce, who haughtily exclaimed a few years ago "That the majesty of our imperial house towers high above everything to be found in the world and that it is as durable as heaven and earth is too well known to need dwelling here . . . If it is considered that our country needs a religious faith, then, I say, let it be converted to a belief in the religion of imperialism—in a word, to Emperor worship."

Submarine Campaign

By Ernest Lindley

A Naval High Command Test

THE NAVY expects to have the submarine menace off the Atlantic Coast and in the Caribbean under control in another 30 days. By around July 1, officials assert, the force of destroyers, smaller patrol craft, motor torpedo boats, blimps and bombers now coming into service will make these waters pretty hot for submarines. This is not a promise that we will not continue to suffer losses. It is a promise that they will be sharply reduced and that the Axis U-boat fleets will have to pay more heavily in their own losses.

LINDLEY

All the layman can do is to hope that the promise will be fulfilled—that the naval high command is not again a victim of complacency and lack of imagination.

However, there is at least one ground for hope: the Navy has shown its capacity to deal with the submarine on the high seas. It has highly perfected at least one technique: the escorting of convoys. It has landed convoys of troops in the British Isles, Australia and other outlying bases without the loss of a man. And it is keeping open, with very considerable success, the supply lines to Australia, India, the Middle East, Iceland, the British Isles and Russia.

ROUGHLY there are three ways of dealing with submarines, once they have gone to sea. One is by patrol—to seek them out and then destroy them. The second is to run away from them, which a fast vessel sometimes can do. (The arming of merchant vessels serves to keep submarines under water, preventing use of their guns, but is not accounted much protection against torpedo attacks.) The third is the convoy.

Convoys are slow. They can move no faster than the slowest ship. And additional time is lost in assembling them and unloading them.

All these methods are being used alone and in combination. But the convoy has the advantage of making the submarine come to you—to where you are prepared to deal with it. Given enough destroyers and corvettes, the escorted convoy can hold the submarine at bay. Some losses will be suffered, but they can be held below the danger point, and if the submarines press their attacks, their own losses will mount toward the level where the morale of the submarine forces will begin to crack. That, at least, is the theory. And it seems to be borne out by experience to a very considerable degree.

WHEN CONVOYS must come within range of the enemy's shore-based aviation, protection becomes more difficult. Convoys to Murmansk and Archangel are so exposed. The Nazi planes not only attack; they also guide the submarine flotillas based in Norwegian fiords. The danger of attack by surface raiders is also always present. The Germans claim to be taking a heavy toll of ships going to the northern Russian ports, and it would be surprising if they did not sink some.

On the whole, however, the naval experts say the campaign against the submarine is being won. The main problem, they say, is to get more light craft, so that more ships can move in convoy with adequate escort.

The evidence is weighty, however, that in dealing with the submarine problem, the Navy has been handicapped by lack of foresight and by bureaucratic stuffiness. For years the controlling thought in the Navy was centered on the battle fleet, and, more particularly, its use in a war with Japan. Hardly a ship was designed with any other use in view. Our new destroyers were built for action with the fleet—when the same amount of money and time would have built a much larger number of somewhat smaller vessels at least as useful for escorting convoys.

The airplane was gravely underestimated, and so was the blimp, which is especially useful on submarine patrol at a safe distance from enemy aircraft.

So much for the past—before the Axis submarine blitz in the Western Atlantic and Caribbean. Until more is known and can be published, the Navy should be spared outright condemnation. But there was enough outward smugness in the Navy's reaction to lead to the belief that the men at the top grossly underestimated both the striking and staying power of this Axis submarine campaign. Certainly the countermeasures taken were neither as prompt nor as far flung as some intelligent men in the Navy considered necessary and feasible.

Despite the good work being done by the Navy elsewhere, this is a critical test for the naval high command. If it succeeds in making shipping in the Caribbean and along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts reasonably safe from submarines by July 1, the controversy will die down. Otherwise a complete shakeup may be needed both to deal with the submarine and to restore public confidence.

The Once Over

Bond Sales

Dear Henry: Well, I see where, after all my letters over the past year, urging you to drop that idea of a dignified nonballyhoo war bonds drive and get in there with zip, fireworks, parades, whoopla and showmanship, you have finally got around to it. Little Vineland, N. J., a town of only 25,000 folks, invested between $600,000 and $700,000 in a test case and all your men expected was about $75,000. It was the most sensational showing made by any community. And what did it? An old-time typical American campaign in the P. T. Barnum manner!

When you came out over a year ago with your famous announcement that "none of the methods used in the Liberty Bond campaigns of the last war" would be tolerated, I thought you were getting yourself up an alley, but you stuck to this idea for some curious reason, finally permitting a "test case" of the ballyhoo tactics in Vineland. Well, I guess you're satisfied. Dignity was tossed into the ashcan, where it belongs, in all-out drives for big dough. Parades, microphone rodeos, band concerts, dances, bunting-draped streets, block parties and everything else got the go sign at Vineland.

I never could see what was wrong with the methods of selling bonds in the last war, Henry, and I guess you're now about ready to admit it. Why, Hen, in that war a fellow couldn't move 300 yards in any direction without running smack into a street corner speech or a parade that would kindle his emotions up to such a point that he would subscribe for another bond or two. And, Hen, you need the circus stuff now more than then for these reasons:

1. In those days the people were not scared stiff of taxation, past, present and in prospect. They had no reason to hesitate before digging into their pants.

2. In 1917 men and women didn't have any distorted notions of what the Government could afford. They hadn't been educated to think that dough grew on trees and that Uncle Sam, as head forester, could get all he wanted without asking help.

3. A man knocking on the door for something was unusual and not routine stuff.

* * * *

But today its different. The folks are more nervous about dough. They're asked to give to dozens of drives. And when you say, "Uncle Sam needs 100 billion dollars," the natural reaction is for the folks to chirp, "One hundred billion? That ain't nothing. Why worry about chicken feed?"

* * * *

So you need all the fireworks and whoopla and music and jazz that can be put into a drive today, Henry. Vineland is your answer. Whsm the bassdrums, Hank! Get that brass band tooting its head off! Touch off those fireworks! Dignity my eye! This is war and it costs money. Your old pal,

ELMER.

Enlarging, Limiting

By Mark Sullivan

New War Production Stage

THERE WAS before the House a bill to build a pipeline and a barge canal across Florida. The purpose was to relieve gas and oil shortage in the Eastern States. This shortage is caused mainly by submarine sinkings of ocean tankers which run from Texas and Louisiana to the Atlantic Coast. The proposed pipeline and barge canal across Florida would permit the oil and gas to be brought by a route not subject to submarine attack.

SULLIVAN

The bill was defeated, 185 to 85. Considering the purpose, the defeat was surprising. There were, however, some reasons. The reasons included:

Demand that the pipeline and barge canal be considered as separate measures, each on its merit.

A feeling that the pipeline alone would be enough, without the barge canal.

The fact that the pipeline could be built in an estimated three or four months, while the barge canal would take an estimated year and a half to three years.

THE FACT that the pipeline could be built for an estimated 48 million dollars, while the barge canal would cost nearly 100 million more.

A feeling that a better way to use the money, and the time and the man power, would be to build the pipeline across Florida—and then use the additional money for building still more pipelines from west to east.

Suspicion that the shallow, 12-feet deep barge canal was tacked onto the pipeline proposal as a first step toward digging a deep ocean-going ship canal across Florida. The latter proposal was before Congress several times preceding the war, and aroused controversy. Frequently in the debate this week such phrases occurred as "entering wedge for the ship channel," "sugar coating for the ship channel."

The fact that the proponents of the bill had not got unified recommendation by all the Government officials and boards who have to do with the subject matters involved in the bill—those in charge of gasoline and oil, transportation, shipbuilding, man power, allocation of materials. It was not necessarily that any of these opposed the bill; it was merely that formal recommendations of some of them had not been procured.

One reason for defeat of the bill was resentment against the parliamentary method by which the bill was placed before the House. It came under the suspension of the rules, permitted no amendment, and permitted only 40 minutes for debate. Had the bill come in the regular way, there would have been time for adequate debate, and proposals of amendments would have been in order. So much did the attempt at suspension of the rules weigh with members of the House that it is tenable to suppose the bill might yet pass if it were brought forward again, this time, in the regular way.

REJECTION of a war measure, if it is a war measure, would be unfortunate. One way to avert it would be to make sure that the measure in question is, indisputably, a war measure. A way to assure this would be to have, for such a measure, the formal approval of those responsible for conducting the war, all of them. It is not enough that the measure be indorsed, as this one was, by some war agencies. There should be, before a war measure is introduced, consideration and final judgment by all the war agencies as a group. It should come as the act of a unified war authority. And what is true of measures before Congress is true also of statements, orders and announcements issued to the public. In the past, both Congress and the public have seen statements or orders or recommendations coming from one war agency, while another war agency seemed to take a different view.

Unified judgment and action is desirable for the information and assurance of Congress and the public—and for an additional reason. We have now reached the point where we approach the bottom of the barrel of our materials, facilities and man power. In the beginning, it was proper enough that we should order lots of planes, lots of tanks, lots of guns, lots of ammunition, lots of ships. But at this stage, it is necessary to coordinate these various lots, bring them into a relation to each other which will compose the best possible war effort and will take account of our limitations of man power and materials. We have now reached the point where we can enlarge one detail of our program only by limiting another. To decide upon the detail to be enlarged, and the one to be limited, must be the work of our war authority—acting as a unit.

The proposed pipeline and barge canal across Florida is a case in point. It will consume man power and it will consume raw materials, including steel. Is this the best possible use for the narrowing margins of man power and steel that remain available? If it is, and if a unified war authority will tell us it is, then let us do it. On the other hand, if there is a more necessary use for the man power and materials, then use them for that. If the best management of the war, to the end of assured victory, requires that the people of the Eastern States get along with reduced gas and oil, that will be a relatively small discomfort, compared with the sacrifices that total war demands.

At the present time, our most pressing need is ships. In practically every other detail of our war program, we have made progress beyond what in the beginning we imagined, progress which justifies confidence in the ultimate outcome of the war. We do not need to doubt that the American genius which has accomplished the wonder of mass production in other lines, can accomplish it also in ships. But shipbuilding is the largest present demand upon whatever man power and materials we have to spare.

Fair Enough

Browder's Commutation

THE COMMUTATION of Earl Browder's prison term as a means of promoting unity among the American people is more offensive than ever to the patriotism of the country in the light of the opinion expressed by the Attorney General, Mr. Biddle, in the Harry Bridges case. Overruling a committee of clerks in his department, known as the immigration appeals board, who, in their turn, had overruled an eminent judge who had heard the evidence and recommended Bridges' deportation, Mr. Biddle not only agrees that Bridges is a Communist but that the Communist Party does strive to overthrow existing governments, including this one, and that, therefore, he should be deported. I believe this is the first time that any competent spokesman of the Administration has recognized the obvious hostility of the Communist Party to the Government of the United States, but, anyway, the effect of his opinion is that Browder is, in very plain effect, accused of traitorous conduct, he being chief of this conspiracy against this Nation. Nevertheless, this evil servant of our most defiant and contemptuous internal enemy is now again at liberty by Presidential decree, not because he was overpunished for his crime done in the interest of his conspiracy, not because he was a victim of political persecution, but because his political following demanded his release.

No loyal American asked Browder's release on any such ground. The Communist petitioners, skilled and tireless in such matters, claimed to have gathered three million signatures for their appeal but, of course, they are all proud to be known as liars for their cause, so that figure need not be accepted. But even those fellow-travelers who joined in the appeal based their petition on a contention that Browder was a victim of political persecution, which would be a violation of American justice. The cause of unity had no merit in the case unless it is to be established that a felon sentenced for a proven crime and for no other reason may be allowed to go insufficiently whipped out of consideration for his politics and the strength of his political following.

THE EXCUSE of unity was obviously false anyway for the Communists now are under orders from their home office to do their utmost in behalf of the war effort in this country in Russia's interest. They would have to do this even though Browder had remained in prison to the last day of his 4-year term and even though our Government had been cynical enough to admit that he was a political prisoner. They serve and obey Russia.

Whom then was it intended to swerve from disunity to unity by this political stroke?

Were there any mass meetings of soldiers or the parents of soldiers or any other loyal Americans, to demand Browder's release? There was none and, in view of Biddle's admission that Browder's party fights to destroy the American Government, the suggestion that Americans would fight and work the harder for their own country in gratitude for this extra-legal favor to any enemy is the more painful.

THE ONLY ANTIWAR elements in this country are small and devoted to the Axis, and they will not be placated by Browder's release. On the contrary, they will be more pernicious than ever, and no doubt will exploit the honest indignation of patriotic citizens over the outrage to create greater disunity than they were capable of before. Yet the loyal citizens cannot be expected to pass over without protest this special political favor to a criminal whose agency is now plainly acknowledged by the Attorney General to be an enemy of the Nation.

The Bridges deportation probably will never come off, however, because he may now appeal to the Federal Courts, starting low and working slowly up to the Supreme Court and, in the end, a political deal with the government of Australia, his native land, may persuade that Commonwealth to deny him readmittance.

Meanwhile, on the Pacific Coast, through the exercise of the political and economic power which he created under the politico-labor policy of the Government which now denounces him as an enemy, he will help Mother Russia and, incidentally and unavoidably, Australia and the United States, by shoving cargo along efficiently and fast. In the end, however, he is more likely to be deported than Browder's wife, who was named in an order of deportation issued by Robert Jackson on the eve of the last Presidential election but is still in Yonkers and in no danger of being disturbed.

The Hidden Battle

By Barnet Nover

Cologne And The German Mind

COLOGNE is the fourth or fifth largest city in the Third Reich. Its population of around three-quarters of a million inhabitants is surpassed in Hitler's Germany only by the population of Berlin, Vienna, Hamburg and possibly Munich. A major industrial center, it is even more important as the junction point of a great system of rail, motor and water communications.

NOVER

In striking at Cologne as they did with unparalleled force on May 31, the R. A. F. was hitting Germany in a peculiarly vital spot. The damage, from all accounts, would seem to have been staggering. Possibly three-fourths of the city was laid waste. According to neutral estimates, as reported by the New York Times, the death toll probably reached 20,000. Many tens of thousands were wounded. A very large number were made homeless.

But great as was the material destruction in the Rhineland metropolis in what the Berlin radio has described as "the nightmare of Sunday," the damage which the R. A. F. did to the German mind was possibly even greater still.

THOSE WHO have had an opportunity to study the German scene at first hand during the recent months have warned us again and again not to count on an internal collapse in the Reich to produce the victory we seek. Victory will be won, can only be won, on the battlefield.

Such warnings should not be disregarded. The defeat of Hitler will be the cause, not the product, of a collapse in German morale. Such a collapse can, at most, only hasten a disintegration in Germany's military power which had set in earlier.

However, the term "battlefield" requires definition. By any objective standards Cologne on May 31 was as much of a battlefield as Kharkov or the approaches to Tobruk. And it was a battlefield where the Wehrmacht suffered one of its most disastrous defeats. This point has not been lost on the people of the Rhineland who have been fleeing helter-skelter from the wrath yet to come. It will not be lost on the people of Germany generally.

EXACTLY two years before the great British raid on Cologne, the British Expeditionary Force was fighting a rearguard action that was to bring it to the beaches of Dunkerque.

To most Germans, to many other people throughout the world, the war then appeared to be in its penultimate stage. The Wehrmacht had driven through Holland and Belgium like a knife through butter. France was approaching collapse. Continued British resistance seemed unlikely.

Now, two years later, the British are so far from being beaten that they have been able to attack a great German city with a force that Hitler in the heyday of the Luftwaffe was never able to employ against London or Plymouth or Coventry. And two days later a force of almost equal magnitude to that which made rubble of Cologne wreaked its wrath on Essen and other cities in the Ruhr.

No amount of Goebbelsian propaganda can persuade the German people that they are victorious when their cities can be attacked by the enemy in such devastating force. All those living within the Rhineland—the inhabitants of Duesseldorf, for instance, or Dortmund or Krefeld or Koblenz—know that the hour is near when they may suffer the fate of the population of Cologne. Indeed, no German city can now be deemed too far removed from British bases to be sure that it will be spared a destructive visit by the R. A. F.

THE FACTOR of air power has completely revolutionized war. This is now a truism. But the full significance of air power is not yet fully understood.

It is obvious that air power can do enormous destruction to enemy cities. The British proved that given sound morale even the most destructive raids can be taken in their stride. Possibly the R. A. F. raids on Germany will be a repetition of this circumstance.

In at least three particulars, however, the German situation differs markedly from that which the British faced. In the first place, the raids on German cities follows repeated promises by Hitler that victory was in sight and promises by Goering that German cities would never be raided. The Battle of Britain occurred after the British had suffered a series of fearful disasters.

Secondly, Britain's defensive strength was concentrated; that of the Reich is spread wide. The bulk of the German air force is and must remain immobilized on the Eastern Front. Yet every such raid as that on Cologne or Essen reduces the German capacity to replenish its air losses.

Thirdly, the nature of the raids which the British have carried out and which they will certainly continue to carry out at every opportunity differs in degree from those which the Luftwaffe carried out in 1940 and 1941. Cologne stood up quite well under repeated British raids of the ordinary kind. So did Essen. The latest raids tell a very different story.

In the dark jungle of the German mind the R. A. F. has now sown seeds of doubt. Watered by the losses suffered in Russia, nourished by the continued postponement of victory that now seems further off than ever these seeds may soon achieve a luxuriant growth.

The Gallup Poll

Australian Public Wants Centralization, Would Abolish State Governments

Special Dispatch to The Post

Melbourne, June 2.—With Australia's decks cleared for war, the majority of her people would favor taking the unprecedented step of abolishing State governments.

Australian Public Opinion Polls, an affiliate of the American Institute of Public Opinion, will release tomorrow the results of a survey showing that 57 per cent of those interviewed believe Australia's State governments should be done away with, while 19 per cent think they should be retained, and 24 per cent are undecided.

The majority apparently feel that division of authority between the States and the Federal government is hampering full execution of the war effort.

Ever since the six Australian States were federated under a constitution in 1901, the issue of the States versus the Federal government has precipitated a controversy almost as lively as that in the United States before the Civil War. Australia's states have always been extremely jealous of their rights; in fact, a small secessionist party operates in West Australia.

Recently, however, the political trend has been toward increased Federal powers, and with it has come agitation to reorganize the States or even to abolish them. This movement culminated a few months ago in a request by the Federal government that the States surrender their taxing power to the Federal authority and accept allotments out of the general Federal fund for local purposes. The request has not yet been granted.

So far as is known, the present Australian poll is the first scientific nation-wide measurement of public sentiment on the State versus Federal issue in Australia, and it is clear from the results that the majority opinion is headed toward greater centralization.

A recent poll dealing with the war effort found that more than 8 out of every 10 Australians favor calling out single women for war work if needed.

Overwhelming sentiment was also found for putting war prisoners to work harvesting the crops, and for limiting the pay of conscientious objectors to the same pay as army privates.

State High Court Affirms Bus Inspection Fee

Nashville, June 2 (AP).—The State Supreme Court today held a State act imposing a fee for inspection and supervision of buses and other common carriers operating in and through Tennessee is constitutional and that the fee is not excessive.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Alex W. Chambliss, upheld an appeal by the State from a lower court ruling that the State superceded authority of the Federal Government in assessing the fee—$84 a common carrier annually.

The high court held that the act, challenged by the Southeastern Greyhound Bus Lines, did not "encroach upon the Interstate Commerce Commission's field of control" and thus did not conflict with Federal regulations.

Rudolph Wurlitzer Retires After 50 Years

Cincinnati, June 2 (AP).—Completing his fiftieth year of service, Rudolph H. Wurlitzer announced today his retirement from the musical firm bearing his name.

C. E. Johnson, vice president and manager of the company's North Tonawanda, N. Y., plant, was elected to succeed him as a board member, with Wurlitzer's brother, Farny, becoming chairman.

Stockholders Give N. J. Standard Oil Executives Strong Vote of Confidence at Meeting

By Don Whitehead

Associated Press Staff Writer

Flemington, N. J., June 2.—Stockholders of the two-billion-dollar Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey gave their management an overwhelming vote of confidence at the company's annual meeting today after a small but vociferous group of share owners sharply questioned the company's relations with I. G. Farbenindustrie, the German chemical combine.

Contracts with the German cartel and Standard's alleged failure to supply adequate information to the Government regarding synthetic rubber had been the subject of charges made by Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General.

The resolution of confidence in the management came from stooped, grayhaired James W. Gerard, who was United States Ambassador to Germany at the outbreak of World War I. It brought a roar of approval, but there were three unidentified voices which said nay.

Record Attendance

The meeting had the largest attendance in the company's history, oldtimers said. Some 500 stockholders crowded into the second story auditorium of the Grande View Grange.

Philip Blumenthal, representing Mrs. Elizabeth K. Dooling of New York, who owns 206 shares of Standard Oil stocks, arose to declare that Mrs. Dooling had been disturbed by the recent disclosures about the company and the German trust.

There were shouts of "Sit Down!" and "We don't want to hear about that!" but Blumenthal persisted.

Mrs. Dooling, he said to President Farish, wanted to know whether the proposed directors had received any pecuniary return from the German trust, in order that she might make an intelligent vote.

Blumenthal suggested the directors make a statement under oath regarding any monetary returns received from the German trust.

William Ross, of Brooklyn, leaped to his feet and cried that the request was a direct insult to the president and the other officers of Standard Oil.

"I agree it is an insult," Farish said, "but we have to get used to insults."

Voluntarily, Farish told the suddenly quiet audience: "I swear under oath that I have never received any compensation or recompense from any other interests whatsoever, including the Germans."

W. C. Teagle, Standard Oil's chairman, raising his right hand, arose and declared: "I have never received any sum from the I. G. Farbenindustrie except director's fees of $75 for attending three meetings."

Other executives present, Orville Harden, F. A. Howard and F. W. Abrams, made similar statements. Each was followed by applause from the stockholders.

Farish read a letter he had sent to Senator Truman (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the Senate Committee to Investigate the National Defense Program, prompted by a supplemental statement filed with the committee by Arnold. In the letter Farish said:

"While your committee and Mr. Arnold both absolved us from any unpatriotic motive he deduces from the document in his possession an attempt by us to mislead your committee. I hope I need not assure you that there has been no attempt on our part of any kind to mislead you. Such a conclusion could be reached only from a misunderstanding of selected facts and not from knowledge of all the facts.

Denies Delay

"I want to reiterate what we told your committee that no action of ours has delayed the production of synthetic rubber in this country or hampered any other item of our war effort. To the contrary it has brought to this country invaluable weapons for winning the war."

Continuing with his letter, Farish reviewed the company's development of high-grade aviation gasoline "which puts the planes of the United Nations far ahead of Axis planes."

Defending the company's relations with the I. G. Farbenindustrie, huge German chemical concern, Farish said that "out of it came American control of the Buna rubber processes which we were able to take over completely from the Germans in 1939 solely because of our 1929 agreement."

Out of this program also, Farish said, were processes "which we have developed and which will be used for production of most of the Butadiene of Buna rubber made in the oil industry. Out of it came Vistanex, one of the few special types of synthetic rubber in actual production in the United States before the European war."

The Farish letter said: "That the new statement on file with you raises for the first time the point, surprising to us, that these unquestioned benefits would in fact come to us from the earlier 1927 agreement with the I. G.

"The 1927 agreement was limited to oil processes used in the United States. It gave no right to the oil processes outside of the United States and no right for coal hydrogenation even in the United States.

"It gave no rights at all in any of the valuable oil-chemical processes, such as synthetic rubber.

"The only control of new chemical developments which Standard gave up to the I. G. in the 1929 agreement was limited to new chemical developments of Standard outside of the oil industry."

GREAT DANCERS COMING UP. Entertainment a la dream is always brought to the Shoreham Terrace by that superlatively smart fellow, Max Lowe. But you (as we are, too) will be happy to know that Maxie has booked a series of dance teams that are "out of the woods," in that perfect phrase of musicians. You're enjoying Consolo and Melba this week, soon will see the Rossilianos (whose Polish dances are poems) and Maurice and Cordoba. All of these highly talented folks will make you realize that "Poetry is the grace of motion." Or would it be the other way around? Anyhow, we should all give thanks to Max for bringing such ineffable pictures of grace to whirl under the stars and star-guided airplanes that decorate the night picture of the Shoreham Terrace. A picture, my friends, that belongs and will go down in history as part of the world's leading Capital in what, we all hope, will be the last Great War.

TOPFLIGHT AMERICAN GIRL, Meaning Jane Pickens, singing star at Del Rio

Paul Kain, Glen Echo's maestro, is just as debonair in doing a "barrel roll" in a plane as leading the "Jersey Bounce." He says it's easier to loop a plane than to control four saxists with different ideas.

PADEREWSKY OF THE VIBRAHARP is Adrian Rollini, whose appearance at El Patio is causing fanciers of modern music to roll up their eyes in rapture. Among musicians the word Rollini is synonymous with "tops." Rollini started out as a child piano-playing prodigy at the age of four. He's still a prodigy. His appearance at El Patio gives you all an opportunity of enjoying a full evening of the rare music you've only had a quarter hour to appreciate at the Earle Theater, in previous Rollini appearances in Washington.

WERE WE RIGHT? "What kind of music do Washington people want?" asked Bandleader Arthur Warren at his opening on the Starlight Roof. Our answer was, "Give 'em plenty of smart show tunes, a good ratio of Pan-Am rhythms and whatever you do, don't ever skip the requests, even if they're for 'Wagon Wheels' or 'Home on the Range.' They may mean an awful lot to somebody."

Congratulations to the Madrillon's Gourmet, only house organ of a Washington restaurant, and no end ably edited by Host Peter Borras. Its first anniversary edition, full of sauce and spice, has just reached our desk.

SOLDIER HEADLINERS from Camp Belvoir have been doing "solid sending" at Log Tavern with Paul Perkins' Bayou Band. Just listen! Will Hudson's John Addabbo, Sam Donahue's Guidge Gordon and a modest anoonymous melodeer from Reggie Childs' band were all knocking their brains out at Log Tavern lately. It was a "jam session" that no money could pay for and no money could buy!

FLOOR SHOW FLASHES. Most hilarious is "Jive" Jack Schaffer's modest shuffling out at the midnight show at Casino Royal and the immodest sagas he sings—with blushes . . . Sforza Reveals Killing of Nazis By Sicilians

The killing of Germans by Italians is a common occurrence in Sicily, Count Carlo Sforza, former foreign minister of Italy, said at a press conference yesterday in the Mayflower. He said it made him "proud" to be able to make the disclosure.

The Italian nobleman, who handled the foreign relations of his country before the advent of Mussolini and fascism, said that Sicily had become a "great German garrison." In Rome and Berlin, he said, there was complete silence about the killing of Germans by the Sicilians. No hostages had ever been taken and shot, he said, because it was felt that the legend of German-Italian friendship paid better.

Count Sforza, regarded as the leader of democratic opposition to fascism, was an exile in France until the Germans overran that country. He fled to England on a trawler and now makes his home in New York.

A tall aristocrat with a Van Dyke beard, Count Sforza told how one Italian gave the "Bronx salute" when he heard the name of Mussolini, and he said that was the way most Italians felt about Il Duce.

King Emmanuel, Count Sforza said, used to be pitied by his subjects. That feeling, he said, has now disappeared, giving way to a feeling of contempt that is nearly as strong as the feeling of contempt for fascism.

Asked about the underground movement in Italy, Count Sforza said it was made up of 45 million Italians—the whole population, excepting a thin layer that is fattening off fascism.

Italian-Americans Urged to Have Faith

Pleading for faith in the people of Italy, in counter-distinction to the acts of their Fascist rulers, Count Carlo Sforza last night urged Italian-Americans to reject the propaganda, of "shabby ex-Fascist leaders" in the United States and abroad.

Speaking before 350 members of the Mazzini Society, in the auditorium of the South Interior Building the count described the disillusionment of native Italians under the Mussolini regime. The meeting was held in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of the death of Giuseppe Garibaldi, Italian patriot.

Dean G. Acheson, Assistant Secretary of State, spoke of the growing divergence of Italian politics from the ideals of the Italian people. He paid tribute to the patriots, Mazzini and Garibaldi, and stated that "The liberation of the Italian and other peoples from the military cliques which hold them in their clutches is one of the war aims of the United Nations."

Representative d'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, declared that he hoped yet "to see the American flag flying over Rome as well as Berlin and Tokyo."

"I predict that the Italian people will soon rise, overthrow Mussolini and his Fascist chieftains and ally themselves with the United States," said d'Alesandro. "I believe that if an American expeditionary force, composed of boys of Italian descent, should invade Italy, they would be welcomed with cheers and open arms—and the people would join them in a victorious march on Rome!"

The Congressman was applauded enthusiastically.

Included among other speakers were Luigi Antonini, president of the Italian-American Labor Council, and Alan Cranston of the Office of Facts and Figures.

Longest Term Given Trice In Car Death

Horace W. Trice, of 2728 Thirtieth Street Northeast, yesterday was given the maximum sentence for the killing of a 16-year-old Meadows, Md., girl in an auto accident in Upper Marlboro, Md., last month.

Judge Charles Marbury sentenced Trice to three years' imprisonment and fined him $1000. In so doing he stated "I regret that I am unable to pronounce a more severe sentence on you."

"You are being sentenced under a new law which makes manslaughter in traffic cases a misdemeanor rather than a felony," he said. "In addition to killing a girl at the very outset of her adult life, you came into this court and deliberately lied in an effort to escape punishment."

Trice had testified in court that he had only two drinks before the accident. The prosecution gave evidence Trice and his companion had had 13 Manhattan cocktails and several drinks from a bottle.

Trice was convicted last Tuesday of killing Doris Stalling when his car leaped the curb and crushed the girl's body through the iron fence in front of the county courthouse at Marlboro. His attorney, John S. White, has said he will file for a new trial.

Trice will be called back to Police Court June 9 to face charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving in connection with the same accident.

William T. Moore, 32-year-old iron worker of 1328 E Street Southeast, was sentenced to ten years, imprisonment for the rape of a 16-year-old Washington high school girl during a blackout in March.

Moore, who had maintained a surly attitude throughout his preliminary hearing trial, broke down and wept and nearly collapsed as he was led from the courtroom after sentence was pronounced.

William Collins, Negro of Aquasco, Md., was sentenced to 15 years, imprisonment for the second-degree murder of Henry Douglas, Negro.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., June 2.—A sentence of life imprisonment was imposed on 17-year-old James A. Anderson of Glen Echo, Md., today after he was found guilty of rape by a jury which earlier heard him declare defiantly that he "had a desire to kill someone" every time he became intoxicated.

The Washington County Circuit Court jury deliberated 58 minutes on charges that the youth raped a 36-year-old Social Security worker at her Glen Echo home last February 21 during a wild spree which also involved a gun battle with police.

Before sentencing, Judge D. Lindley Sloan declared that it was "an extremely strange case."

"Here is a boy not a man, who perhaps never will be a man. He has resented authority of any kind since the time he was a small boy."

Asserting that the boy apparently had a "too-indulgent" mother, the jurist added, "He had a lifelong grudge against policemen and is genuinely a bad boy."

"This case," he continued, "is a mockery on the liquor business in that a boy 17 years old became a drunkard."

Before the case went to the jury, Anderson startled the courtroom by assailing all policemen, saying: "I just don't like them."

Not a flicker of emotion was evident on his drawn face when the jury returned its verdict.

Anderson testified that he was intoxicated on the night of February 21, and admitted entering the home of the woman. He stated, however, that he did not remember assaulting her or entering her bedroom as she testified yesterday. He declared that he did not think that he could have committed the crime, drunk or sober.

At another point in his testimony, he acknowledged that he had been a "bad boy" and then told the court and jury of his past record. He described in detail the number of times he had been arrested, what he had stolen, and his terms in reformatories.

His mother, Mrs. Ruth Naomi Devine, had testified Monday that her son had been in trouble since he entered school ten years ago and that on the night of February 21, he was "paralyzed drunk."

District Girl Scouts to Make Rounds in Collection of Jars And Bottles for Hospitals Here

By Genevieve Reynolds

ANY bottles today, lady? Small or large ones will do, provided they have caps or stoppers. If no bottles, surely you have some old cosmetic jars. Should the District Girl Scouts made such a plea—and they will—clean off your shelves and clear out your cellar. All collected will be turned over to the city's hospitals, which need them badly.

Not only are the Girl Scouts knocking on each door in the city for bottles and jars, but are making and delivering 1000 bedside bags a week to the hospitals. The bags are made of newspapers and are used in surgical wards as well as at the side of hospital beds. Today many of the troops will be delivering these bags to the hospitals. District 1 is furnishing bags for Gallinger and Providence Hospitals, District 2 concentrates on Georgetown, while District 3 provides for Providence and Children's.

Now the only hitch is—the hospitals need more and more such paper bags. Purpose of making the bags is to relieve the overworked nurses in the Washington hospitals.

Requests also are pouring in for additional 40-inch triangular bandages used by the city's rescue squads. Any color of bandages is acceptable so long as it is of strong materials.

Because of the needs—the Girl Scouts will be doing a heap of requesting as well as working all through the long, hot summer months.

Gracious Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin (above) is Twentieth Century Club's president for 1942-'43. Well known in club circles, she often has held important offices in organizations throughout the city. Presiding over large groups will be no novelty for her.

Mrs. Broadus Bryan Wright (above) is the newly elected president of the Young Married Women's Club. The club is composed of a group of young married women of the city who meet for luncheon and get-acquainted pow-wows at the Y. W. C. A.

To Honor Mrs. Wagner

IT'S OFF to Philadelphia for Mrs. William H. Wagner, retiring president of the National Mothers Memory Club. But before she leaves Washington to make her home in Pennsylvania, the club honors her with a luncheon tomorrow at 1 o'clock at 3000 Tilden Street Northwest.

Newly elected officers of the club include Mrs. John Madison Kerr, president; Mrs. Harry R. Fulton, first vice president; Mrs. Franklin T. Baldwin, second vice president; Mrs. Robert Carroll, recording secretary; Mrs. Hallie S. Chunn, corresponding secretary. Also Mrs. R. S. Knox, treasurer; Mrs. Frank P. Litschert, chaplain; Mrs. David Snyder, registrar; Mrs. Robert Post, historian, and Mrs. Ellwood Meyers, organizing secretary.

Mrs. Meyer Schoenthal succeeds Mrs. Wagner as the club's representative to the board of lady managers for the Aged Woman's Home.

Did You Know . . . ?

THAT—Mrs. Albert I. Butler is Pro Bonata Club's champion bridge player. For the second year in succession she has walked off with the club's loving cup. Also she turned over the president's gavel to Mrs. Bert L. Williams for the ensuing year.

THAT—Several members of the American Women's Voluntary Services are full-fledged public speakers. At least those graduating from Mrs. Hugh Butler's speech class of the A. W. V. S. are ready to take to the platform, Mrs. R. L. Ragg, wife of a member of the British Air Commission, won first prize among the speech graduates. Runner-up for first prize was Mrs. McGenery Werlich. Second prize was bagged by Mrs. Benjamin Weems with Mrs. Ray R. Gilchrist, following at a hair's width. All class members will receive final grades and be placed on the panel of the speakers' bureau. Graduate speakers include, in addition to the prize winners, Mrs. J. M. Crom, Mrs. A. B. Herman, Mrs. John B. Martin, jr., Mrs. Elizabeth Newrath, Mrs. F. Parker, Mrs. Conyers Read, Mrs. Harold Sinton, Mrs. Arthur Stanton, Mrs. Guy Arnold, Mrs. Mary Sutter, Mrs. C. F. Clayton, Mrs. Sidney Lansburgh, jr., Mrs. John Norton, Mrs. Ray Wakefield, Mrs. Jerry Houseal and Mrs. George Baker.

THAT—Alice Eversman, music critic of the Evening Star, will head the Newspaper Women's Club of Washington for the 1942-1943 season. She was elected president at a recent meeting of the club.

Others in the new group of officers include Sophue Pool Kepner, first vice president; Jackie Martin of the Chicago Sun, second vice president; Emma Perley Lincoln, corresponding secretary; Grace Fry, Columbia (Tenn.) Daily Herald, recording secretary; Margaret Germond of the Evening Star, treasurer, and Leila Bathon, Army and Navy Register, historian.

The board of governors is composed of the following members: Marie McNair, Times Herald; Gretchen Smith, Evening Star, and Alice Hutchins Drake, Haskin Syndicate.

THAT Morgan Beatty, radio commentator, who was guest speaker at the Takoma Park Women's Club's annual luncheon yesterday, told his listeners, "If the Government keeps on taking care of us, we won't be in a position to take care of the Government."

Also he urged the club members to seek their own information. He pointed out that Hitler dished out the type of propaganda information but he hoped none of his people would ever catch up with the true facts.

"Know what you have faith in and why you have faith in it," said Mr. Beatty.

Representative Katharine E. Byron of Maryland who was an honor guest of the club, discussed "Women's Part in the War." She was introduced by Mrs. Lloyd Biddle.

Mrs. George G. Sward, who was installed as president for the second term, was presented with the President's pen by Mrs. Paul Burk, a former club president.

Officers Installed

WITH A BIT of levity and a great deal of dignity, Pro Bonata Club installed its new officers at a recent banquet held at Hotel 2400. Mrs. Bert L. Williams was installed as president and Mrs. Ennis Almond as first vice president.

Others taking the oath of office included Mrs. J. W. Dunham, second vice president; Miss Iantha Hodge, treasurer; Mrs. Katherine Beale, recording secretary; Mrs. Herbert Wilson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Albert I. Butler, director to the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Walter Jaeger, alternate director.

A committee, headed by Mrs. Chester Thom, is in charge of candy sales. Assisting on the committee are Mrs. Robert Baldwin, Mrs. Belle Penn, Miss Marie Yates and Mrs. Marie Seddicum. Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, president of the chapter, greets the guests.

Recent Elections

POLITICS continue full swing in the District chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution. In fact, election and installation of officers are the main business of the various chapters now.

Mrs. Everard Meade is the new regent of Our Flag Chapter Other officers named at the recent meeting include: Mrs. Mason Smith, vice regent; Mrs. Lloyd Morrison, chaplain; Mrs. Benjamin M. Connelly, recording secretary.

Also, Mrs. L. Bruce Hord, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George Eastment, treasurer; Mrs. Gary E. Walters, registrar; Mrs. Constance Goodwin, historian; Miss Alice Haslup, delegate, and Mrs. Edgar Smith, alternate.

Heading the Col. James McCall Chapter as regent for the ensuing year is Mrs. Edwin F. Sheffey, who was named to that post at a recent meeting of the chapter.

Other officers elected include: Mrs. William A. Lesher, vice regent; Mrs. Shober E. Sapp, chaplain; Mrs. Arthur Sanders, recording secretary; Miss Lucile Twogood, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward Widmayer, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Zeh, registrar, and Mrs. Walter Bramhall.

Mrs. Wayne Birsdell, retiring regent, was presented with the former regent's pen.

The chapter will hold its June luncheon at 1:30 p. m., June 11 at the Kenesaw Apartments. Mrs. Geoffrey Cryke, State regent, will be the guest of honor.

Mrs. George W. Muller recently was elected regent of Manor House Chapter, D. A. R., and Miss Helen Montgomery was named vice regent for the ensuing year.

Other officers elected include Miss Eunice R. Porter, chaplain; Miss Kansas Byers, recording secretary; Miss Mary B. Nelson, corresponding secretary; Miss Sue V. Hess, treasurer; Mrs. Robert C. Tracy, assistant treasurer; Miss Mary Lee Goddard, registrar; Mrs. C. H. Davey, historian, and Miss Minnie C. Hunt, delegate.

Deborah Knapp Chapter at its recent meeting elected Mrs. Errett Wallace, regent, and Mrs. Marcy S. Gill, vice regent.

Sen. Connally Is Main Speaker At National Park Graduation

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, speaking at National Park College commencement exercises at Forest Glen, Md. yesterday, told graduates and Latin-American diplomats that "the people of the American Republics of the Western Hemisphere are today more keenly conscious of the desirability and necessity of bringing up and strengthening our ideals of free government and economic collaboration than at any time in our history."

The exercises were dedicated to the furtherance of Latin-American solidarity, with diplomatic representatives of South American countries on hand to receive honorary certificates from Dr. Roy Tasco Davis, president of the college, who was formerly in the United States diplomatic service in Latin America.

"It is the duty and obligation of statesmen and educators of our respective countries to bring about the development and advancement of the influences and forces in such fashion as to redound to our national cultural improvement and advancement," Senator Connally said. "The good neighbor policy is but a symbol of our common purpose to bring about these ends."

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, gave the invocation and benediction. Marion Claire, opera and radio star, also sang.

Seven ambassadors and ministers of Latin-American countries were awarded honorary certificates by Dr. Davis. The diplomats were Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ambassador of Ecuador; Dr. Ernesto Jaen Guardia, Ambassador of Panama; Dr. Adriano Recinos, Minister of Guatemala; Dr. Hector David Castro, Minister of El Salvador; Dr. Leon DeBayle, Minister of Nicaragua; Dr. Julian R. Caceres, Minister of Honduras, and Dr. Luis Fernandez, Minister of Costa Rica. Honorary certificates will also be forwarded to leaders of education in the same countries.

One hundred and ten girls received diplomas. Faculty members in their robes led the procession of graduates who wore long white dresses and carried bouquets of spring flowers. Relatives and friends from 40 States and Latin-American countries attended.

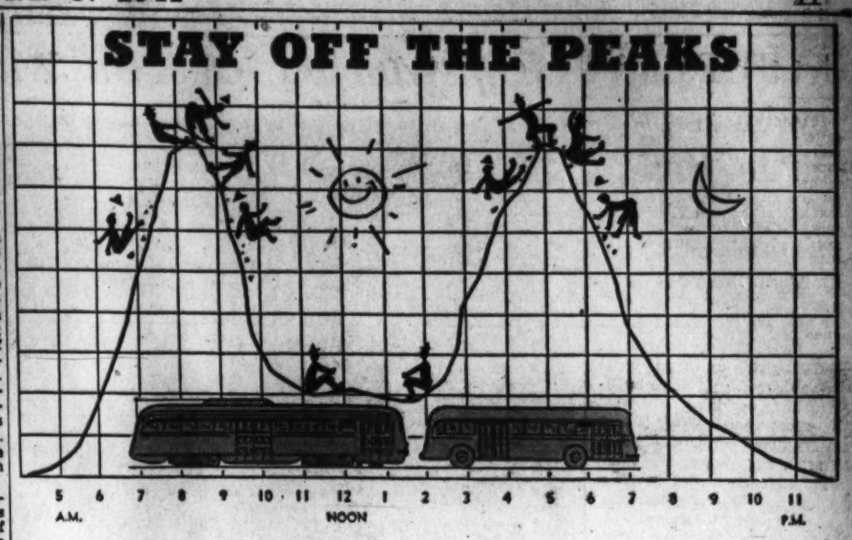
Miss Darlington Entertains Pen Women

Miss Ann Darlington, first prize winner in the biennial contest conducted by the National League of American Pen Women, entertained the other ten members of the District branch, who won prizes in the same contest, at her home, 1810 Massachusetts Avenue, last night.

Miss Darlington, who is one of the founders and a past president of the Greece-American Society, which celebrated its twenty-first anniversary at her home last January, has turned her backyard into a classical Greek garden, with columns and wall masks of Athena, Pan, Aphrodite and Artemis.

The prize-winning guests included: Mrs. Eloise Liddon Soper, Mrs. Cora Frear Hawkins, Mrs. Elizabeth Merz Butterfield, Mrs. Rowena Farrar, Miss Anna Priestley, Mrs. Ida Elaine James, Mrs. Marion Everett Hayn, Miss Katherine Parker Melton, Mrs. Eva Grant Marshall, and Miss Alethea Todd Alderson.

THE ROMA WINE & LIQUOR CO., Washington, D. C.



The peaks are rush hours. Rush hours when a third of Washington's population is traveling to or from work.

Help Washington's War Effort. Help ease travel problems for our war workers. Don't travel during rush hours unless you MUST. Run errands, visit, go on shopping trips BETWEEN the peaks.

The valleys in this chart show you the times of day and night when travel is light. Travel during those hours if you can.

You'll save time and you'll enjoy more travel comfort. Most important, you'll contribute to Washington's War Effort in a practical way.

Joseph E. Davies was U. S. Ambassador to Russia from the time of its treason trial purges to Hitler's move against Czechoslovakia. He saw in the making the amazing measures Stalin has taken for defense against enemies within and without his nation.

In confidential dispatches to the State Department, in personal and official correspondence and in a careful diary, Mr. Davies described and recorded what he saw. By special permission of U. S. government authorities—permission granted because publication was so "definitely in the public interest"—the former ambassador presented what he had written in a book, "Mission to Moscow." It quickly became and has continued to be a national top best-seller.

Again in the public interest, "Mission to Moscow" now has been released for presentation serially to newspaper readers. From first chapter to last, you will find it as absorbing as it is authoritative. It

Make-up for Legs Solves Problem Of Hose 'Runners'

By Carolyn Abbott.
The Post Beauty Editor

WE'RE giving up sugar! We're using up our shoes! We're "making up" our stockings!

Now that warm weather is here legs are doing a right-about-face and are being taken at face value instead of being veiled in filmy hose. To save wear and tear, and have cool comfort, some persons are pouring their "stockings" from a bottle.

In these corner-cutting times so as to have money for defense bonds, income taxes and other worthy causes, this new leg film offers great savings. No snags, no runs, and about 20 pairs of liquid hose from one bottle of leg film.

An Arden Creation

This innovation creaed by a nationally known cosmetician is equally effective for daytime or evenig wear and will keep the legs groomed all the time, whether you are doing war work, shopping, working in an office or going about socially.

To make the "stocking" you pour the liquid into the palm of the hand and stroke your legs with a sweeping, upward motion until you obtain a smooth finish. Its slight sheen makes it look as sheer and lovely as the finest hose. To remove the film, you simply wash off with soap and warm water.

And if you want to delude your public you can draw a thin line up the back of the leg with an eyebrow pencil. Those whose ankles are not on the trim side will find this line gives a slenderizing effect.

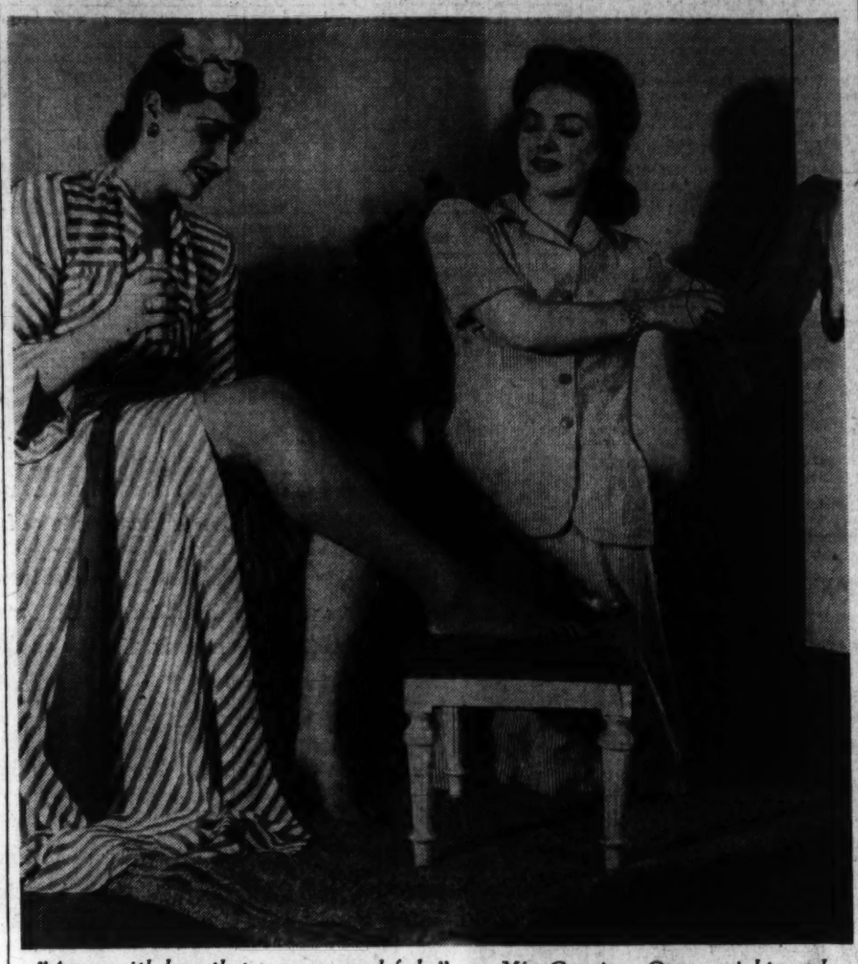
Cream Readies Skin

Of course, you have to make the legs ready for the film application. A whipped cream-like depilatory is the way to smoothness. The cream is smoothed on to the thickness of a dime, and after 10 to 15 minutes removed with a spatula that comes with the cream. Next the legs are washed with warm water—without benefit of soap—and left with a pleasant soft smoothness. After thorough drying, a non-sticky hand lotion is applied. Next morning you are ready to pour on your new hose.

The leg film is available in two lovely shades—Sun Beige, a rosy shade, striking with rich colored costumes and navy blue and black as well, and Sun Bronze, an appealing suntan color, which gives arresting appeal to white and pastels.

Red lacquer is considered the best color if toe nails are to be given a liquid polish. And still another aid for those persons who do not like the feel of the shoes without hose, is sanitary foot protection supplied by a small cotton stocking "dicky," called Peds. This "dicky" also absorbs perspiration so that the shoe lining is not spoiled. It may be obtained in all stocking sizes and washed as are hose.

Off With the Old—On With the New



"Away with hose that snag, run and fade," says Miss Courtney Owens, right, as she whisks away Miss Achsah Bowie Dorsey's discarded "sock." Achsah, left, is applying a bronze "stocking" from a bottle of leg film. This liquid gives an opaque finish, is easy to apply, hides imperfections, lends a chiffon sheen to legs and washes off readily. For further information call National 4200, Extension 259

Arrange Rouge to Flatter Face

Did you know you could change the shape of your face by the way you apply your rouge? Rouge can flatter the face, emphasize a fine contour or correct a faulty one. On the other hand, improperly applied it can call attention to any fault you may have. C. B. S. Organist Louise Wilcher, who has a round face, asked a cosmetician exactly how she should apply her rouge to achieve a longer look.

The expert showed her how by blending the rouge further in on her face it gave a much leaner look, and then went on to explain that the application of rouge should start on the upper cheek in a direct line with the pupil of the eye (never nearer the nose).

However, if you have a narrow face, blend the rouge out, or be it fairly wide, apply the rouge in an inverted triangle, rather long and narrow, with its three points just below the pupil, the cheekbone and opposite the nostril (never lower).

For a long face, broaden and shorten the triangle. Incidentally, a touch of rouge to the tip of your chin, will shorten your face. Study yourself in the mirror, determine the shape of your face, then try one of these new methods and you'll be surprised at the improvement.

Novel Wall Papering For Bedroom

Despite all the talk about war priorities, rationing and scarcity of commodities, nobody has heard about a shortage of cotton in this country—and nobody will. That's one home product we're not likely to run out of.

So it's bound to be put to many uses. And a clever instance is to be seen on the set of Edward Small's "Miss Annie Rooney," in Shirley Temple's dressing room.

Not only are its window draperies and furniture upholstery done in white chintz, printed in a rose pattern, but the four walls are "papered," from top to bottom, with the same charming, gay and utterly feminine material.

Something to remember for her next bedroom, says Shirley.

Man Says That Husband May Be Technically Faithful To Wife, Yet Sin Against Marriage and Impair Psychic Unity by Entertaining Wishful Thoughts of Adultery

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As a reader of your helpful column for nearly eight years, may I submit further comment on the problem of "Distressed Husband," which you discussed on May 29? I, too, have been an unworthy and therefore distressed husband. I have been through an experience similar to his; and, thanks to God's grace working through the fine soul of my wife, our marriage was saved and restored on a higher and lasting level,—precisely because she proved strong, generous and Christian enough to help me overcome, instead of mourning, my weakness.

However, as a deeply repentant sinner (like "Distressed Husband"), I feel very definitely that in failing to reprimand him for his flirtation with his secretary,—which lapse from loyalty has destroyed his wife's faith in his decency,—you were far too lenient toward all such betrayers-of-trust, male and female. Let us not lightly condone such misconduct as a peccadillo (i. e., slight offense or fault),—when Jesus Christ, Whom supposedly we accept as our model and guide, plainly told us that whosoever lusteth after another in his heart has committed adultery already. Whether or not we are prepared to live up to this standard of purity, Christ spoke God's truth in the matter,—as even modern psychiatry at its best will affirm. So let us who sin against that standard admit our fundamental guilt, without standing on technicalities of man-made sex conventions.

Also, sound and good as was your advice to his wife,—to make this "time-of-reckoning an occasion for mutual forgiveness and chastened renewal of marriage vows; by purging her mind of pestilent thoughts, opening her heart to compassion and penitence, and dedicating herself to the proposition of starting anew with her husband to restore by faith and action, the trust and confidence that have been so badly shaken,"—sound and good as was this advice, I would like to suggest from my own experience and observation, that she may not be so much to blame as you imply. You say: "Through her own faults of omission and commission through the years, she doubtless has been largely instrumental in bringing her present dismay upon herself."

I suggest that the destructive factor may have had its sole origin in the husband's unclean mental promiscuity. And I wonder whether, even with the exercise of the most extraordinary good will and tolerance, a couple in such a situation can effect complete reconciliation without experiencing a recreative, newborn awareness of the basic spiritual meaning and purpose of marriage. Granted that this advance in spiritual awareness is achieved only through suffering—the only school in which life's big lessons are taught, so fallen are we—still, maybe the distilled essence of what I have learned can be at least partially transmitted to "Distressed Husband," his wife and others similarly groping.

We Ignore, at Great Cost, Our Spiritual Nature

I HAVE FOUND that we human beings simply cannot live good lives on the basis of a philosophy that embraces mind and matter only. All the world's best religions, as well as the most advanced psychical research and metaphysical science, impart convincing proof and demonstration, to all who care to investigate, of the existence of an important, primary but neglected aspect of man's being—the spiritual or psychic nature. And this spiritual nature is paramount in his personality, because it is the only (potentially) permanent aspect of his individual existence. Thus, the whole justification of our existence lies in progressively spiritualizing our minds and bodies—and thus, our social relationships and material environment, as well. By "spiritualizing," I mean the conscious purification and elevation of oneself and all one's relationships, through the invocation of God's power—made manifest in love, truth and justice.

So long as we draw upon only two-thirds of the growth-power resident in our nature and faculties, we must expect to fail and to suffer,—as the private tragedies and universal public disasters of our age conclusively demonstrate. So long as we refuse to give Spirit its due primary place in our lives, our minds must inevitably continue to worry and break; and our bodies continue to experience pain and disease. And so long will social and political and military conflict contin[illegible] to destroy us,—and such partial good as we manage to achieve. So long s all we pursue our self-willed road to suicide. Thus through suffering do we learn that God's blessing and the spiritual qualities He confers upon those who do His will are the inexhaustible source of love and peace to everyone whose mind and heart are open to them.

Now, marriage is the preeminent human relationship in the great university of social relationships, in which we may learn to perceive and apply the laws of Spiritual Good. In the spiritualized union or fusion of man and woman (those complementary opposites), harmony and happiness must be first attained on the human plane, before these beneficient influences can overflow and irradiate society as a whole. And in order that the love which unites husband and wife may withstand and overcome all selfish tendencies and temptations, it must be beautifully interwoven with a shared love of God the Father—Who gives them such deep, creative joy.

The spiritual first purpose of marriage is to grow in love—a love which, like our spiritual selves, will survive the "change of consciousness" that we call death. Whether one believes, with the orthodox religionists, that this life is the only opportunity we are given, in which to perfect love; or whether one feels, as I do, that the hypothesis of many earth-lives is more logical and fair—the direct challenge remains the same: learn to love spiritually or suffer!

Finally, I suggest to your audience that this whole problem of marital infidelity is illuminatingly discussed, from the original viewpoint of metaphysical philosophy, in an interesting (if inadequate) novel, "The Presence," written by Ethel Charles. The Library of Congress has the book. Along with much teaching, it outlines what must have been the actual experiences of the author, a spiritually minded young woman living in Washington during the last great war. I know that a receptive reading of this strange work can help some of us confused sinners. And in conclusion, dear Miss Haworth, I thank you for your patient attention; but above all, for your very helpful work. Sincerely, H. G. W.

Spiritual Teacher To Lecture Here

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read your column quite faithfully and admire the sincerity and good judgment displayed in your handling of many difficult problems of human adjustment. I am particularly sympathetic toward your frequent recommendation of the books of Dr. Emmet Fox and Judge T. Troward—whose spiritual teachings you rightly believe suggest the solution of mankind's psychic and social frustrations.

I should like to take this opportunity to tell you and your readers that Emmet Fox will be in Washington, June 8, to deliver one lecture at 8:15 p. m., in the auditorium on the thirteenth floor of the National Press Building at Fourteenth and E Streets Northwest. His topic is: "The Solution of World Problems Through Scientific Thinking." I can truthfully say that those who have known Dr. Fox only through his writings will find his lecture even more enlightening. Sincerely,
F. J.

Walking and Daily Exercises Will Aid Shapeliness of Legs

By Ida Jean Kain

EXERCISE as a normalizer—it tones the muscles and gives a firm contour. A firm contour means a prettier curve from calf to ankle.

What's perfect in leg measurements differs with structure. With fine bones, your legs may measure from 11¾ inches to 12½ inches at the calf and from 7½ to 8 inches at the ankle. If you were more solidly built, your legs might be just as good but measure from 12½ to 14 inches at the calf and from 8 to 8½ inches at the ankle.

Neat Legs

A neat pair of legs must have that calf-to-ankle taper. This depends mainly on musculature. Flabby muscles make for a straight up-and-down line which makes thin legs look thinner and fat legs look massive.

Walking will eventually come close to curing what might be wrong with your legs. But you can speed things up with the right kind of exercise. To develop nicer calf muscles, do this exercise:

Walk about your room on your toes—shoes off, of course—and every ten steps come down on your heels, hard. That will give you plenty of contraction with an occasional stretch. If you can do the bicycling exercise, well and good. Flop down on the floor on your shoulders, and fling your legs up in the air. Have your hands under your hips as a brace and pedal away. Or, better yet, use a real bicycle.

Stretch Exercise

If your legs are too large, they will improve rapidly with leg-stretchers. Stand on a large book with the ball of your foot on the book, and point the heel downward until it touches the floor. Or do the same thing on the stairs with both feet. Rise on the toes, then point the heels down below step level. Repeat 10 times.

Another good leg stretcher is to sit on the floor, legs straight out in front, reach over and grasp the toes and pull them toward you. Relax, and pull again. Also, walk about your room on your heels, with toes turned up. And do the bicycle exercise in a different way: Flop your legs back overhead with your heels pointed, and touch alternate toes to floor. If you do it correctly, this can be an excellent general exercise. Keep your stomach muscles firm.

Eye Make-up

Ginny Simms applies shadow with an eye pencil. Using a well-sharpened brown grease pencil, she draws a line along her upper lid as near the lashes as possible. Then, moistening her finger with a hint of vaseline, she smooths the line up and out until it makes a faint color at the edge of the lid—imperceptible as shadow yet flattering to the eyes.

For Soldier-Sailor Partying Wear Gay, Feminine Clothes

The feminine romantic type of dress that girls who go dancing with service men are advised to wear is here worn by Shirley Temple, who in her next picture, "Miss Annie Rooney," plays a sub-deb with boy friends. The frock is a deep rose made of many yards of net, the bodice sprinkled with sequins. It was copied from a dress in Shirley's own wardrobe, and will be worn in a party scene in the picture

Colors That Give A 'Lift' Advised In Y. W. C. A. Tips

Feminine styles in colors that give a lift are advised for the girl who goes dancing with service men. This suggestion is contained in the Girls' Service Organization manual, published by the Army and Navy Department of the National Capital of Y. W. C. A.'s of the United States of America.

This booklet goes to 65,000 girls as far south as Key West, Fla., and as far north as Anchorage, Alaska. Under the heading, "G. S. O. Style Tips," there is much provocative material on how to dress for the interesting job of providing recreation for soldiers and sailors in the form of dances, parties, and special entertainment. The fact, says the booklet, that "we give up three or four nights a week to entertain the boys indicates a willingnes to make them feel at home in our community, but we need more than a will to make a stranger feel at home." Here is some of the "G. S. O. for the the U. S. O." philosophy:

It's Not How Much You Spend

"Every bright girl knows that she dresses to please men. Today, more than ever, she must be aware of the feminine little fact. If she doesn't dress up in this present work, she is surely letting the men down. Whether you get into an evening dress for one of your formal dances, or dress informally for a barn dance, the same careful selection should go into your clothes.

"It doesn't matter how much you spend, but it does matter how feminine you look. The most appealing and glamorous clothes a girl can possibly wear are evening clothes. A long dress that suits your type does wonders for a man's morale. Here, again, it doesn't matter how much you spend, but it does matter what color you select. It should not only be a shade that becomes you, but it should be a color that will cheer the boys."

Colors Reflect Your Mood

"Color," says the manual, "has a definite psychological effect on the observer as well as the wearer. Colors you wear reflect your mood."

"Don't forget," warns the Style Tips, "that the men you meet, talk and dance with are in uniform. They wear blue, gray, or khaki day in and day out. The wise girl will therefore not wear these unrelieved colors. A fresh flower and a colored handkerchief can brighten a costume immeasurably. Unrelieved red is not a good color to wear, so combine it with green or white. Pink and blue are always good and, alone or combined, they are the most appealing colors you could wear.

"White is cool and fresh looking, but do add another color and make it a little more interesting. Steer clear of beige without contrasting accessories. It's too near khaki to be attractive alone."

Tatting Is Due For Comeback

If you are the proud possessor of a grandmother who can tat (to make a kind of narrow lace with a hand shuttle), you'd better go sit at her feet and learn how. What with priorities, your clothes will soon be simpler, and with the war, trimmings will be scarcer. So designers predict a return to hand-made details—and tatting is one.

This old-fashioned art was revived to edge the shirt collar of a simple summer frock which Jane Randolph wears in RKO Radio's "Highways By Night." Dress is soft grey, collar and tatting white.

The Gentler Sex

Antidote to Slacks

IT'S to be ballet skirts if Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey has her way. Fearful of losing her fight against the present trouser trend, the ever resourceful president of the Do Something About It League is offering women the counter attraction of still shorter skirts.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"I have fought slacks indefatigably for years," Mrs. DeGoofey told her press conference yesterday, "and I have not given up the fight yet. The fact that virtually all of the men of the country are behind me is encouraging. However, every woman of size 18 and over seems absolutely determined to get into slacks in spite of the esthetic consequences."

"I thought you were a champion of women," interposed a columnist for the Men Are as Good as Women Magazine.

"Only when they are in their saner moments," was the reply. "And women who are rushing to get into bifurcated garments are certainly showing signs of mental aberration."

Not Designed For Street Parade

"Now understand, I have no quarrel with the woman who wears overalls, work trousers or even slacks so she may carry on her duties more efficiently in a munitions plant or a factory. What I object to is shopping, partying, careering and street parading in slacks."

"Isn't your viewpoint somewhat reactionary?" asked an assistant to a head copy boy.

"On the contrary, my viewpoint is very advanced," was the retort. "In my short, short skirt, I am offering women the apparel trend of the future—a garment that provides much greater comfort than trousers of any kind and that offers more revealment and more possibilities for attention getting."

Mrs. DeGoofey warned that women in yielding to the slacks craze were unwittingly putting themselves into "sartorial slavery."

"What, I ask you," she declaimed, "is as confining, as uncomfortable, as insanitary, as not and as generally lacking in grace as trousers? Women would be fools to exchange the freedom of skirts for the confinement of breeches. Men are fools not to exchange their uncomfortable pants for the comfort of the toga."

Men's Attire Antiquated

"Why should women imitate men in their clothing?" continued Mrs. DeGoofey, "During the last few years they have been stealing more and more of men's attire. Now, as everyone knows, man's antiquated attire has shown absolutely no advance, no improvement in ages. And yet women, instead of improving their own styles, have been turning to men's for inspiration."

"But don't you think women are donning trousers as a sign of their new independence" asked a subdeb society reporter.

"Heavens no!" was the answer. "No woman ever donned any kind of clothes for independence or freedom. She is donning slacks now because other women are donning them, because she thinks the wearing of them marks her as up to snuff in style, and because when she wears them men will look—and perhaps whistle—even though they must disapprove."

"What are your anti-pants campaign plans for the summer?" asked a home-front morale reporter.

"For one thing I shall ask the WPB to freeze skirts at a much higher level—probably well above the knees. I feel that the woman in the ballet skirt will create just as much attention on the street as the one in a tight-fitting slacks outfit. I am also starting a movement to induce the members of the Senate to don togas—which would be far more flattering to their figures than their present outfits. And I am asking some of our best dressed men to help popularize Scotch kilties. Once women see men in skirts I anticipate a great rush to that form of attire."

Actress Revamps Evening Dresses

Hollywood, Calif. — Wartime troubles are no novelty to Michele Morgan, who has been in this country only a year and a half. She early learned how to buy each ensemble with an eye to next year. One way she manages is to buy dinner suits for informal evening wear—tailored jacket, long slim skirt. These she selects in white or pastel colors. The following year she has the skirt cut short, the suit dyed a darker color—and she has a brand new ensemble for afternoons. The extra material becomes hat and handbag.

Her favorite material for this double-dealing ensemble—garbardne.

Counteract Tired Feeling With Lemon Juice

SUMMER weather offers no fun for anyone with that "tired feeling." This year perhaps more than ever there are tasks which must be done through scorching days and which call for men, women and children who can "take it." Whatever the work may be there is little place in this busy world for run-down or easily fatigued persons.

According to scientific tests, hot weather and fatigue go hand-in-hand, due to the loss of vitamin C through perspiration. This vitamin builds up resistance to fatigue as well as to various ills, and helps to maintain good bone structure. Since vitamin C cannot be stored in the body it must be replenished in large amounts daily.

How can you fool "old Sol" and keep going strong in spite of the heat? Lemons contain an abundant supply of vitamin C. Nothing could be easier than to drink a tall glass of cold lemonade. That's getting good health and refreshment at the same time.

Many industrial plants are serving lemonade as a mid-morning or mid-afternoon pickup for supplying the moisture lost by the body through perspiration and to give additional and needed vitamin C.

You don't have to drink straight lemonade. If you like variety, apple juice combined with an equal amount of lemon juice gives a new flavor appeal. Two tablespoons of lemon juice added to 1 cup grape juice gives new zest, and lemon juice added to orange juice is also appealing.

But there are many ways in which lemons can provide added health and flavor—ways which may be conveniently incorporated in daily menus. Health-giving main courses, meats and fish, sauces, numerous vegetables, as well as desserts, offer much to this challenge.

The lemon used in preparing stewed veal will insure dietetic balance. Prepare it in this way:

Stewed Veal With Lemon

Melt ¼ cup butter or other shortening with 1 chopped onion. Add 2 pounds veal and brown meat, turning often to prevent burning. Remove, add 1 teaspoon flour to butter, stir, add a little cold water, more hot water and put meat cut into pices back into the gravy. Cover and let stew until tender—about 1½ hours. Before serving, add juice of ½ lemon to gravy.

Vegetables too need lemons. Beets take on appeal when their flavor is accented with the use of lemon and in the following manner:

Victory Garden Beets

Wash 6 medium-sized beets and put into boiling, salted water and cook until tender. Then put into cold water and remove skins. Cut the beets lengthwise into small pieces. Make a sauce of ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup flour, 1 cup hot water, salt and 1-3 cup of lemon juice which should be added last. Mix the sauce with the beets, reheat and serve.

Afternoon Parties at Bolivian Embassy and Thai Legation Draw Notables in Droves

MAKING THEIR APPOINTED rounds yesterday, several dozen party-going Washingtonians thanked their stars that the two largest fetes of the afternoon were less than a block apart.

From 5:30 to 7:30 the Bolivian Ambassador and Senora de Gauchalla received at the Embassy, 2200 Kalorama Road. During the same hours the Minister of Thailand and Mme. Seni Pramoj were greeting an endless line of guests at the Thai Legation, a few steps down the same street. Most members of the Diplomatic Corps who turned out for one event dropped by the other before the afternoon was over.

A party for three purposes was the one at the Bolivian Embassy. Primarily it was arranged in compliment to Gen. David Toro, chief of the Bolivian Purchasing Commission, and Senora de Toro, who have been in Washington for some time. Secondly, the party was the first given since the status of Bolivian envoy was moved up from minister to ambassador; and thirdly, the fete was a sort of welcome-back-to-Washington for the hostess herself, who recently returned from an extended visit in South America.

Sculpture and Artist Get Spotlight

A number of guests who lingered in the drawing room paid special attention to a sculpture of Senora de Guachalla, which was done by the noted Bolivian sculptress Marina Nunez del Prado. The artist herself, wearing the biggest black hat I have seen this season, was also a special center of attention.

The long table in the dining room was conveniently arranged at a diagonal angle and was centered with a bouquet of pink carnations in a silver bowl. The garden, however, was the favored spot of the afternoon, and there most of the guests gathered . . . and lingered.

Among those present: The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, chatting at length with Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller . . . Export-Import Bank President Warren Lee Pierson, just back from Mexico, telling friends he was still deaf in one ear—having flown over the highest mountain south of the Rio Grande . . . Argentine Ambassador Felipe Espil, making the rounds quickly and seeming to know everybody present . . . Mrs. Robert Knowlton with her sisters, Senoritas Marta and Graciela Trucco . . . Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mrs. Thomas Burke, the Ambassador of Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay; Laurence Duggan, Maj. Winant Johnston, Nelson Rockefeller, Gen. Blanton Winship, the Chilean Ambassador; Rodolfo Michels, arriving with his daughter Cristina; Mme. Ricardo Alfaro and the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos were among others in the crowd that filled the garden and the dining room for well over 2 hours.

Indoor Fete at Thai Legation

"I'll declare—I met the cutest colonel," gurgled a sweet young thing as she departed. "I wish I knew his name," she added.

So far as I could see, colonels—also generals—seemed to be all over the place. And I wish I knew the names of half of them.

Down the street, meanwhile, the Legation of Thailand housed a moving mass of guests, assembled in the second floor drawing rooms. Originally the party had been planned as an outdoor fete and was to be very much like a similar affair given at the legation just a year ago. Lowering clouds, however, prompted the legation powers that be to change their plans and the party followed the usual lines inside. There were 150 guests.

"Wish all Washington parties in one day would be this close together," said Colonel and Senora de Munilla as they made their way from the Bolivian Embassy to the other fete. A number of guests shared their views. Who knows? Perhaps before this gas rationing thing is over there'll be some special arrangement whereby hostesses in one section will take special pains to give parties on the same day—so that guests can walk from one to another, as they did yesterday.

Earlier in the afternoon, another get-together—not a party, just a drop-in-for-a-cup-of-tea affair—accented the calendar for a few friends whom Senora de Blanco, wife of the Ambassador of Uruguay, invited in "after 5 o'clock." Gayly informal, the gathering included only a few friends, invited in as the hostess graciously said, "so we can get better acquainted."

WINDSORIANA: Waving goodby to Washington, the Duchess of Windsor left early yesterday by motor for Baltimore to consult her physician and to visit her uncle and aunt, General and Mrs. Henry Warfield at Timonium, their Maryland estate. She does not plan to return to the Capital but will go directly from Baltimore to New York for a brief visit with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers, who will fly with her back to Nassau.

Accompanying her to Baltimore yesterday was Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman (Aunt Bessie) who was also with her when she made the round of visits Monday afternoon. There was a stop first at 1622 Rhode Island Avenue for a visit with Mrs. George Barnett, who has been laid up with a broken shoulder for some time. Second stop was at the Edgevale Terrace home of Mrs. Mary B. Adams, and then the duchess and her aunt went on to the home of Mrs. Joseph E. Davies for another cup of tea.

Also on the afternoon's schedule was a tea-time visit at the home of another friend. The Duke of Windsor joined his wife there, and it was there he received the telegram which prompted his quick decision to return to the Bahamas. He left by plane shortly after the dinner at the British Embassy Monday night. The duchess plans to return home within a few days.

Britishers Plan Wedding Here

Two Britishers living in Washington will exchange wedding vows in a military ceremony Saturday at 12:30 o'clock, when Miss Joan McCormick becomes the bride of Capt. Harry S. S. Aston in the sacristy of St. Matthew's Cathedral. A reception at the Kennedy-Warren will follow, and then the couple will leave on a wedding journey, as Capt. Aston has a week's furlough from his duties with the British Army Staff here.

Later Captain Aston plans to return to England, but that the trip will be made "soon" and that he does not know its duration is all he had to say on that subject. His bride, who is with the British admiralty delegation, will remain behind.

Miss McCormick, who is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Ruthven of Lincoln, England, will have Miss Margery Trehern for her maid of honor and only attendant. Best man for Captain Aston will be Lieut. Col. R. Bramwell-Davis.

Catharine Fechet Is Bride Of Col. Marshall Bonner

Couple United In Quiet Ceremony At War College Club

The marirage of Miss Catharine Fechet, daughter of Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, U. S. Army, and Mrs. Fechet, to Lieut. Col. Marshall Bonner, U. S. Army, son of Mrs. Ala Bonner of Houston, Tex., took place yesterday in the Officers' Club at the Army War College. Chaplain Austin Hanna officiated at the 6 o'clock ceremony, which was followed immediately by a reception.

The bride was attired in a street length gown of turquoise blue, a small hat trimmed with flowers and veil, and a shoulder corsage of white orchids. Her matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Caruthers Ewing, jr., who wore a white costume with dubonnet hat and gardenia corsage. Maj. Elsworth Ingalls Davis was the best man.

At the reception the bride's mother received guests. She wore a navy blue and yellow ensemble and Mrs. Bonner was costumed in pale green. Both wore corsages of orchids.

Following a wedding trip the couple will reside at the United States Military Academy at West Point, where the bridegroom is an instructor. The former Miss Fechet is well known in Washington, where she made her debut while her father was chief of the Army Air Corps. She has since been secretary to Donald Shepard at the National Art Gallery. Gen. and Mrs. Fechet, who have lived at Laguna Beach, Calif., since his retirement from the Army, returned to Washington recently, where General Fechet is seeing active duty again with the Air Corps. They are making their home on California Street.

Colonel Bonner graduated from the United States Military Academy with the class of '33.

Miss Wilkinson To Be Bridesmaid

Miss Virginia Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil J. Wilkinson of Wesley Heights, will be a bridesmaid at the marriage of Miss Mary Pauline Waltmon, of Austin, Tex., and Ensign Willis Edward Maxson, 3d, at the United States Naval Academy, on June 19.

The bride-elect and Miss Wilkinson are sorority sisters, members of Pi Beta Phi, and have been attending the Universtiy of Texas, where Miss Wilkinson received her bachelor of arts degree on Monday. Accompanied by Miss Waltmon, she will return

Deweys to Give Party For Two Purposes

A dinner with two purposes will be that given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey tomorrow night. The first and foremost reason is to commemorate a wedding anniversary, their second.

The fete might also be termed a "good-by-to-the-house" party, for the place they have occupied through the winter has been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Dixon, who expect to move in about the middle of the month.

Mrs. Connally To Be Feted

A group of prominent women, determined to improve the traffic situation in Washington and to encourage citizens to "share a ride" as often as possible, will take time out for luncheon today in the Senate dinning room, following a special meeting to discuss traffic problems. Senator Harold H. Burton, who is by way of being an expert on the solution of such problems, will be host at the luncheon, and the guest of honor will be Mrs. Tom Connally, a charter member of the Women's Safety Committee, which will be on hand full force.

Others there will be Mrs. George Thorpe, who has served as chairman of the committee for a number of years; Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Garland Ferguson, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Blair Bannister, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, Miss Janet Richardson, Mrs. John Bennett, Mrs. Seth Richardson, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, all of whom are members of the committee.

Still others at the luncheon will include Representative Katharine Byron, Mrs. Daniel Stapleton, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. P. C. Ellett, Mrs. Charles Watkins, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. A. J. Montgomery, Mrs. Russell Singer, Mrs. Ernest Smith, Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Washington I. Cleveland and Mrs. Anne Archbold.

Miss Lynch Plans Wedding In Brazil

A wedding in romantic Rio de Janeiro is awaiting the homecoming of Miss Maria Jose Lynch, who will leave Washington in a few days literally to fly to her fiance, Prof. Charles C. Fenwick.

Of course, flying schedules are a bit on the indefinite side these days, so the exact date for the wedding cannot be set, but it will take place in Brazil very soon—as soon as the bride gets there.

Miss Lynch has just finished a year's course at the Catholic School of Social Service in Washington and she plans to continue her work on the staff of the Technical School of Social Work, to translate liberally. She and Professor Fenwick met in Rio, which is the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lionel Lynch. Brazil as it was under the empire—that was until 1889, when its Portuguese ruler was driven into exile—is remembered by her grandmother, Baroness de Bonsin, who knew the splendor of the royal court well.

Professor Fenwick, who has been in Brazil for two years as a member of the Inter-American Juridical Committee, is there "on loan" from Bryn Mawr College, where he teaches international law. He is a cousin of Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the Undersecretary of War.

As a farewell gesture, Mrs. Patterson was hostess earlier in the week at a tea in Miss Lynch's honor. The fete was small and informal, and about 20 guests gatherer after 4 o'clock at the Patterson's home in Georgetown to wish the bride-elect speed on her journey.

Mrs. Auchincloss And Gen. Olds To Wed Saturday

In a quiet ceremony Saturday afternoon at her home in Georgetown, Mrs. Nina Gore Auchincloss, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Thomas P. Gore, will become the bride of Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, U. S. Army. The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church, will read the marriage vows at 5 o'clock in the presence of the two families.

The couple will make their home in Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Auchincloss was married for the first time to Eugene Vidal, director of air commerce, and later was the wife of the socially prominent Hugh D. Auchincloss of Washington and Newport.

Visitors From Mexico Being Widely Feted

Like many an ordinary couple, Romulu O'Farril and Serona de O'Farril chose a long, rambling trip for their honeymoon weeks, but unlike any ordinary couple they have been feted left and right, formally and informally, during their several days' stay in the Capital.

Last night they were the guests of honor when Representative Frank W. Boykin invited a few friends to join him for "dinner at 8" at the Washington Hotel, where he lives. Representative Boykin had met Senor de O'Farril and his bride, the former Senorita Hilda Avila Camacho, niece of Mexico's President, Manuel Avila Comacho, only a few days ago in the office of the Mexican Ambassador.

On that occasion he was accompanied by his friend, Jack Danciger, who is Consul at Fort Worth, Tex., for Mexico and the Dominican Republic. Mr. Danciger has spent several weeks in Washington as the guest of Representative Boykin and also of Representative Fritz Lanham of Texas, and was present at last night's dinner.

Others on the guest list for the dinner were Senator John Bankhead, 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Duhart, Harold Young, Bruce Hoover of San Antonio, Tex., Riley Smith of Lexington, Va., and several others.

The O'Farrils, whose wedding, Mry 9, in Pueblo City, Mexico, was the highlight event of that city's social season, plan several days' stay in Washington before their itinerary takes them on to New York, Detroit and a number of other cities. Monday they were the guests of the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera at luncheon at the Embassy, and the day before Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker Allen were their hosts at luncheon on the Washington Hotel roof. Other guests at the luncheon were Senator and Mrs. W. Lee O'Daniel and Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Duhart. Later that day they were entertained at a reception at the Embassy.

Mrs. Turnage Plans Party For Visitor

Mrs. Needham C. Turnage will entertain at luncheon at her home on Decatur Street today in honor of Mrs. I. Grant Lazzelle of Morgantown, W. Va. American pillar roses, white snapdragons and blue delphinium will be used throughout the house for the occasion.

Mrs. Lazzelle is the wife of the late Judge I. Grant Lazzelle, who served for many years on the bench of the Circuit Court for Monongalia County, W. Va.

Engagement Announced

MISS GRACE CECILE HEMELT,

whose engagement to William Clifton Clark, jr., United States Army Medical Corps, is announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Francis J. Hemelt. Today is a doubly important date in Miss Hemelt's life, for she also will be graduated from Immaculata Junior College. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Clark and is now stationed at Camp Lee, Va. No date has been set for the wedding

'Baby of Congress' to Essay New Role; Wedding Set for June 27

"The Baby of Congress," 28-year-old Representative Lindley Beckworth of Texas is about to become a benedict. This step is but one in a number of plans he has on tap for the forthcoming summer.

His bride-elect is Miss Eloise Carter of Tyler, Tex., who has just completed her first year at National Park College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Carter, and within the next few days she will be back in her home town to make plans for the wedding, which will take place in the Tyler Baptist Church on June 27.

Although they hail from the same section of the country, Representative Beckworth and Miss Carter did not meet until she came to Washington to enter National Park College.

Representative Beckworth plans to fly to Texas for the wedding; but after a brief honeymoon trip he will be faced with a campaign for reelection. As to whether his bride will electioneer for him, Representative Beckworth says, "We'll see."

Representative Beckworth, who is the son of O. J. Beckworth and the late Mrs. Beckworth, attended East Texas State Teachers College, Sam Houston State Teachers College and Southern Methodist University. He studied law at Baylor University and the University of Texas. This is his second term in Congress.

Mrs. J. B. Kremer Sells Maryland Estate

Definitely becoming a city dweller in her home in Spring Valley is Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer, who has just sold her estate, Mulberry Grove, to William B. Ziff, a publisher of Chicago and New York.

The 850-acre estate on the Port Tobacco River near Port Tobacco, Md., is an historic one. Once the home of John Hanson, famous Revolutionary figure, the estate is entwined with many historical events.

Marilyn Bauer, Courtland Davis To Wed in Fall

Mr. and Mrs. C. William Bauer announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marilyn Bauer, to Courtland Harwell Davis, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Harwell Davis of Alexandria, Va.

Miss Bauer attended National Park College in Forest Glen, where she will be graduated on Tuesday. She is a member of Phi Delta Psi sorority.

Mr. Davis received his B. A. degree at George Washington University and is studying medicine at the University of Virginia. He is a member of the Theta Delta Chi social fraternity and of the Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity.

The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Lieut. Barnes And Bride on Wedding Trip

A wedding trip through the South followed the marriage Saturday of Miss Mary Jess Schafhirt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph J. Schafhirt, and Lieut. John Winthrop Barnes, United States Army Corps of Engineers, son of Col. Elmer E. Barnes, also of the Corps of Engineers, and Mrs. Barnes.

The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiated for the ceremony at 4:30 p. m. at All Souls Memorial Episcopal Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin period gown with bouffant skirt and long train. Her full-length veil of ivory illusion featured a middle panel of Spanish lace, an heirloom in the bride's family. She carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Miss Beth Kramer was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Jean MacLean Barnes, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Edna Kathryn Knowles, Miss Ann Collier and Miss Katharine Jeannette Lease. Lieut. Donald G. Jackson was best man for Lieutenant Barnes, and six classmate from the United States Military Academy at West Point ushered.

A small reception at the bride's home followed the ceremony. Mrs. Barnes attended the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg and is a member of Chi Omega Fraternity. Her husband attended Oregon State College, where he was a member of Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, and was graduated from West Point in the class of 1942.

Many Notables Will Attend Benefit Festival

Many from diplomatic and official circles plan to be present at the Tennis Show and Fashion Festival Saturday afternoon. The event, which will take place at the Edgemoor Country Club, is to be given for the benefit of the British-American Ambulance Corps. Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman is chairman.

Among those who have accepted invitations to attend are the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Escalante; the Ambassador of Chile, Don Rodolfo Michels, whose daughter will take part in the fashion show, the Ambassador of Uruguay and Senora de Blanco, the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Guardia and the Ambassador of the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon.

More on the "accepted" list are Senator and Mrs. Charles McNary, the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, the Minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Hurban, the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Diamantopoulos, the Minister of Canada and Mrs. Leighton McCarthy, the Minister of the Dominican Republic, the Minister of New Zealand and Mrs. Walter Nash.

Post Among Newspapers, 90 Firms Cited for War Savings Contributions

Citations for exemplary contribution to the war savings program were awarded yesterday to 90 local business establishments and to the four Washington newspapers at a luncheon meeting of the District war savings committee in the Mayflower Hotel.

With the citations went the authority to display a special Minute Man flag issued by the Treasury Department to help promote the sale of war savings bonds and stamps. The citations to business firms were awarded on the basis of 90 per cent or more employe participation in the Treasurys payroll savings plan.

J. Clifford Folger, vice chairman of the District savings committee, told the audience of 250 that "we who remain at home do the least that is expected of us when we invest in obligations of our Government.

Receiving the awards in behalf of the papers were Fleming Newbold, vice president and business manager of the Star; William C. Shelton, business manager, Times-Herald; Earl D. Baker, manager, News, and Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of The Post.

CROSS-COUNTRY MOTORCYCLE RIDING is one of the toughest jobs in the Army. This man is a former trick rider, knows the mechanical aspects of his machine as well as its capabilities those on the edge of camp. That is particularly true of tank gunners, who must fire at moving targets from a highly unstable platform. What tanks were available were needed to train drivers and couldn't be tied up at all hours for gunnery practice.

GUNNERY STUDENT ON THE "WOBBLE PLATE," which simulates a tank in motion and gives him the feel of shooting from a moving vehicle. For practice he uses a .37-mm. shell, bored to take a .22-caliber bullet, and saves on ammunition. A .22 costs ½ cent; a .37, $4.35

They solved that here by mounting machine guns and 37-millimeter cannon on platforms which rock and twist and weave sufficiently like a tank in motion to give neophyte gunners just about all they can handle. From these they graduate to tanks and lose little time in transition from wobble plate to lurching tank.

For men who have never handled guns at all, the school has borrowed an idea from the juke joints and found that it works like a charm. They have a room here with guns which fire a beam of light at moving targets with electric eyes built into them. When the student hits the target he hears the satisfying "plop" and sees a light go on to indicate his score.

The fundamental difference between juke joint shooting galleries and those here is that the targets are tanks and soldiers, built to scale, and the guns are exact replicas of service weapons. They have a pistol, a Garand rifle, a submachine gun, and a heavy machine gun, each with the weight and feel of its deadlier prototype.

Models are used a great deal, because tanks and the weapons and vehicles that go with tanks are heavy, cumbersome and expensive to operate. Among these models is a scale map of a portion of English countryside, with roads, fields, trees, houses, hills and valleys reproduced exactly.

Tiny tank models are placed on this huge map and students sit around it while tactical problems are worked out, men under the map moving the model tanks about with magnets.

All this, of course, is preliminary to work with the tanks themselves. Before any officer or man leaves here he is competent to do the job he has been selected for, in tanks, scout cars, assault cars with their 75-millimeter artillery, on motorcycles, in the shop or any other place.

There is no substitute for tanks in teaching tank drivers. They must be placed in the driver's seat, the controls turned over to them and turned loose. They learn by doing and, admirably enough, usually learn quickly.

"Most of them can learn to drive in a couple of days," said a beefy corporal, a full-blood Crow Indian, who was supervising a dusty parade of embryo drivers. "Some of them, a mighty few, though, just can't learn at all, but most learn real quick. Of course, they have to get a lot of experience before they're experts, but they get that by driving."

Unconsciously, he gave a concise index to the rapid growth of the Armored Force.

"I've been here a long time," he said. "I've been here seven months."

In addition to the Armored Force Replacement Center and the Armored Force School, there is another outfit here which provides a final fillip to the training of the Army's fastest-growing branch. This is the Eighth Armored Division.

The Eighth has a function which probably is not paralleled anywhere else in the Army, which in itself is typical of the Armored Force. Its job now is to pick up training where the replacement center and school left off and send out men fitted to take their places at once in the ranks of divisions in the field.

This is made necessary by the growth of the Armored Force immediately and in prospect. Existing armored divisions have been stripped time and again for cadres to form new divisions. Every time 2700 trained men or so are taken from them and replaced by recruits they must slow down long enough to bring these new men up to their own state of training. If that kept up long enough no armored division ever would be ready for the field.

The Eighth fills that gap. Men are assigned to it fresh from the center and the school, placed in armored or infantry regiments, field artillery, engineer, medical, recons and trained intensively in operations within the division frame—naissance or quartermaster battalwork. Then, when a field division is stripped of a cadre, it is replaced by men from the Eighth, trained and ready to go ahead with their new outfit without loss of time.

And, finally, they take newly inducted officers here who have had no opportunity to keep themselves in touch with rapid developments in Armored Force materiel and tactics and give them a refresher course before assigning them to service with troops.

The very foundation of blitzkrieg, the Armored Force is in a never-ending race with time and experience. What our enemies have learned and developed in the finality of battle, it must learn and develop out of its own ingenuity.

It has everything to win battles; it has youth and weight and power and speed.

For aggressiveness is the meat of Armored Force doctrine. There is no place for defense in its mode of fighting, no weapons in its armory designed for [illegible]se.

Out in front of the Army, the steel spearhead of its coming offensives, the Armored Force will make history for itself. Its history, wherever it is made, will be, in the end, the history of modern Fort Knox, the place where tank doctrine is born, where tank fighters are trained, where the future furnishes the pattern for all that is done in the present.

Court Orders Dismissal of Offutt, Select

Justice James W. Morris directed a District Court jury yesterday to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of Dorsey K. Offutt, attorney, and his client Robert J. Sopourn, both charged with conspiracy to violate the Selective Service Act of 1940.

The action followed testimony to the effect that the defendants had received conflicting advice from Selective Service officials on procedure to follow in obtaining deferment for Sopourn. The young selectee claimed he was the father of an unborn illegitimate child.

Prosecution of the case was asked by members of Local Board, No. 3, in a letter to the District Attorney's office after Sopourn sought reclassification one day before his scheduled induction. The defense contended that this was a matter for the draft board, not the courts, and that Sopourn had not been aware of the clause in the draft act providing for deferment under circumstances similar to his.

Fourth Hearing Set on Abolition Of D. C. Coronor

A fourth and probably final Senate District Subcommittee hearing on the bill to abolish the District coroner's office is scheduled for 10 a. m. Friday. At a brief session yesterday morning U. S. Attorney Edward M. Curran added his indorsement to the proposed change.

A series of hearings, spaced over several weeks, has been held on the measure which would do away with the coroner's inquest system in the District and organize a medical examiner's office.

Curran had only the highest praise for the work of Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, but told Chairman Burton (Republican) of Ohio, that the medical examiner system would be of more help in the prosecution of cases.

Senator Burton said he had made a personal inspection of the District morgue and had found it in excellent condition. It was apparently lacking, he added, only in equipment.

Women Drawn by Curiosity Attend Rites for Barrymore

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 2.—Several hundred women, drawn by curiosity, gathered outside the mausoleum of Calvary Cemetery to see John Barrymore carried to his final earthly resting place today.

Approximately 100 invited guests attended. The Rev. John O'Donnell, pastor of Immaculate Heart Catholic Church, said the requiem mass and read the committal ritual. He received the actor back into the Catholic Faith—the religion of John's birth—last week.

Only relatives present were brother, Lionel and daughter, Diana, who had seen her father only half a dozen times since infancy. His sister, Ethel, was unable to make a plane reservation from Boston, where she closed a play Saturday night.

Elaine Barrie Barrymore, John's fourth wife, attended with her mother, Mrs. Edna Jacobs. Her eyes were dry, but sad.

Active pallbearers were Gene Fowler, author; John Decker, artist; actors E. J. Mannix and W. C. Fields, and make-up men C. J. Briden and Stanley Campbell.

Invited guests included David O. Selznick, Cecil B. DeMille, Frederic March, Clark Gable, Ian Keith, Norma Shearer, Harpo Marx, Rudy Vallee, Earl Carroll, Herbert Marshall, Marshall Neilan, Errol Flynn, Katharine Hepburn, Greta Garbo, Louis B. Mayer, Spencer Tracy, Helene Costello le Blanc, Maurice Costello, William Powell and Ronald Colman.

Police Seize Suspect Fleeing Scene of Attack on District Woman

A 31-year-old man who once served a term in South Carolina for attempted rape was held at the Second Precinct Station last night for rape of a white woman at her home at 4 a. m. yesterday.

The Negro suspect was captured by two policemen who saw him flee the home as they approached to investigate screams. One shot was fired in the chase. The suspect fought the two officers, Privates Robert L. Carter and Luther Miller.

The woman, 42, told police the man attacked her in her bedroom. Her screams awoke her 15-year-old son who ran to the street after the attacker.

Investigation disclosed the man to be the same who forced his way into the apartment of a Government stenographer at Seventeenth and I Streets Northwest last March, police said. He served 45 days for that offense. He also has been jailed for housebreaking and robbery.

He will be arraigned tomorrow.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Flemming Clears Up Confusion Over Pay

The President's plan to pay overtime to Federal employes paid $3800 and less does not appear so complex today. The air was cleared of much misunderstanding yesterday by Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming who testified on behalf of the Administration before the House Civil Service Committee. Flemming said the bill would "correct glaring and obviously unfair" rates of pay within the Federal service . . . that the Government today pays 1,084,000 of its two million civilian workers overtime pay . . . that no new principle would be involved by extending overtime to the other 50 per cent.

Flemming pointed out that the Navy and Maritime Commission can pay overtime to several thousand of its employes here. No other department, including War, has that privilege. Clerical employes at the Navy Yard are paid overtime. People doing clerical work in every other agency here cannot be paid overtime. Both War and Navy pay overtime in the field service. "I submit," said the commissioner "that this sort of policy can't be defended at a time when we must maintain the morale of employes if effective work is to be done. In fairness and justice to all the situation "must be corrected," he said.

Flemming made the obvious conclusion that a private employer simply would not pay one employe overtime and deny it to another in the same office. It is done every day in the Government. He went on to say that this practice created a natural desire for the employe to get a job in the agency where he would be paid overtime since nearly all employes must work overtime anyway. The commissioner then produced some startling statistics on the personnel turnover in the Government. He estimated that 198,000 placements will be made here during the 1942 fiscal year that ends June 30. About 57,000 will be for new jobs, but 141,000 will be made to fill vacancies. In the 1941 fiscal year only 76,000 placements were made.

"We're scouring the country," Flemming explained, "to get people to come here and accept jobs. But why should a stenographer come here to work for $1440 when she can stay in her own territory and be paid $1440 and overtime?" He estimated the bill would cost one hundred and seventy-one million dollars. If the overtime bill is approved, Flemming predicted there will be a tendency to place all departments on a full six-day, 48-hour week. War and Navy are now on 48-hour weeks. All other agencies are on official 44-hour weeks. The Civil Service official said the commission and the Budget Bureau would require low priority agencies to transfer more of their employes to war agencies when they go on 48-hour weeks.

Flemming said that the bill would save manpower and housing here by making a more intelligent and effective use of the people already here, and that a 48-hour week would go a long way toward placing the Federal service on an all-out war footing. He opposed the $300 bonus plan on the ground that it would perpetuate the present inequalities. He said the $3800 ceiling had been fixed because it would apply the philosophy of the Wage and Hour Act to the Government itself. The principle of the act, he said, was being violated by the Government every day it pays thousands of War and Navy professional and technical employes time and a half.

Flemming predicted that between 50,000 and 60,000 new employes will be brought here within a year. He estimated there are now 270,000 Federal workers here. The bill, he said, would cover District of Columbia employes but it would not cover judicial and legislative employes. William H. McReynolds, the President's administrative assistant on personnel, testified that the overtime bill had the "personal and enthusiastic" indorsement of President Roosevelt. He also urged that Congress immediately approve the bill that would raise the salaries of custodial employes. Half a dozen members of Congress testified in favor of the bill to pay bonuses to Federal workers.

Judge Samuel Rosenman, the President's unofficial troubleshooter, is now working on the plan for a war information board. William Bullitt is now a distinct possibility to head the board

Everything O.K. but . . .

Atlanta, June 2 (A.P.).—Charles H. Murchison, Southeastern civilian defense director, says members of his staff were witnessing an air raid control center demonstration in a strategic Southern coastal city. "Do you think this center is adequate?" inquired a member of his staff skeptically. "Well, I do unless we have an air raid," replied the city's civilian defense coordinator seriously.

Methodists Convene Today In Maryland

Bishop Leonard

Methodist work among service men and the annual pastoral appointments will highlight the annual Baltimore Methodist Conference, opening today at Western Maryland College, Westminster. The conference covers 400 churches in the District and Maryland.

Presiding will be Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, resident prelate, who also serves as chairman of the general commission on Army and Navy chaplains, chairman of the Methodist commission on chaplains and chairman of the Methodist commission on camp activities.

Financiers' Annual Outing

9 Additional Churches Join Federation

Nine congregations have become affiliated with the Washington Federation of Churches since initiation of its annual budget drive in April, it was learned yesterday. And at least 50 other churches are considering a similar step, according to Dr. Worth M. Tippy, acting federation executive secretary.

With the nine additions, the federation now boasts of 170 affiliated Protestant bodies and allied agencies, with a combined membership of approximately 110,000.

The new member churches are Friends Meeting, 2111 Florida Avenue Northwest; All Souls' Unitarian, Sixteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest; Universalist National Memorial Church, Sixteenth and S Streets Northwest; Keller Memorial Lutheran, Ninth Street and Maryland Avenue Northeast; Lewinsville Presbyterian, McLean, Va.; Providence Baptist, 491 M Street Southwest; Simpson Memorial Methodist, Sherman Avenue and W Street Northwest; Plymouth Congregational, Seventeenth and P Streets Northwest, and New Bethel Baptist, Ninth and S Streets Northwest.

Seven large bodies at present represented on the federation are the Baptist, Christian (Disciples of Christ), Congregational, Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian. Others are the Evangelical and Reformed, Church of the Brethren, Church of God, Church of New Jerusalem, Evangelical, Friends, French Congregation, United Brethren, United Presbyterian, Universalist, Unitarian and Community.

Golden Jubilee Program Honors C. E. Leaders

Past and present Christian Endeavorers were honored last night at a golden jubilee fellowship program at Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth and Maryland Avenue Northeast.

The occasion was a feature of jubilee week—marking the fiftieth anniversary of the cornerstone laying of the present edifice in 1892.

Ward Beall, former president of the congregation's Endeavor Society, and organizer of several intra-church Endeavor units, joined with Mrs. Beall in serving as host for the function. Highlight was a Seth Parker old-fashioned hymn "sing." Miss Jean Rineer is now senior Endeavor president.

Crash Brings Wild Chase To Sudden End

In a wild chase that reached a speed of 80 miles an hour through downtown Washington, four teenage youths were arrested late last night when their car crashed into a taxi at Vermont Avenue and L Street Northwest. A detective opened fire at one of them who tried to flee.

John Grambo, 56, of 1230 Fourteenth Street Northwest, a passenger in the taxi, suffered head injuries and was given first aid at the scene by Dr. Bruno Isen of Emergency Hospital as a great crowd looked on. Ferdinand Hocheisen, the cab driver, of 902 Butternutt Street Northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for leg injuries. One of the youths received head injuries in the crash.

The youths were spotted at Fourteenth and P Streets Northwest by Detective Sergts. H. D. Robey and John Curtis, who were cruising in a police car. The car in which the boys were riding had only one license plate, police said.

Realizing they were being "tailed," the young driver increased his speed to 80 miles an hour, and drove to Thirteenth Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, then to M Street, Fifteenth Street, Massachusetts Avenue to Twelfth, to New York Avenue and up Fourteenth Street across L Street. There they crashed into the taxi, with the police car just behind.

As one of the boys, in a rumble seat leaped from the car, Detective Curtis jumped out and fired into the air. The boy stopped and Curtis grabbed him, while Robey placed the others under arrest.

Robey said he has been trailing the quartet for more than two weeks as suspects in a series of robberies. Three of the boys were taken to the Receiving Home, while a fourth was locked up at the Second Precinct Station.

Negro Moslem Held As Draft Evader

Charged with evasion of the Selective Service Act, Charles L. Milner, Negro, of the Langston Terrace development, was held for the Grand Jury under $1800 bond at a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday.

Milner, who claimed to be a Moslem, said his religion did not sanction participation in warfare.

WASHINGTON DEFENSE

Victory Sidelights

Radio Hams to Meet June 13 To Plan Civil Defense Work

Amateur radio operators for Washington and four nearby counties will meet June 13 at the Capital Radio Engineering Institute, 3224 Sixteenth Street Northwest, to plan for work in connection with civilian defense.

Roy C. Corderman, regional emergency coordinator for the American Radio League for this section, said the Federal Communications Commission is expected to issue next week regulations under which the amateurs will be permitted "back on the air." Their work was stopped at the beginning of the war.

Corderman estimated that at least 500 amateurs are in his area, many of them here for war jobs. He predicted all would want to join in the new endeavor. Although no announcement of duties of the War Emergency Radio Service has been made, it is assumed the Office of Civilian Defense will put the members into special communications jobs.

The steering committee for the June 13 meeting, to be held at 8 p. m., is made up of Oscar W. B. Reed, jr., Franklin Montgomery and Fred W. Albert.

One of the biggest communications jobs undertaken by the local amateurs was on inauguration day, when 500 calls were handled for the Red Cross, Corderman said. He asserted they would have to make over and "adapt" old equipment for the new duties and said they would broadcast on ultra high frequencies.

War Bond Station Will Open Today

Swing bands and torch singers will assist in celebrating the opening of the United States Treasury's War Bond and Savings Stamp Station No. 1, at Eleventh and G Streets Northwest, at high noon today. District Commissioner Guy L. Mason will make the keynote speech and H. L. Rust, jr., chairman of the District's War Savings Committee, will deliver the opening address and introduce the principal speaker.

Among the luminaries volunteering their services are Jane Pickens, now warbling at the Del Rio night club, and Bernie Cummings and his band. In the afternoon, Art Brown, organist and entertainer, will take over the torch. Music and entertainment will be provived all day. Junior Leaguers will also be on hand to sell bonds and stamps.

Share-Your-Car Drive Opens Today

A share-your-car campaign will be launched today in a special meeting of traffic and citizens' association representatives in the minority room of the Senate Office Building at 11 a. m.

Attending the meeting will be Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the Women's Safety Committee of the American Automobile Association; William Van Duzer, director of vehicles and traffic; Baxter Smith, safety chairman of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District division of the A. A. A.

Plans will be completed for a block-to-block canvas so that residents of various communities can work out their transportation problems and arrange for the alternate use of automobiles.

Navy Seeks Former Officers for Duty

Men who served as officers in the Navy and the Naval Reserves during the last war are being sought for active service by the director of Naval Officers Procurement at 1320 G Street Northwest. Applicants must meet the Navy's physical standards but consideration will be given for age and minor physical defects. The office is open from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Discrimination Claimed by Brown

Discrimination against Negroes in the hiring of personnel of ration boards in the District was charged yesterday by Edgar G. Brown, director of the District office of OPA.

Brown said no Negroes had been employed in the ration headquarters and that none was in the current training classes.

Henderson Indorses Share-a-Ride Club

The "Share-a-Ride Club" of Station WOL yesterday received the indorsement of Leon Henderson, who requested that the station send him a membership card.

The Share-a-Ride Club, originated by the radio station last week, furnishes free cards to motorists and pedestrians.

Chemical Warfare To Be Discussed

Chemical warfare will be discussed by Dupont Circle area civilian defense workers at their monthly meeting at 8 p. m. today in the Church of the Covenant, Connecticut Avenue and N Street Northwest.

Friendship Fire Group Elects

With its membership scattered all over the District as auxiliary firemen, the hitherto amateur Friendship Fire Association gathered its members together last week for a meeting which included the election of officers.

Dr. Edward R. Gookin was elected chief; Lester E. Steinem, assistant chief; Roy A. Wisemen, chief secretary; Ben C. Pope, chief treasurer, and J. T. Kennedy, chief commissar.

Although an association organized solely for social purposes, the Friendship Fire Association joined the auxiliary fire service in a body the day after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Senate Group Will Consider Raise for All D. C. Employes

The Senate District Committee's approval of a bill to give all District policemen and firemen a $300 annual pay raise was postponed yesterday, as the committee members pondered the possibility of having the U. S. Treasury foot the bill for a blanket wage boost for all employes of the city government.

The suggestion was put forward by Senators Burton (Republican), of Ohio, and Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, after the District Commissioners had registered their opposition to the police and fire bill on two grounds:

(1) That it would strain to the breaking point the District's fiscal system, already overtaxed by wartime conditions.

(2) That if such a raise was given to the city's uniformed employes, it should be given equally to all of the District government's workers.

Although it was believed that a majority of the committee were in favor of the bill, the decision to delay action on it was reached after a closed session in which it was understood Burton and Overton argued on the same lines as the Commissioners.

Previously Chairman McCarran had raised the question of whether the Federal Government should not be asked to increase its contribution to the District's bank account, on the basis of testimony offered by Budget Officer Walter Fowler.

Fowler said that the District could pay the cost of the increased fire and police salaries—estimated at $800,000 yearly—for the fiscal year ending in 1943, but warned that the financial outlook after that was extremely dubious.

Low Cost Legal Service Bureau Recommended

Officers elected were Turner T. Smith, chairman; Colman B. Stein, vice chairman; Peter N. Chumbris, secretary-treasurer; Augustus Crenshaw 3d, Lewis Jacobs, Nathan N. Lurba, and Charles A. Smoot, executive council. John H. Pratt, retiring chairman, presided.

Reduce! and be Beautiful this Summer!
CHENO PLAN
LOSE FAT on 2 square meals a day without dangerous dress or starvation. Thousands of men and women have reported a loss of weight, improvement in skin and muscular tone. The CHENO REDUCING PLAN was created by a famous HOLLYWOOD nutritionist for overweight men and women all over the United States. CHENO tablets are a part of the Cheno Plan . . . a mineral and vegetable tablet that supplies additional important minerals in which many diets are lacking . . . CALCIUM, PHOSPHORUS, IRON and IODINE. Due to the high mineral content CHENO TABLETS lessen the desire for starchy foods.
JUST 12 CHENO TABLETS A DAY
supply the average adult with over 70 per cent of the daily CALCIUM requirements, 80 per cent of the PHOSPHORUS requirements, the fully daily requirements of IRON and many times the daily requirements of IODINE. Many diets are lacking in these minerals. These elements are essential to health and are an aid in oxidising fat. Your energy increases, you feel better and pounds come off. Losses frequently reported from 7 to 11 pounds in one month.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Well, you can stop worrying about the morale of America's fighting men. Would you like to read some censored mail from a marine who writes from "Middle of Nowhere, Somewhere in South Pacific?" He's grumbling, but not at the life of a fighting Marine. His squawk is bundled up in the one complaint that he gets no news from the baseball front.

POVICH

"Dear Shirley," writes Marine Karl Dieffenbach with the consent of a Naval censor whose initials are L. C. A., "this letter is from one of your 'constant readers' now in the South Pacific. Aren't you surprised? The only outstanding thing the censor will let me mention is that it's hot as the hinges of hell. Do you remember that hot day last season when the Redskins played Brooklyn? That is heavy underwear weather here.

"The purpose of this letter is to bother you. I miss reading your often provocative column in the morning with my coffee. We have a paper of sorts to inform us as to the progress of the war, but sports news is a bit weak. I don't even know who plays for the Senators any more.

"Would it be impossible, I suppose it would be, to get a file of your columns since the baseball season opened. This is not meant to be flattery to you and an insult to the editorial pages, but out here we are doing the things they write the editorials about, and so have little interest in them.

"It's a safe promise that if you do find it possible to send the requested baseball stories that they will be read until they are no longer readable. Our mail is uncertain and very widely spaced, and interest in things at home run higher when you are away than it does if we were slapping our dogs down F Street every day.

"You might mention, if you have a line to fill some morning, that mail is far more valuable than gold to the boys in the service and that even if the folks at home don't hear from us often, to try and drop that weekly line. We get them in bunches sooner or later and it's a sad day for the poor devil who gets no mail at all. Enough of this for the time. I'll lay you a bet that I am the most remote of your would-be readers. Thanks a lot. KARL DIEFFENBACH."

Okay, Karl, we'll try to give you a fill-in on what's been happening in the big leagues and trust that you get delivery. You'd recognize the American League standings if you saw 'em. They haven't changed much. The Yankees are right where you left 'em last year—up front, and running away with it again. So are the Dodgers. This may be hard for you to believe, though: Joe DiMaggio's only hitting .260 and nobody knows why. But the Yanks are doing all right with Joe Gordon hitting .380 and leading the league.

You better brace yourself, though, for this next paragraph. The other day in Yankee Stadium, the Washington club couldn't outhit Lefty Gomez, and you know what kind of a hitter he is. Well, the Nats made four hits in the game and so did Gomez. In fact, all of Gomez's hits were clean singles, and two of Washington's four were cheap infield affairs. After the game, Gomez posed with Joe DiMaggio, showing DiMag how to hold a bat.

You could almost write the story of this year's American League pennant race from memory. Sure enough the Cleveland Indians got out in front with a long winning streak, and flopped again. That's always a safe prediction. And the Red Sox still don't have any pitching. They sold Jimmy Foxx to the Cubs the other day after all the other American League clubs waived on him. Al Simmons always used to say that when he was washed up as an American Leaguer he could be a regular in the National League for a couple of years at least. It's cheaper company.

You'd recognize the Washington club by the American League standings. They're seventh again. Remember Jimmy Pofahl, who wasn't good enough to play shotstop last year? Well, he's playing shortstop now. Things are so desperate that Bobby Estalella is playing third base. Washington bought Buck Newsom from Detroit in March but Dutch Leonard, with a broken leg, has been more valuable to the team than Newsom. At least Leonard hasn't lost five games in a month.

Mickey Vernon isn't hitting a lick, honest. That's hard to believe after the way you saw him belt the ball last year, but he can't untrack himself. The league's leading pitcher is Ernie Bonham of the Yankees, who has won seven in a row. It's no coincidence that Bonham is pitching winning ball for the Yanks. He could pitch winning ball even for Washington.

The hottest club in the American League outside the Yankees is the St. Louis Browns. As we went to press they had won nine of their last 12 games and were looking tough, although they're still in the second division. Who do you think is the leading hitter on the Washington club? Stan Spence, the outfielder they got from Boston last year after he hit .232. He's banging away at a .350 rate and is acting like the best player on the Washington club. Let me hear from you again, Karl, and I'll be writing from time to time.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 2.—The one and only National Golf Championship of 1942, and maybe for the duration, is gone. Sam Snead, who was supposed to be too punchy to win a big tournament, after the heart-rending chances he has muffed, is the new P. G. A. champion.

CONSIDINE

The Virginia hill-billy with the greatest natural equipment a golfer ever had said after the tournament, "I don't feel no different." He meant it. He had expected to be a different man. To prove he wasn't any different he called a waiter in the locker room after his triumphant return. "Boy," he said, "let me have three cokes . . . and take one of them to the press."

We're glad Sam won it. It might have been a nice thing to write that Corpl. Jim Turnesa won, but Sam, who is about to go into the Navy, is good copy, too. Corporal Turnesa showed the kind of stuff the Army pumps into a man by knocking off Dutch Harrison, Jug McSpaden, Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson in succession, no mean feat. There was a time when he would have waited in line for their autographs. But we're glad Sam won.

We were there the day he took an eight on the final hole of the 1939 Open at the Philadelphia Country Club, and blew his chance of making perhaps 25,000. We were part of the crowd that shrank back, as if from a leper, when he walked off the green on his lonely way to the clubhouse. It was to us that Ralph Guldahl said, "That fellow will never win a big tournament. This thing made him punch-drunk."

But Sam finally made it. Tough tournament, too. Full of tremendous deeds, and rankling breaks, as golf goes; for instance Ed Dudley, who had a good chance to beat Snead, hitting a fan in the head, and the ball bouncing behind a tree; Jimmy Demaret, the laughing boy, getting up at 6 a. m. to practice; Gene Sarazen, fighting like blazes to win it at the ripe old age of 40, with a reprocessed ball; Bryon Nelson, who has guts galore, missing a 12-inch putt that meant thousands of dollars to him; Craig Wood, probably the best-liked guy in golf, playing Demaret in an unlucky twist of the draw; Old Walter Hagen saying that the younger pros take things too seriously and that if he could caddy for any one of eight of them he could win the tournament for him by making him laugh when in trouble.

Anyway, and to repeat, we're glad Snead won. He's okay. It's ironic, however, that just when he seems to have captured the knack of getting tough in the clutch, he's about to go into the Navy. It may be ironic, but it's another break for the Navy, which is the important thing.

We had lunch the other day with a nice gal. Gloria Nord is her name, and she's the Sonja Henie of roller skating. Tell you about her:

She learned to skate like any other kid, around her native town of Santa Monica. Never thought much about making a career of it until one night she went to Sid Grauman's skating rink in L. A. and Sid said, in effect, "You ought to be in pictures."

She became America's first dancer on skates. Now she heads the cast of "Skating Vanities of 1942." She's 19 and can do about as much on skates as Sonja can do on ice. She's probably the highest paid roller skater of all time and, if the truth were known, has a tremendous potential audience—for 20 pairs of roller skates are sold in this country for every pair of ice skates. She's headed for the movies.

Gloria explained to us the difference between ice skating and roller skating. Roller skating is easier to learn, but tougher to master. That is, it is reluctant to lend itself to fancy stuff. But she does things that even good ice skaters shrink from. Her stunts and the production numbers of the cast, which numbers, 75, compare favorably with any of the ice carnivals which have swept the country. She uses noiseless, wooden-wheel skates.

Gloria's manager, and proprietor of the show, is Hal Steinman, former manager of Kingfish Levinsky and Johnny Paychek. "I'll always be grateful to Paychek," Hal wheezed to us. "He drove me out of boxing."

Wynn Checks Browns, Nats Win, 4 to 1

Estalella's 2-Run Single Is Decisive

Washington Hurler Gives but 5 Hits; McQuinn's Homer Ruins No-Hitter

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Early Wynn and Bobby Estalella licked the Browns, lifted the Nats out of the American League cellar and stopped Washington's five-game losing streak. It all happened last night at Griffith Stadium where Wynn attended to the pitching and Estalella swatted home the winning runs of a 4-1 ball game.

Wynn made a considerable night of it, holding the Browns to five hits and losing a shut-out triumph only because George McQuinn boomed a seventh-inning home run over the right field fence with the bases empty.

The chill night and the recent lusterless play of the Nats held the crowd figures down to 5000, smallest turn-out of the two-year history of night ball at the Stadium, but they were treated to one of the Nats' better ball game.

Sewell's Stategy Fails

The winning runs and the attempted strategy of Manager Luke Sewell of the Browns exploded in his face in the fifth inning when Estalella barged into the hero's role after Sewell's public affront to the little Cuban's batting ability.

With the game scoreless, two out, and Washington runners on second and third, Sewell ordered Pitcher Dennis Galehouse to walk Mike Chartak and thus fetch Estalella to the plate. It was a mistake. Estalella worked the count to two balls and two strikes and then lammed a solid single to center to get two runs home.

The Nats outhit the Browns, 11 to 5, but Wynn was working with a slender lead until the eighth when the Nats went out and got two more runs. Over-ambitious base running kept the Nats from scoring. They didn't get their first run of the game until Estalella made the eighth Washington hit off Galehouse. At the time, Wynn was pitching one-hit ball and getting no better than a scoreless tie.

Estalella Booms Two Runs Home

There were no signs of any Washington runs in the fifth inning when Wynn and Case went out weakly, but all of a sudden the Nats stirred up two runs. Spence beat out a hit to Shortstop Stephens and Vernon laid down a safe bunt, with both runners taking an extra base when Clift threw the ball wild past McQuinn. In this crisis, Chartak was purposely walked, and Estalella got in his two-run lick.

The need of a pinch hitter took Galehouse out of the game in the eighth and against Rookie Loy Hanning, a right-hander, Wynn himself launched a two-run rally for the Nats. He sliced a double into left field with one out and scored when Case's liner to right took a wild hop past Laabs for a three-bagger. Spence moved Case home with the second run of the inning on a long fly to center.

Through the first six innings,

Cards Stave Braves Off For 4-3 Win

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 2.—Weathering a 2-run rally in the ninth inning, the St. Louis Cardinals opened a 14-game home stand with a 4-to-3 victory over the Boston Braves here tonight.

Mort Cooper had allowed the Braves only six scattered hits and one run until the ninth. Ernie Lombardi walked to lead off the inning. Max West struck out, then Frank Demaree singled sharply to left, moving Masi, who ran for Lombardi, to second. Sebastian Sisti then slapped a triple to right, scoring both runners and putting the tying run on third. That was the end of Cooper and John Beazley, one of the Cardinals' ace relief hurlers, came in to stop the fireworks, but it was really a needle-eye throw by Enos Slaughter that possibly saved the game.

Jim Tobin, Boston pitcher, sent a fly to Slaughter in right field and he pegged the ball home with enough speed to hold Sisti at third. Holmes then tapped to Shortstop Marty Marion for the final out.

Each team put over a run in the first inning, the Braves on two hits and the Cardinals when the first three men smashed out singles. Marion singled with the bases loaded to score two runs in the sixth and Harry Walker singled in the other run in the seventh.

Trucks Hurls, Tigers Blank Athletics, 3-0

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 2.—Bob Harris, reporting to the Athletics for the first time, was thrown immediately into action tonight against the Detroit Tigers, but was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning as the Tigers won the night game, 3-0.

The victory lifted Detroit back into second place in the American Leagu.e

Rookie Virgil Trucks struck out nine men and allowed only one hit in the first five innings to hang the first shutout of the season on the A's.

Harris and his batterymate, Bob Swift, who came here in the recent trade with the St. Louis Browns in return for Catcher Frankie Hayes, put on a commendable performance in the early innings. Harris hurled shutout ball until the fourth when Ned Harris opened with a double and scored on Higgins' two-bagger. In the fifth, Wallaesa booted Cramer's hard grounder, and Higgins promptly brought him home with a single.

The Tigers' last run came in the sixth on singles by George Tebbets, Franklin and Cramer.

Harder Winning Hurler as Mates Get 14 Hits; Heath, Fleming Homer

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 2.—After taking four setbacks, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Boston Red Sox today for the first time this season and they did it most desively, for they banged out 14 hits, including two home runs, for a 7-2 triumph.

While every Cleveland player shared in the victory by making at least one hit, the veteran Mel Harder held the Red Sox scoreless until the ninth inning, when they bunched three of their six hits to escape a shutout.

Jeff Heath and Les Fleming each belted their sixth homers of the season against Starter Charley Wagner, who was yanked for a pinch hitter in the sixth and was replaced by Joe Dobson.

The latter was even less effective than Wagner, for the Indians clubbed him for six hits and staged a four-run rally in the seventh.

The absence of Jimmy Foxx, sold to the Chicago Cubs yesterday, was jeered by some of the fans in the skimpy crowd of 2717. One over-excited spectator jumped atop the Cleveland dugout and shouted loudly, "We want Foxx, we want Foxx." Many in the grandstand repeated his cries and then booed when police ejected him from the park.

Earlier, Manager Joe Cronin drew a round of jeers when he stepped to the plate to pinch hit for Wagner and hit into a double-play.

Sun Again Likely To Miss Belmont

Lexington, Ky., June 2 (AP).—Warren Wright's 3-year-old Sun Again may be counted out as a starter in the Belmont Stakes this month.

The colt, which finished in a second place dead heat with Reuesqted in the Preakness, arrived today at Calumet Farm from Belmont track. The reason for the return home was not given.

Calumet Farm office said Sun Again's future plans had not been disclosed by Trainer Ben Jones.

Neff Captures Senior Medal In M. A. Play

Senior golfers took over in the first day's play of the thirty-eighth annual Middle Atlantic amateur championship yesterday at Manor Country Club and furnished a surprise medalist in the 55-years-of-age and over division in Harold A. Neff, of the host club, who was eligible for the tournament under the minimum age limit.

Neff, a reviewer in the Internal Revenue Department and a veteran sportsman, played his home course from the far back tees in 80 strokes despite a seven and a six on par four holes on the back nine and topped a field of 13 senior golfers, two of them former Middle Atlantic amateur titlists.

While the senors were playing their qualifying rounds a score or more of the entrants in the championship proper, which gets under way with a qualifying round today, were testing the course in practice rounds and only Gene Pittman, Congressional's short game artist, was near par of 70.

Roger Peacock, a former champion, played a trial round with Harry G. Pitt, president of the association and former champion from the host club; Pittman and Charley Malone, the long-hitting former pro footballer, and Peacock's presence as a post entry will add prestige to the starting field of 70 players.

Back to the seniors, Neff was in trouble only on the fourteenth and sixteenth holes of the back nine as he won qualifying honors with his round of 80, which included 10 pars.

Sinclair Wins Building & Loan Golf With Net 68

R. H. Sinclair of the American Building Association, led a field of 50 home in the fourth annual District of Columbia Building and Loan League golf tournament yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club, scoring a 79—13—66, to capture the District title cup. W. H. Blanz was second with 90—22—68.

Low gross first prize went to Martin McCarthy, 76, and C. Jay Harrell's 88 was second. In the blind bogey Carl J. Bergman scored 79 to win and Harold D. Smith's 33 putts won the putting prize. Guest prizes were awarded Roger Whitford, with a 76 gross, and F. A. Allnutt, with 92—28—64 net.

A dinner attended by upward of 200 local building and loan men followed the day's golf.

Sammy Celebrates Enlistment in Navy With Great Round Over Local Course

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Just a few hours after he had been sworn into the United States Navy as a second class specialist, Samuel Jackson Snead played one of the most remarkable rounds of golf in Washington's history yesterday, a sparkling 6-under par 63 over the championship golf course of the Chevy Chase Club.

Playing a quick round of golf with four others before leaving for his home in Hot Springs, Va., for a short vacation before he reports to Pensacola, Fla., the newly crowned P. G. A. champion had six birdies and a dozen pars for an all-time record total. The old record of 64 was held by Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase pro.

Snead was playing in a fivesome and at the end of the sixteenth hole he realized he had a short time to make his train for home. With par for a 65 at that point, Snead and his caddy ran the last two holes, both tough par fours, and Sammy birdied both, dropping 10-foot putts for his threes.

Holes Every Putt

Snead holed every putt over the 18-hole route and his round was even more brilliant than his sensational scoring in the P. G. A. championship at Seaview last week, for Chevy Chase is a much harder test of golf than the Atlantic City course.

Playing without any tournament pressure, with his picture swing right in the groove, and retaining his fine putting touch which brought his first major championship after years of knocking at the door, Snead played the nines in 33 and 30. He birdied his first hole with a three, the long par five eighth, the par three tenth with his only deuce, and then the last three.

Snead undoubtedly made an impression on his superiors who arranged the golf game when he was here on an unpublicized visit to the Navy Department on Monday.

Four Witnesses

Playing with the Virginia Slammer were: Capt. Gerald Eubank, of the Navy Department; Feron Overfelt, Special Assistant to the Under Secretary of the Navy; Lieut. Harold R. Gilmore and James "Sonny" Fraser, a well-known amateur golfer from Seaview who makes an occasional trip to Washington on business.

Snead played from the backtees, and long, watered layout was stretched to its full distance of more than 6700 yards. Some 25 members of the Chevy Chase Club galleried the round.

Athens Football Team to Be Open To Enlisted Men

By the Associated Press

Athens, Ga., June 2.—Cadets, officers and enlisted men all will be eligible for the varsity football team at the Navy's Preflight Training School opening here this month.

Capt. C. E. Smith, the commanding office, outlined this broad policy today and his annoucement was believed to be the first regarding this question at any of the four naval preflight schools. Others are at Chapel Hill, N. C.; Iowa City, Iowa, and St. Mary's, Calif.

The Athens school has a tentative schedule of ten games, including several big time college teams. Officers and enlisted men include several former college and professional standouts.

Dodgers' 20 Hits Deal Pirates 10th Defeat in Row, 17 to 2

Reiser Gets Homer, Four Other Blows

Les Webber Limits Bucs to 5 Hits as Mates Slug for 32 Bases; Reiser Hurt

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 2.—The Brooklyn Dodgers went on a rampage today to scuttle the Pittsburgh Pirates, 17 to 2, with a 20-hit barrage, while Rookie Les Webber subdued the Buccaneers to five safeties.

It was the tenth straight setback for the Pirates and their sixteenth in 18 games extending back to May 14 when they cruised into Brooklyn as a challenging second-place club and dropped an entire three-game series.

Pete Reiser made five consecutive hits—a home run, three doubles and a single—but suffered a slight injury to his left ankle while sliding into the plate in the seventh inning and retired from the contest without getting a chance at the modern major league record of six hits in succession in one game.

All the other Dodgers except Webber and Shortstop Peewee Reese also were relieved during the contest as Manager Leo Durocher turned the affair over to substitutes in the late innings. Augie Galan, just recovered from a serious siege of influenza, replaced Reiser in center field and made one hit in his only turn at bat.

The Brooklyn assault, good for a total of 32 bases, started with a three-run blast in the first inning against Lefty Aldon Wilkie, who was shelled from the mound in the third when the Dodgers staged one of their two four-run frames.

Reds' Error In Tenth Helps Phils Win, 1-0

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 2.—Young Elmer Riddle and Veteran Si Johnson hurled shutout ball at each other for nine innings today, but cellar-dwelling Philadelphia took advantage of a Cincinnati error in the tenth to win, 1 to 0.

Until the blowup the taciturn Georgian clearly was master, yielding but three hits over the regulation distane and walking but one man throughout. Two singles, Substitute Third Baseman Joe Abréau's muff of Alban Glossop's bunt and Tommy Livingston's outfield fly produced the winning tally—a victory that as easily might have been the Reds in the ninth, had Abreau done better than hit into a double killing.

This was the picture at that time:

Max Marshall, former Columbus American Association star, opened with a single and was sacrificed to second. Gee Walker drew the second of Johnson's two passes—intentional—but Abreau grounded to third, nipping Marshall and himself.

Sam Chapman Ordered To Flight Training Here

By the Associated Press

Samuel Blake Chapman, 26, former Philadelphia American League baseball player and University of California football star, was ordered by the Navy yesterday to report to the Reserve Aviation base here June 28 for flight training leading to a commission in either naval or marine aviation. Chapman volunteered. He is now stationed at the Navy's physical instruction school at Norfolk, Va.

Cameo Defeats Heurich, 6-2 For 5th in Row

Cameo Furniture nine captured its fifth straight decision in the Washington Post-Industrial League yesterday, beating the defending champion Heurich Brewers by 6-2 in a seven-inning game on the Ellipse.

While his mates pounded Art Lacey for 14 hits, young Kenny Deavers tossed a 6-hit effort and only missed a shutout when the Beermen pushed home both their runs in the final inning.

Godfrey led the winners' batting attack with three hits in four times at bat. It was Cameo's second triumph of the year over its perennial rival.

Corporal Turnesa Accepts Hale America Open Golf Bid

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—Corpl. Jim Turnesa, the soldier-golfer who was the sensation of last week's P. G. A. Championship before he finally succumbed to Sailor-to-be Sam Snead in the final, was added today to the list of entries for the Hale America Open Golf Tournament.

Invited to compete in the tournament at Chicago June 18-21 on the basis of his triumphs over top-flight pros at Atlantic City, Turnesa today telephoned his acceptance and added that his commanding officer at Fort Dix, N. J., also had authorized his appearance in an exhibition in connection with the sectional qualifying rounds at Bloomfield, N. J., this weekend.

Turnesa is the twenty-third player to be given a free trip into the main tournament at Chicago. Eighty other places will be decided this weekend when 584 survivors of last week's local tests will play their sectional qualifying rounds at 13 locations. Two Canadians, Gordon Brydson and R. T. Gray, jr., qualified at Toronto last week. The original entry list of 1540 thus will be reduced to 105 starters in the final at Chicago's Ridgemoor Club.

Carded as a wartime substitute for the abandoned National Open Championship and played for the benefit of the Navy Relief Society, the Hale America Open has been marked by special efforts to attract spectators. Besides Turnesa, Corpl. Vic Ghezzi, last year's P. G. A. champion; Paul Runyan, Jug McSpaden and Herman Barron are listed for exhibitions at Bloomfield. Open Champion Craig Wood, Ben Hogan and Horton Smith will play at Buffalo; Bobby Jones at Atlanta, Walter Hagen, Jimmy Demaret and Denny Shute at Detroit; Byron Nelson at Cincinnati and Henry Picard at Tulsa.

Giants Slug 2 Cub Hurlers And Win, 5-1

By International News Service

Chicago, June 2.—The New York Giants collected 13 hits off two pitchers today to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 1.

The Giants accumulated nine hits and a piar of runs in the first five innings. In the seventh after two singles, a walk and a double had scored two runs off the Cubs' starting pitcher, Bill Lee, Vern Olsen took over the Chicago mound chores and one more run was chalked up before the side was retired.

Hal Schumacher allowed nine scattered hits, including Glen Russell's first home of the year.

Griff Lunch Plans to Be Settled

Final arrangements for the Clark Griffith Testimonial luncheon a week from today at 12:30, at the Mayflower Hotel, are to be mapped out at a meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the offices of Edward M. Curran in the District Courthouse. Curran, local district attorney, is chairman of the Washington (D. C.) Citizens Committee for the luncheon.

Meantime the sale of tickets to the luncheon was reported booming at the Navy Relief headquarters, 1721 I Street Northwest. Among prominent local sports figures buying tickets yesterday were Fred Buchholz, Dr. Malcolm C. Gibbs, Serveine G. Leoffler, sr., Edward Costigan and James J. (Jimmy) Lake.

It has been recommended by Ticket Chairman J. Leighton Cornwell that the entire citizens committee turn out for the Nats' night game with Cleveland Wednesday and stand at attention before the start of play in tribute to Griffith.

Champion Castilloux Relinquishes Titles

Tebbetts Tries To Enlist as Army Airman

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 2.—Maj. Frank Denny of the Army Procurement Division, disclosed today that George (Birdie) Tebbetts, 27-year-old catcher of the Detroit Tigers, had applied for enlistment in the Army Air Corps. Tebbetts has completed the physical examination, he said, and the application has gone to Washington.

Tebbetts underwent the physical tests at Selfridge Field, Mich., yesterday before the Tigers headed East for a 14-game American League road trip, the officer said. If accepted, he gave no hint when the ball player would be called.

Tebbetts is unmarried, but has had 3-A draft classification because of the dependency of his mother, who lives at Nashua, N. H.

La Motta Ring Victor

New York, June 2 (AP).—Jacob La Motta, 157½, New York, pounded out a 10-round decision over Vic Dellicurti, 154, also of New York, in the main event of a boxing card at the Bronx Coliseum tonight.

Smart Lad Wins Charles Town 6th; 26 Collect Double

Combination Of '4 and 2' Pays $163.40

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 2.—Mrs. L. E. Crowell's Smart Lad found a muddy track to his liking here this afternoon and drove to a length-and-a-half victory in the sixth race, best offering on a featureless Tuesday program. The 4-year-old gray gelding led Mrs. M. Miller's Centerville to the wire, with Mrs. R. H. Wesselman's Blue Melody third in the field of eight operating over the about 6-furlong course.

Jockey Joe Cowley had the mount on Smart Lad and put up a sterling brand of riding. He allowed the gelding to settle into his best stride, sent him up on the outside to displace Blue Melody as the pacemaker and then held him together long enough to stave off a losing rush of Centerville. Although tiring, Blue Melody hung on to take the show money.

The winner was one of three well-played horses and returned $10.60 to his backers for each $2 investment. His time of 1:16 was fair for the route in the mud.

26 Hit "Double"

Twenty-six lucky customers collected a $163.40 pay-off on the daily-double combination of "4 and 2." Gov. Sholtz, a veteran of the turf wars, proved the best of eight horses gathered for the second event, Paying an individual mutuel of $9.20, the son of Toro scampered home under the good riding of Jockey Glenn Smith. Not Alone, the pacemaker most of the way, was second, with Little Mowlee third.

An upset marked the third race and provided most of the big return in the "double." Jockey Willie Kelly came through with a sparkling ride on John Leyland's Reign Supreme, the 5-year-old mare responding to the whip to defeat Lennena, Grand Luck and five others. Reign Supreme paid $24.40 in her own right.

One of the championship form reversals of the meeting came in the fifth race. According to the past performances, High Bud was beaten 30 lengths the last time he was on a muddy track. Today the son of Bud Lerner came driving home after circling the field going into the backstretch. There was a $10.20 price tage on the horse. Discretion and Sir Jerome were closest to the winner at the end of the "about" 7 furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHY MISS, $8.40, $3.60, $2.40; TIPPY (entry), $3.20, $2.40; SATCHEL, $2.20.

SHY MISS, hustled to front of TIPPY in opening furlong, drew out and was kept to punishment to end. TIPPY, off alertly, was closest to winner from start and closed willingly. SATCHEL was off poorly and weakened after reaching contention. SOMEWHERE was not a serious factor.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:01½. Off 3:03⅕. Winner, Mrs. F. I. Cranford's b. h. (10), by Toro—Buttress. Trained by C. A. Cranford. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:23.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOV. SHOLTZ, $9.20, $7.20, $4.60; NOT ALONE, $7.40, $6.00; LITTLE MOWLEE, $5.40.

GOV. SHOLTZ, steadied within striking distance early, worked way to contention on outside on backstretch and disposed of NOT ALONE to win going away. NOT ALONE was next to front in front of LITTLE MOWLEE under hustling tactics, set good pace, but could not resist winner. LITTLE MOWLEE was hard used early and weakened in final stages. SETTLER tired after being forwardly placed.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30½. Off 3:31½. Winner, J. Leyland's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—REIGN SUPREME, $24.40, $8.80, $5.00; LENNANE, $10.60, $5.60; GRAND LUCK, $3.80.

REIGN SUPREME, forward factor from start, disposed of SUSAN'S SALLY to take command, was rated when LENNANE went to front, responded gamely when placed to punishment and won going away. LENNANE was off poorly, was driven to contention on outside, took command, but was weakening in closing test. GRAND LUCK closed with good energy. ZAC PAM was prominent to stretch and then tired.

Daily Double, GOV. SHOLTZ and REIGN SUPREME, Paid $163.40.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:58½. Off 4:00½. Winner, R. L. Pearson's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRADATIM, $11.60, $8.60, $4.60; WINDSOR CHIEF, $31.20, $9.80; PERSIAN QUEEN, $3.60.

GRADATIM went to front early, was steadied when displaced, came willingly when placed to drive to regain command and held sway to end under intermittent punishment. WINDSOR CHIEF was forward factor from start and came gamely at close. PERSIAN QUEEN was pinched off going to first turn and closed full of run as if best. DOCTOR'S NURSE went to front boldly on backstretch and then weakened gradually.

FIFTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:27. Off 4:27½. Winner, J. Boaley, jr.'s b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH BUD, $10.20, $6.20, $4.60; DISCRETION, $7.20, $5.60; SIR JEROME, $4.40.

HIGH BUD was rushed around field to take command on backstretch, withstood bids of DISCRETION and drew out under drive. DISCRETION set early pace, could not stay with winner but showed good effort. SIR JEROME was hard ridden in first flight and held on gamely. MR. JIM saved ground, but was not a serious factor.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:54. Off 4:55. Winner, Mrs. L. E. Crowell's gr. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMART LAD, $10.60, $4.60, $3.80; CENTERVILLE, $3.80, $3.00; BLUE MELODY, $3.20.

SMART LAD worked way to contention on outside, responded to drive to wear down BLUE MELODY and drew out under pressure in final furlong. CENTERVILLE went wide for racing room and came willingly to be closing on winner at end. BLUE MELODY took long lead in early stages, but weakened gradually after being displaced. BOB'S PASS had speed in spots.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:22. Off 5:22. Winner, J. L. Friedman's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—IVA MAE, $9.40, $5.00, $3.80; HIGH BLAME, $6.00, $4.00; GRAND COURT, $3.40.

IVA MAE, allowed to settle into best stride, improved position steadily on inside, wore down HIGH BLAME to take command and drew out. HIGH BLAME gave way to contention boldly, disposed of GRAND COURT, but could not resist winner. GRAND COURT set good pace and weakened gradually in closing stages. PEP TALK was well placed early and weakened.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:52. Off 5:52½. Winner, T. Simons' b. g. Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al: Old age was served in yesterday's second race. Gov. Scholz, the winner, is a 10-year-old son of Toro, the horse that finished second to Victorian in the 1928 Preakness. Jockey Danny Scocca, injured here last Saturday, is improved, but is not allowed visitors at the Charles Town Hospital as yet. Alex Curley has bought Quill, an old Charles Town favorite, from Mrs. H. R. Jenkins at private terms. Trainer Mike Johnson was fined $10 yesterday for failure to report a rider for Leaky Roof in the fourth race. Robert Duffy, one of Starter John Morrissey's assistants, suffered a painful dislocation of the right wrist and will be on the shelf for two weeks. Duffy's arm was caught in the starting gate while handling Last Bet in Tuesday's seventh race. A group of us were batting our gums yesterday morning and the subject turned to batteries. One fellow told of a jockey, some years ago, who used a battery on a horse and had a friend hiding in the weeds on the back stretch. After the race the rider tossed the "joint" to his friend, but a policeman was right there. The jockey's friend thought fast. The cop grabbed for him and got a handful of "juice" from the battery. Brother Law was so surprised he let go and the culprit got away. One of the listeners said: "No wonder he got away, I'll bet he used that battery on himself to outrun the cop." For the tenth time in he last 20 days Starter Morrissey was forced to cancel schooling hours due to weather conditions. Mrs. J. A. Mullineaux sold Essence to Mrs. L. A. Livingston. Terms of the sale were private. J. C. Crivella arrived from Laurel with the useful 4-year-old filly Flick. Former Jockey Jack Meier bought the platers Chide and Romney Royal from Mrs. W. Webb. F. Simms succeeded C. W. Byers as trainer of G. K. Patton's Sea Miss and Geneva Mac. Jockey A. Prain left to accept a mount at Delaware Park and will return here Thursday. "Slim" Moore notified the local management that he is shipping a pair of useful sprinters here, to be campaigned during the balance of the meeting. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—HIGHLAND SONG gets in light and will have Al Bocson in the saddle. Looks like the right one. OWALLER has speed and belongs close. HAPPY HOSTESS figures on an off track. BUTTERMAN is good now, but is unlikely to start.

Second race—REAL BOY is the best of this lot and needs only the right ride. FLAG ETTA has class and will be the one to beat. CHANCER and UNITED FORCE are possibilities.

Third race — HAPPY SLAVE seems to have found the right spot in this sprint affair. Likes the distance and is fit as hands make horses. LADY DIVINE showed me enough last out to be dangerous. LADY LONGWORTH for the show end.

Fourth race—PORTET has been shopping around and is ready to turn back this company. DISCOBOLO closed willingly last out and is dangerous. CRIMSON LANCER to account for the show money.

Fifth race—LENA GIRL has performed well over this track and gets my call here. FREDS FIRST and VANTRYST are in good shape, but must give the top one weight. PARADING flashed form last out and is a possible surprise.

Sixth race—SILVER BEAM and MARANDAN are a tight fit in this field. The former can come from behind and I'm going to string along. DON ORLAN for the minor award.

Seventh race—DARBY DU picks up weight and carries 123 pounds. However, he likes the route and will have the right track. WHO REIGH is a guessing game and I'm taking this one second. NAVY for the show end.

Eighth race—SIR TIME has speed and may take a good lead on this kind and get home in front. Mud moves KISSIN KID up and this one will be a factor in the final stages. CORORA and LYDE have a chance.

Ninth race—J. HAL awoke with a bang last out. Looks like this one has to go on top. HOT MAN belongs close. TEYSAK to account for the small portion of the purse.

Best bet—DARBY DU (if W. Kirk rides).

2—Chancer, Flag Etta, Regert.
3—Casad, Happy Slave, Vera M.
4—Discobolo, Anya, State Witness.
5—Vantryst, Strumming, Terry May.
6—Vendor's Lien, Marandan, Silver Beam.
7—Light of Morn, Navy, Darby Du.
8—Medred, Kissin Kid, Lyde.
9—High Plume, J. Hal, Teysak.

CHARLES TOWN SELECTIONS (Fast)

2—Flagetta, Real Boy, Chancer.
3—Happy Slave, Wise Ida, Vera M.
4—State Witness, Discobolo, Poriet.

Wilson, Central Open Interhigh Baseball Playoffs Today

Game Starts At 4 o'Clock At Central

Tigers Play in Title Series First Time; Ogle, Weisenberg Starting Pitchers

Emerging from a round-robin schedule which developed more than the usual quota of surprises, Wilson and Central High nines today launch a three-game championship playoff which may surpass all other surprises in the 1942 public school baseball series. Starting time will be 4 p. m. at Central stadium.

The major surprise about the whole thing to most fans is that Wilson and Central will be today's foes. Neither was given much chance when the season opened. And proof of the closeness of the eight-team race was that neither could clinch a playoff berth until its next-to-the-last game.

Going into the scramble for the title Western won in 1940 and 1941 and was favored to retain, both the Tigers and Vikings will be seeking the second major sports crown of the year for their schools. Wilson holds the basketball mantle and Central is the football champ.

Heintel Not Optimistic

Wilson's presence in the playoff is its first in five years since it joined the interhigh squabble. At its head is quiet-spoken Carl Heintel, whose excellent coaching in both baseball and football has heretofore fallen on arid material at the Nebraska Avenue school. Beaten every way imaginable in the past five years, Heintel is not too optimistic about the playoff.

"We've improved steadily," he said yesterday, "but it won't surprise me if the bottom falls out tomorrow. You must remember this club is a young one, inexperienced and impressionable. But let 'em get off to a good start and my boys will do all right."

The big talking point for Wilson is Jack Ogle, Heintel's annual mound "find." The tall left-hander who has won five straight games is almost certain to hurl today and on his stuff may hinge Tiger hopes.

Leading the invaders' sluggers, as they seek to repeat a 9-6 regular season triumph over Central, will probably be Billy Jawish, squat basketball star turned shortstop; Donny Hillock, another cager at first base, and Monk Barbee, outfielder.

Central will take its first crack at regaining the title it won in 1939, with Aaron Weisenberg, a right-hander, on the hill. He has been beaten only once in five starts this season. The hitting may depend mostly on little Mike Denikos, lead-off man, and Outfielders Harry Wolfe and Pete Chipouris.

Wilson Golfers Trim Western, 9-0

Wilson's golf team blanked Western, 9-0, yesterday at Congressional to tie Anacostia for second place in the Interhigh Series final standings, Wilson and Anacostia will playoff for the runnerup spot Friday.

Bob Roy, No. 1 Wilson player, was the high scorer of yesterday's match with 76. Earlier in the day, Radio and Movie Star Bob Hope played the course, shooting 42 for nine holes.

Roy defeated Ford, 6 and 5; Martin defeated Snodgrass, 5 and 4. Best ball, 4 and 2.

Cooper defeated Brooks, 6 and 5; Jones defeated Squire, 1 up. Best ball, 3 and 2.

She'll Match Shots With Anyone

Poised to knock off a few clay pigeons is Kitty Elliott, pretty 14-year-old Salisbury, Md., girl who placed second in a field of 50 men during the Elks Skeet Club Invitational Shoot last Sunday at Griffith Farms. The Maryland State Ladies' champion had a score of 46x50

Neff Medalist In Senior Play

annual competition for the William Wade Hinshaw trophy will get underway today with one match a day scheduled through Friday's finals.

Three tied with 82s, two shots back of Neff. Walter R. Tuckerman, the 1907 association champion, paired 41s, while W. J. Peters, medalist and runner-up in the first Senior tournament last year, was 42 and 40, and Frank G. Butler, a former Miami Biltmore Senior's champion from Manor Club, also had 42 and 40.

Biggest surprise of the day was the failure of Columbia's Albert R. Mackenzie to make the Senior's championship flight of eight. The former M. A. amateur champ paired 45s for a 90, which was one shot too high for the bracket, as was the 90 of Dr. R. A. Keilty, secretary-treasurer of the golf body who was figured to make the grade. Dr. Keilty lost his place by a bit of carelessness, knocking the ball away from the cup on one occasion before holing out and it cost him three strokes to get back in.

Tuckerman and Neff will meet today in the feature first round attraction.

Scattered post entries in the amateur proper are expected today and by starting time the field may reach the 75 mark, the best in several years. Baltimore's three star shotmakers were attempting to pool their gas and if possible Spencer Overton, 1940 champion and Erford Barnes and Eddie Johnston planned to be on hand today at 1 o'clock when the 18-hole medal rounds get under way.

Match play in all flights will follow with two rounds Thursday and the semi-finals and finals Friday. Visiting players may bring their own caddies due to the shortage.

39 Classes On Columbus Show Program

Thirty-nine classes are listed in one of the most carefully planned prize lists of the current season, released yesterday by the Columbus Horse Show for its Army-Navy charity event June 27 and 28 at the Meadowbrook Saddle Club.

Young hunters, veteran performer in the hunting field, brilliant conformation mounts and open jumpers will have equal opportunity to show, and the junior division will feature outings for both ponies and horses.

Danny Shea of Hyde, Md., and Maj. Turner Wiltshire, of Middleburg, Va., have been invited to judge hunter classes. Estler M. Palmer of Arlington and Thomas J. Trodden of the District, will score open jumpers and Palmer will pair with Maj. Wiltshire to judge the junior division.

Prize lists may be obtained by writing Angelina Carabelli, 1752 Park Road Northwest who is assistant secretary. Entries close June 17.

Odell Names 3 Coaching Aides at Yale

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—Howard Odell, Yale's new head football coach, tonight named three of his assistants, Ed Hirshberg of East Keesport, Pa.; Judson A. Timm of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Stuart Clancy of Branford.

Hirshberg, captain of Pittsburgh's powerful 1931 eleven, was head coach at the University of West Virginia and Timm, former Illinois backfield ace, was in charge of football at Moravian College. Clancy, former Holy Cross star, played professional football recently. The squad, led by Capt. Spencer Moseley of Grosse Point, Mich., has been ordered to report here on July 6, the opening of Yale's summer term, for about three weeks of light work.

Athletic Director Ogden D. Miller said "the men named so far will be of much value to the head coach and to Yale football as a whole. They were all fine players in their day and each has wide coaching experience. We still have an addition or two to make to the staff, but I believe that before long we will be able to announce the complete coaching roster, men who will handle the varsity, freshman and junior varsity teams as well as the hundreds of boys who will be out for football as a part of the conditioning program."

Odell expects his assistants here in a few days.

Prior to taking over at West Virginia during the last two years, Hirshberg assisted Jock Sutherland at Pittsburgh, Earl Blaik at Dartmouth and also did some coaching at Scranton (Pa.) University.

Timm coached the University of Illinois backfield following his graduation and for nine years was head coach at Pennsylvania Military College, leaving two years ago to take charge at Moravian.

Wynn Checks Browns, Nats Score, 4 to 1

Wynn pitched two-hit ball. McQuinn's homer in the seventh with one out was the Brown's third hit. The Browns had the tying run on second with one out in the inning when Chartal dropped Judnick's line drive for a two-base error, but Wynn disposed of Laabs and Stephens on fly balls.

Rough Going in Ninth

Wynn had a rough ninth inning before he turned the Browns back scoreless. Gutteridge led off the inning by bouncing a hit off Estalella's shin, but Clift hit into a double play started by Pofahl. The Browns squawked loudly at Umpire Summers' decision at first base, but there was no compromise. A bit later, McQuinn walked, and Judnich hit the right field fence for a double that put runners on second and third, but Wynn sent everybody home by shoving a game-ending third strike past Laabs.

Mickey Vernon made three straight hits off Galehouse, but for no reason at all he tried to make second after his third-inning single and was thrown out . . . The play cost the Nats a run . . . The Browns didn't get their second hit off Wynn until the sixth inning . . . It was a triple by Galehouse, a drooping fly just out of Chartak's reach . . . Wynn didn't trust Estalella's fielding ability on bunts and scampered across the diamond himself to make a fancy play on Gutteridge's tap in the fourth inning . . . George Case got Wynn out of trouble with the tying run on base in the seventh when he streaked across the foul line to haul down Stephens' fly, hit with a 3 and 2 count . . . Frank Hayes, formerly of the A's, made his debut for the Browns as a pinch hitter in the eighth . . . It wasn't very good . . . Hayes tried to get his bat out of the way of an inside pitch and grounded out weakly to the pitcher . . .

Hallman, Injured Horseman, Improving

Gardner Hallman, Silver Spring (Md.) horseman, who received a broken collarbone in a fall at the Deep Run Horse Show in Richmond, Va., Sunday, is reported to be improving slightly at his home here. His injury came when Smacko, Lieut. and Mrs. Alvin Kay's open jumper, made too big a jump over the first fence of a tough in-and-out and landed in the middle of the second fence, falling on Hallman.

Joe and Doris Weakley Win Mixed Doubles

The Clarendon Mixed Doubles Bowling League had its inaugural last night at Eddie Goldberg's alleys with Joe and Doris Weakley taking first honors for team with 246-712. Joe being high for the men with 144-386. Helen Roberts had high game of 137 for the women and Virginia Jackson rolled 335 for top set.

Bob Nolte Wins Interhigh Batting Title

Anacostia's All-Round Star Finishes Season With a .519 Average

BOB NOLTE

His team couldn't do any better than a tie for fifth place, but Bob Nolte, Anacostia High's chunky all-around star, easily hauled down top batting honors in the regular interhigh season which ended Monday.

A grid ace who started the season at left field and switched to catcher after playing second base last year, Nolte banged out a terrific .519 average. That was 119 points better than the next best regular, Second Baseman Billy Jawish of Wilson.

Included in Nolte's record of 14 hits in 27 official times at the plate were two doubles and a triple, all but one slammed in the almost limitless Anacostia park. By way of rounding out his year's work, the young slugger played the outfield flawlessly for six games.

Dan O'Connell, Tech High pitcher, was at bat only eight times in the four games he played, but managed for a quartet of hits for a .500 average. Third among the regulars was Pete Chipouris, late addition to Central's outfield, with .389. And close behind were Third Baseman Jack Ogle Completes Race With Best Mark Among the Pitchers

Jackie Walsh and Second Baseman John Schmelz of Tech at .385; Second Baseman Mike Denikos of Central at .355; Pitcher Charley Hines of Western and Outfielder Jiggs Simpson of Eastern at .350, and Wilson's Don Hillock and Western's Jim Malarkey at .345.

Tops among public school pitchers was Jack Ogle of Wilson by a narrow margin. The lanky southpaw won five straight games in his first season with the Tigers.

Harry Wolfe, Central's outfielder-pitcher-slugger, worked only 16 innings in support of Aaron Weisenberg, the club's star right-hander, but was second best in the standings with one victory and no losses. He added to that nicely with a .345 batting average.

Weisenberg won four games and lost one, that to Wilson by a 9-6 count, and struck out a total of 57 batters in 40 2-3 innings.

Jockey Roby Remains In Critical Condition

New York, June 2 (AP).—The condition of Tommy Roby, 31-year-old steeplechase rider injured in a fall from his horse at Belmont Park yesterday, remained critical today.

A report from the hospital said that Roby, who is the country's ranking steeplechase jockey of 1941, still was unconscious. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries when Bayard Sharp's Knight's Quest rolled over on him after tumbling at the eighth fence.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Grass is not yet growing on the dirt roads leading to fishing waters, but by the way traffic on them has been cut down it will be only a matter of time when the roads will become green and dustless.

Where fishing waters parallel or come near the roadway, the sound of passing cars is scarce enough to startle the angler when one does go by. In turn you feel conscious that the passerby may be eyeing you speculatively, wondering how you had gas enough to make it.

JACK BELL

The number of anglers who are wearing ties and more business - like clothes on the way to their favorite waters is noticeable. Also the absence of parked cars and former numbers of anglers. No doubt bay waters have taken up some, but we believe many who are inveterate bass anglers and have been only whiling away the time until the opening of the bass season are now saving their gas. The trout fisherman who can get to his favorite stream is now finding conditions more like they were many years ago.

In our past three trout fishing trips we've met up with three anglers fishing with "dropper" flies—that is, two hooks on their line. Ignorance of the law is held to be no excuse for violation. We are now only reiterating information which appeared on these pages only recently, regarding an announcement by E. Lee Lecompte, State game warden of Maryland, that the use of "dropper" flies is outlawed in State waters.

This recent ruling on a law that was not enforced was brought about by the arrest of several anglers early in May in Washington County, charged with using more than one hook to a line. The controversy was settled by an opinion by Hall Hammond, deputy attorney general of State.

The law states: "It shall be lawful to fish with rod, hook and line not to exceed two in number when in the immediate control of the angler." The deputy attorney general's interpretation of the law was that it is illegal in fresh water fishing to angle with more than two rods under the immediate control of the angler, and the phrase . . . not to exceed two in number . . . " refers to the unit, and thus limits the fisherman to but two hooks in the aggregate—one to each rod and line.

This ruling now brings up the question in every black bass fisherman's mind: "What about plugs?" Many of these plugs are equipped with three sets of treble hooks, while others with two and some with three single hooks. Just what stand Maryland's game law enforcement officers will take toward casting for bass with gang-hooked plugs when the season opens June 15 remains to be seen.

A strict interpretation of this law in regard to all methods of fresh-water angling would save many an angler worry and possibly embarrassment.

Capt. N. Johnson, in command of the Captain of Port office at Ocean City, Md., which now is a branch of the Baltimore office, announced: That deep-sea fishing along Maryland's coastline will be limited to daylight hours. Fishing boats will be permitted to go out of the inlet and fish anywhere within five miles of the shore line. Surf casters may ply their art all up and down the Maryland coast; however, only within daylight hours.

It is not necessary to have an identification card; the party boat and fishing cruiser captains will be held responsible for their charges. This, of course, will mean there can be no white marlin or tuna fishing this year, as one must go farther out than five miles to find these fish.

War Damage Risk Rates Set By U.S. Agency

By the Associated Press

Arrangements for Government insurance of private property in the United States against damage from enemy attack were completed yesterday.

The War Damage Corporation, set up recently by Congress as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced that policies would be available about June 20 from local fire insurance agents. The private fire insurance companies are participating in the insurance plan and will be the official agents of the Government in selling the policies.

Yacht Rates Highest

Rates will range from 5 cents per $100 on crops and 10 cents per $100 dwellings up to 75 cents per $100 on yachts.

Other insurance rates—all based on one year's insurance per $100 property value—include:

Churches, hospitals and public buildings, 10 cents on fire resistant construction, otherwise 15 cents.

Apartments, office buildings, warehouses, 15 cents if fire resistant, otherwise 20 cents.

Factories, wharves and bridges, 20 cents if fire resistant, otherwise 30 cents.

Public utilities, 30 cents.

Railroad rolling stock, 25 cents, roadbeds and trackage 10 cents, other railroad property 30 cents.

Private Firms to Share

Vessels under construction, 25 cents if fire resistant, otherwise 37½ cents.

Under the cooperative plan, private insurance companies will stand a maximum of 20 million dollars of the profit or loss resulting from the insurance business.

Other fees include an amount equal to 3½ per cent of the premiums to be paid to the insurance companies and their agents to cover the cost of distributing the policies.

Md. Eastern Shore Utilities to Merge

By the Associated Press

Authorization for the merger of facilities of the Eastern Shore Public Service Co. of Maryland with those of the Delmarva Power Co., on the former's application, was announced last night by the Federal Power Commission.

The application for the merger states, the commission added, that it would simplify the corporate structure of Eastern Shore (Del.) by the elimination of a subsidiary company "which no longer serves a useful purpose" and that it would be incidental to a program "looking toward the merger or consolidation of Eastern Shore of Delaware and its Maryland subsidiaries into a single corporation."

The commission announced also it had authorized issuance of a major license to the Electro Metallurgical Co. of Glen Ferris, W. Va., covering its existing "Hawks Nest" hydroelectric project on the New River in Fayette County, W. Va.

Aluminum Co. Debt Increase Approved

Pittsburgh, June 2 (AP).—Stockholders of the Aluminum Co. of America yesterday approved an increase of the company's indebtedness in the amount of $150,000,000.

Officers said creation of the indebtedness will come from time to time by action of the board of directors. Under this authorization, they said, 30 million dollars is being borrowed immediately through the Mellon Securities Co., which negotiated the loan with three insurance companies.

MacLeish, Ginsburg To Address Retailers

Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, and David Ginsburg, general counsel to the Office of Price Administration in Washington, will be the Government speakers June 17 during the National Retail Dry Goods Association midyear convention at the Palmer House in Chicago.

"What's Over the Horizon in the War on the Home Front," will be Mr. Ginsburg's topic. Mr. MacLeish will speak on "Mobilization of the American Spirit and People." In addition to heading the OFF, Mr. MacLeish is the Librarian of Congress.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—Grain futures again stirred in the home stretch today and for the fourth successive session prices of several contracts slumped. The worst break was in rye future which closed as much as 3½ cents lower with all deliveries at new seasonal lows and the July contract at 65 cents, the bottommost level since last October.

Early in the session most grain futures advanced in some cases as much as 1⅝ cents, but weakness in cotton and cottonseed oil futures spread to the grain pits and prices hit the toboggan. Closing quotations in most instances were at or only slightly above the day's lowest levels.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1 cent below Monday's final quotations, July 1.15⅝@1.15¾; September 1.18¼@1.18⅜. Corn finished ⅝ to 1⅛ down, July 85⅛@85⅝, September 87⅞. Oats ¼ lower to ⅜ higher, the latter on the December contracts. Soybeans ¼ to 1⅝ down. Rye 2⅜ to 3½ off and lard unchanged to 5 cents higher.

Early support for wheat was attributed to some renewal of mill buying and to reports that the executive order authorizing purchases of war materials abroad duty free applied to industrial materials, spices, tea, coffee, cocoa and fibers, rather than to wheat, corn and other domestic agricultural products.

Giants of the Air, Towing Huge Cargo Gliders, Seen Transforming War and Peacetime World

Weeks of amazing prophecies—and denials—on airplane possibilities to win the war and change the peacetime world have just been brought into focus. Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief, reportedly will set up an air cargo committee to study the prospects for speeding development of giant freight-carrying planes.

Some of the sponsors of such planes claim that:

1 They could rush critical material, from ammunition to knocked-down tanks and planes, to vital war areas, thus supplementing shipping; foiling Axis submarine campaigns, and smashing transportation bottlenecks.

2 They would set the pattern for peacetime super-giants of the air which, towing huge cargo gliders, could make the world's remote corners just a few hours away from industrial centers instead of weeks and months when products are moved by ships.

3. The peacetime air giants would replace ocean-going vessels for heavy freight as well as passenger traffic.

As examples of the importance of air transportation in war and peace they call attention to these feats:

American planes are flying military supplies from India to the Chinese, isolated from the outside world when the Japanese cut off the Burma Road. Other planes have carried heavy machinery into inaccessible regions of Alaska, Canada, the Andes Mountains and elsewhere.

Aircraft designers point out that factories now can turn out planes to carry a load of 34 tons 500 miles or loads of 25 tons 2000 miles and can even produce planes carrying 75 tons 2000 miles.

If the committee recommendations were favorable, Nelson would be in a position immediately to order creation of the great Skyway Freighter Fleet.

If the recommendations were unfavorable, the dream of gigantic air transports might be unfulfilled for a while, but not necessarily destroyed, since transports have been getting larger, not smaller.

Glenn L. Martin, aircraft designer and manufacturer, has predicted that great fleets of 70-ton flying-boat transports not only would help win the war, but in peacetime would be succeeded by commercial transports of 125 and 250 tons.

Martin's 70-ton "Mars" is now the world's largest flying-boat, but Walter Hoving, president of Lord & Taylor, which recently gave Martin an award for his work, noted that the manufacturer has completed design for a 125-tonner and that it is ready for construction.

Aeronautical Engineer Grover Loening told the Foreign Commerce Club that airplanes must replace ocean-going vessels completely for freight and passenger traffic immediately after the war or sooner, if the war lasts many years.

He painted a gloomy picture of New York losing its commanding trade position when heavy freight-carrying planes fly directly to the great inland manufacturing centers of the United States to load and unload cargo.

Shipping men, disagreeing with him, say they will begin to worry only when airlines can bring their freight rate down to steamship rates and when planes actually get large enough to carry what ships can carry such as locomotives and bulk commodities like lumber, bauxite, ore and coal.

These shipping men note confidently, too, that the Maritime Commission building program ending in 1943 would provide cargo-vessel capacity of approximately 20 million tons, an asset not likely to be scrapped.

But—some shipping men expressed belief the great steamship companies would not attempt to build any more superliners but would build great passenger-carrying planes of their own or enter into an agency agreement with airplane companies.

One company, the American Export Line, has embarked on an air program and will operate both by air and sea.

Some freight cars can carry 60 tons but the average maximum load is about 50 tons, while ocean-going freighters can transport between 3500 and 20,000 tons, depending on the size of the ship.

Col. Edward S. Evans, pioneer in gliding and air passenger traffic, foresees after the war thousands of gliders—needing no fuel and hauled through the air by giant planes acting as locomotives—carrying millions of pounds of freight faster and cheaper than could be handled by ship, train or truck.

Besides producing more than 3000 planes a month, the aircraft industry is now turning out gliders for which the Army is training pilots.

$26,000,000 V. P. S. Issue Is Awarded

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—Virginia Public Service Corporation today awarded in open bidding a twenty-six million dollar bond issue and $10,500,000 in debentures to a syndicate headed by Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., Halsey, Stuart & Co., First Boston Corporation and Kidder, Peabody & Co.

The group, which included more than 90 firms, bid 105.65 for 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds and 98.77 for 5 per cent debentures.

Both issues, it was understood, would be offered publicly Thursday, the bonds at 106.75 and the debentures at 102, subject to approval of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Proceeds will be used to redeem funded debt of the company and of a subsidiary, Virginia Public Service Generating Co., and for other purposes.

Safeway Sales Up 27.7% in Period

Sales of Safeway Stores, Inc., for the four weeks ended May 23, were $47,233,357, compared with $36,978,610 for the four weeks ended May 24, 1941, an increase of $27.73 per cent.

For the 20 weeks ended May 23, sales amounted to $229,211,826, as against $175,511,479 for the 20 weeks ended May 24, 1941, an increase of 30.60 per cent.

Stores in operation as of May 23 were 2739, compared with 2996 on May 24, 1941.

Pullman-Standard Sells to 'Anyone'

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP).—Charles A. Liddle, president of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., testified today that the firm would "sell any kind of a car which it is able to build to any person, firm or corporation which is ready, willing and able to buy."

Called as a defense witness at a hearing on the Government's anti-trust charges against the Pullman companies and 31 officers, Liddle said Pullman-Standard never refused to manufacture or sell any kind of a car "where the buyer was ready, except as the company may have been limited at some particular time or other about capacity."

He said there was no contract in existence between Pullman-Standard and the Pullman Co., both subsidiaries of Pullman, Inc., which requires Pullman, Inc., to buy its sleeping cars from Pullman-Standard or Pullman Co.

FDIC Aide Joins Warrenton Bank

Warrenton, Va., June 2 (AP).—J. Ray Larcombe, a law graduate of George Washington University, Washington, has been named assistant cashier of the Peoples National Bank here, succeeding D. J. Hatcher, who has been granted a leave of absence for military service. Larcombe has been employed in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for four years.

Pledged as Collateral

Rails Face Finance Problem In WPB Seizure of Equipment

By the Associated Press

New York, June 2.—The Missouri Pacific Railroad has arranged with the trustees of its series "GG" 2½ per cent equipment trust certificates to substitute available equipment as collateral for that portion of the rolling stock previously pledged but which the road was unable to produce because the War Production Board seized it.

Within recent weeks several prominent carriers have been faced with the same situation due to the general order of the WPB taking control of all equipment in process of being turned out for various carriers and making whatever disposition of it the board chose.

Each railroad tackled the problem in the light of its own individual circumstances, some arranging with trustees of the equipment trust certificates to substitute Government bonds in lieu of the rolling stock taken by the Government and others devising other means, including pooling of equipment.

When the WPB issued its directive seizing all equipment on order for railroads with the intention of diverting it to the place most urgently needed carriers found themselves confronted with a novel problem. They had contracted with bankers to finance the rolling stock as it was delivered to them, the equipment itself constituting the main collateral behind the loans.

When the carriers were unable to obtain the equipment, they had to arrange substitutions or pay interest on the money during the life of the loan and see it remain idle. Equipment trust certificate indentures usually provide for the appointment of a trustee for each issue who handles both the original funds loaned to pay for the equipment and the installments paid by the railroads to liquidate the loan. The railroads have no direct control of the money and the trustee is specifically bound by the contract as to its disposition.

A high degree of cooperation between the bankers, the trustees and the railroads was said to have enabled speedy solutions of most of the problems thus far presented by the WPB seizure order.

Typewriter Output May Halt by Fall

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board indicated yesterday that typewriter production would be stopped by fall and simultaneously ordered the industry to maintain its present rate of output for the next two months to build up reserve supplies.

The national typewriter stockpile, including all machines made between now and the shutdown date, will be sufficient to take care of military and essential civilian requirements until July, 1944, WPB estimated.

Meanwhile, officials disclosed that the Army and Navy had been required to revise their demands for newer typewriters "substantially" and would be given two used machines for each new one delivered. Officials declined to predict what effect this distribution ratio would have on the supply of used typewriters now available for rental to civilians. An inventory of all stocks of used typewriters has been started by OPA and WPB sources said it was "hoped" enough machines would be found to meet military demands.

Under the program, the largest manufacturers—Underwood, Remington-Rand, Royal, International Business Machines and L. C. Smith and Corona—may produce during June and July up to 75 per cent of their average monthly sales of nonportable machines last year.

During the same period, the Woodstock Co. may make 90 per cent of its average monthly sales in 1941.

Civilian Wool Restrictions Eased

The War Production Board yesterday removed its prohibition against the use of wool in carpets, draperies and upholstery for non-military use, permitting manufacturers use up to 25 per cent of the amount of coarse wool they used for such purposes in 1941.

Coarse carpet wool, mohair, skin alpaca, coarse alpaca, fleece, alpaca seconds, huarizo and illama were approved for draperies and upholstery and coarse carpet wool for floor coverings.

WPB also relaxed its prohibition against the use of more than 80 per cent wool in nonmilitary blankets, but only where such blankets are made solely from used paper makers' wool felts and used processing wool felts.

Late Earnings Statements

Southern Pacific Co. reported $4,676,129 consolidated net income in April, more than double that of the 1941 month. Earnings on the 3,772,777 outsanding capital shares amounted to $4.11 a share compared with $1.56 in the 1941 period.

WARNER BROTHERS PICTURES, INC., and subsidiaries reported a net operating profit of $3,802,055 for the 26 weeks ended February 28 compared with $2,782,544 for the corresponding period a year ago. The profit figure was equal, after allowance for current dividend requirements on the preferred stock, to 97 cents a common share, compared with 70 cents a share shown for the period ended March 1, 1941. Dividends in arrears on the preferred as of March 1 this year amounted to $33.6875 a share.

Output Record Set By Carnegie-Illinois

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—The Nation's largest steel plants—the Gary, Ind., and South Chicago, Ill., works of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation—established 23 weekly and monthly production records to hit an all-time production high level in May, the United States Steel Corporation subsidiary announced today.

These mills increased steel production over their previous record, in March, by approximately 20,000 tons, enough to build more than 700 medium tanks. Blast furnaces of the two plants had an increase of about 2000 tons over their previous record, also in March. One week in May the two plants operated at 110.7 per cent of capacity, for a new record.

Tobacco Stocks Swing Higher in Late Trade As General List Moves Irregularly Lower

New York, June 2.—Mildly irregular tendencies persisted in today's stock market despite further optimistic war developments. The list edged forward at the start on overnight news of the second 1000-plane smash at the Nazis but minor gains later were erased in many cases when rails, steels and coppers began to give ground.

Wall Street still was two-minded on the qestion of a long conflict or a comparatively early peace and the result, brokers said, was a disposition to step lightly on either side of the market fence pending more definite international events.

While gainers of modest amounts were plentiful at the close, losers were in the majority, although no particular weakness was seen.

The Associated Press average duplicated its performance of the three preceding sessions, finishing unchanged at 34.6. Of 629 individual issues traded, 289 were down, 174 up and 166 unchanged. Dealings still were relatively slow but transfers totaled 316,050 shares against 308,850 Monday.

Tobacco stocks picked up in the final few minutes, seemingly making belated response to the Treasury's forecast that smokers would absorb higher taxes on tobacco products and continue heavy consumption of cigarettes. Liggett & Myers "B" was up 1½ points and American "B" ½.

New bottoms for the year or longer were touched by Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Kennecott and Youngstown Sheet. On the offside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Anaconda, American Smelting, U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, International Harvester and American Can.

General Motors made a new top for 1942, with a gain of ¼. Plus signs were retained by American Telephone, N. Y. Central, Dome Mines, General Electric, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Goodyear and Woolworth.

Railway loans again were softest spots in the bond department. Cotton futures weakened and other commodities retreated after a steady start, renewed selling still being blamed on the order permitting Federal agencies to import war materials duty free. At Chicago wheat was down ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel, corn off ¾ to 1⅛ and hogs 5 to 10 cents lower. Cotton lost $1.20 to $1.40 a bale.

In the curb Aluminum of America dropped 2 and lesser recessions were registered for American Cyanamid, Brewster Aero, N. J. Zinc and Sherwin Williams. Up moderately were Creole Petroleum and Gulf Oil. Axton-Fisher Tobacco jumped 3 points on restricted buying. Turnover here aggregated 60,530 shares versus 47,210 yesterday.

New York Cotton

New York, June 2 (AP).—Broad liquidation caused cotton futures to tumble $1.30 to $1.40 a bale today in a session which saw some of the lowest levels since late February.

President Roosevelt's order authorizing emergency purchase of war materials abroad and their duty free importation to the United States was one of the main factors in the setback, brokers said

Chambers Battles Rising Costs!!!

Prices of Fine Funerals Are Kept Down . .

For over 35 years the public has dealt with Chambers in full confidence and security, knowing his traditional policy of providing fine funerals at minimum cost.

It is with extreme pride that Chambers points out this achievement at a time when quality and economy mean so much more; and he is TODAY resolute in his determination to keep values UP . . . and prices DOWN.

LEGAL NOTICES 4

CHARLES H. REMANS, Attorney, 1324 Wallach Place Northwest.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. David L. Moffitt, Whitelaw Hotel, Apartment 205, plaintiff, vs. Eddie Mae Moffitt, address unknown, defendant. No. 15608. The object of this suit is absolute divorce on ground of desertion. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 1st day of June, 1942, ordered that the defendant Eddie Mae Moffitt cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the FORTIETH day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. JESSE C. ADKINS, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By ELEANOR E. JOBE, Deputy Clerk. 3.10.17

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, Washington, June 1, 1942, ORDERED: That Part 1, Article XIV, Section 71, paragraph (a), Northwest Section, of the Traffic and Motor Vehicle Regulations of the District of Columbia, be, and the same is hereby, amended as follows: D STREET: Add a new clause under D Street as follows: "From 11th Street east a distance of 92 feet on the north side, no parking at any time." FOXHALL ROAD: Add a new clause under Foxhall Road as follows: "From Reservoir Road to Cathedral Avenue, no parking at any time on either side." GEORGIA AVENUE: Add a new clause under Georgia Avenue as follows: "From Upshur Street to Kansas Avenue, no parking at any time on either side." Add a new paragraph as follows: QUEBEC STREET: "From Idaho Avenue to 34th Street, no parking at any time on the south side." YUMA STREET: Strike out the period at the end of the first clause under Yuma Street, substitute a comma therefor and add the following: "except on Sundays from 6 a. m. to 1 p. m."—so that the clause, as amended, will read as follows: "From Tenley Circle to 42nd Street, no parking at any time on the south side, except on Sundays from 6 a. m. to 1 p. m." 12TH STREET: In the third clause under 12th Street, strike out the words "G Street" and substitute therefor the words "New York Avenue," so that the clause, as amended, will read as follows: "From New York Avenue to Massachusetts Avenue, on the east side, no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." Strike out the sixth clause under 12th Street which reads: "From Pennsylvania Avenue to E Street and from F Street south a distance of 100 feet, on the east side, no parking at any time, except space for a taxicab stand for one vehicle on the east side, south of the south entrance to the Raleigh Hotel, such stand not to be occupied by taxicab from 8 to 9:30 a. m. or 4 to 6 p. m."—and substitute in lieu thereof the following: "From Pennsylvania Avenue to New York Avenue, on the east side, no standing 7:30 to 9 a. m. and 4 to 6:30 p. m." "On the east side, from Pennsylvania Avenue to E Street, no parking at any time except taxicabs on the stand." "From a point 100 feet south of F Street to G Street, no parking at any time on the east side." J. R. YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, G. MASON, Commissioners, D. C.

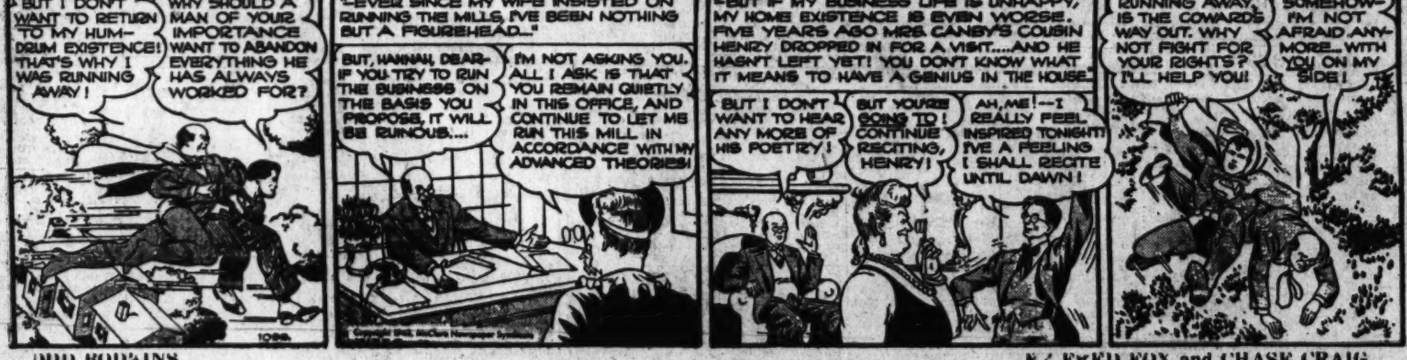
SUPERMAN — Why Men Leave Home — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER



BUT I DON'T WANT TO RETURN TO MY HUM-DRUM EXISTENCE! THAT'S WHY I WAS RUNNING AWAY!
WHY SHOULD A MAN OF YOUR IMPORTANCE WANT TO ABANDON EVERYTHING HE HAS ALWAYS WORKED FOR?
"EVER SINCE MY WIFE INSISTED ON RUNNING THE MILLS, I'VE BEEN NOTHING BUT A FIGUREHEAD..."
BUT, HANNAH, DEAR— IF YOU TRY TO RUN THE BUSINESS ON THE BASIS YOU PROPOSE, IT WILL BE RUINOUS...
I'M NOT ASKING YOU ALL I ASK IS THAT YOU REMAIN QUIETLY IN THIS OFFICE, AND CONTINUE TO LET ME RUN THIS MILL IN ACCORDANCE WITH MY ADVANCED THEORIES!
"BUT IF MY BUSINESS LIFE IS UNHAPPY, MY HOME EXISTENCE IS EVEN WORSE. FIVE YEARS AGO MRS. CANBY'S COUSIN HENRY DROPPED IN FOR A VISIT....AND HE HASN'T LEFT YET! YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT IT MEANS TO HAVE A GENIUS IN THE HOUSE."
BUT I DON'T WANT TO HEAR ANY MORE OF HIS POETRY!
BUT YOU'RE GOING TO! I CONTINUE RECITING, HENRY!
AH, ME!—I REALLY FEEL INSPIRED TONIGHT! I'VE A FEELING I SHALL RECITE UNTIL DAWN!
RUNNING AWAY, IS THE COWARDS WAY OUT. WHY NOT FIGHT FOR YOUR RIGHTS? I'LL HELP YOU!
SOMEHOW— I'M NOT AFRAID ANY-MORE... WITH YOU ON MY SIDE!

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

I CAN'T SLEEP, GRANDMA—I KEEP THINKING OF POOR LITTLE JOSEPHINE!
THE PORE LITTLE THING! I WONDER HOW SHE FEELS?
WHEN THE SUN COMES UP OVER THE HILL, THAT MAN WILL GO OUT TO THE HEN-HOUSE WITH A HATCHET, AND—DON'T EVEN TALK ABOUT IT, ODD!
IF SHE COULD ONLY PERFORM SOME KIND OF MIRACLE THAT WOULD SAVE HER LIFE!
I'M AFRAID IT'S TOO LATE FOR THAT!
WHAT COULD SHE DO THAT WOULD MAKE MORLEY CHANGE HIS MIND ABOUT HAVING HER FOR BREAKFAST?
I DON'T KNOW, GRANDMA— BUT IF SHE CAN THINK OF SOMETHING, I BET SHE'LL DO IT!

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"Doc thinks he's fooling me with those harmless sugar-coated pills—but I'm using them in my coffee!"

Listen! with Glynn

No one ever would have thought a few weeks ago that WJSV's program director, Richard Linkroum, would turn out to be a superior adviser to women on the problem of their daily lives.

But such is his versatility that today he's responsible for giving women as much sage advice about important matters as anyone who's in that precarious business.

It all has to do with the new program which he started over WJSV last Sunday, to be heard every Sunday from now on at 6:15 p. m., called "Womanpower." It's probably the first radio program to be devoted entirely to women's work in this war and its purpose is to get women to volunteer wisely in the war effort instead of getting into work where their talents might be wasted or where the field already is overcrowded.

This is done by the simple process of getting experts in the various fields of women's work to tell each week where women are needed and, likewise, where they are not needed—in general hewing to the line that orderly mobilization of women for war work should take the place of the present helter-skelter volunteering that now is going on.

Featured each week is a dramatization of some feminine problem connected with the war and the presence of some well known guest who can solve it. Last Sunday's guest was Col. Don C. Faith, commandant of the new W. A. A. C. Camp at Des Moines. Next week's will be Mrs. Ellen Woodward of the Social Security Board.

Contract Bridge

"A friendly foursome would like to know how this hand should be bid," asks L. M. G. With North-South vulnerable and South dealer, North holds:

♠ A 8 6 2
♡ 9 7 4 3
◇ 7 5 2
♣ A Q

"South opens the bidding with one heart, West passes; what should be North's response? P. S.—Six hearts were made, only four bid."

North can either jump at once to three hearts or bid one spade, planning to give a strong heart raise on the next round.

A. B. of Chicago, asks how this hand should be bid. With neither side vulnerable, North holds:

♠ Q J 10 9 5 4
♡ None
◇ 8 7 3 2
♣ 9 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Double	?	—

"Should North bid or pass," asks A. B., "and if he should bid, what should the bid be?"

North's bid is one spade. If he passes, East is very likely to leave in the double for penalties, and his partner will pass, believing that South's silence indicates he can stands hearts. Moreover, it is a cheap way to show partner his long spade suit without implying tricks in high cards.

Diamond Cabs May Be Added To Taxi Pickup

An indication that the Public Utilities Commission may modify its emergency taxicab "pick-up" order to permit inclusion of the Diamond Cab Co. without interfering with its concessions was given in the first session of a hearing yesterday at the District Building.

Harry C. Davis, president of the Diamond Cab Co., consumed most of the day, explaining the association's contracts at Union Station, the National Airport, Norfolk & Washington Steamboat wharves, Wardman Park, Shoreham and Carlton Hotels, Westchester and Broadmoor Apartments, the Greyhound Bus Terminal and other concessions.

The question the commission is considering is whether the public is adequately served by taxicabs at places of concession, and whether it is in the public interest that exclusive arrangements for such places be allowed.

Roosevelt Urges Payment of Mortgages

Use of increased earnings as the result of the war industrial program to make bigger payments on their mortgages, was urged by President Roosevelt yesterday upon more than 800,000 families purchasing homes under the FHA Mortgage Insurance Plan.

Such payments now will "share importantly in our common battle against the rising cost of living," the President said.

Of approximately four billion in mortgages granted by FHA on small homes, more than $400,000,000 has already been paid off in full or otherwise retired.

Dr. H. G. Clark Named Bishop By Mormons

Dr. Harold G. Clark, chief of the training section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, has been named new Bishop of the Washington Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

CLARK

He succeeds Dr. Edgar B. Brossard, president of the Washington branch of the church from 1928 until 1936, when three new branches were formed. When the Washington Stake was organized in 1940, Dr. Brossard was elected bishop of the Washington Ward of that stake. Dr. Brossard will now become a member of the Washington Stake high counsel.

Bishop Clark was for several years secretary to Representative John R. Murdock, of Arizona, and at one time was recreation director on the Leviathan. He received his Ed.D., from George Washington University last February, his doctorate thesis involving a survey of personnel offices of 19 Federal agencies. He is research chairman of the Guide and Personnel Association of the District of Columbia, and president of Phi Delta Kappa, educational fraternity.

The Washington Stake includes the Washington, Chevy Chase and several other wards.

D. C. Family Loses 2d Child In 3 Months By Burning

The Baggett family of 1236 K Street Southeast last night mourned the loss from burns of a second child in less than three months.

Catherine Baggett, 9, was burned to death at home, March 15, when her clothing became ignited from a gas log. She was playing with her five brothers and three sisters while her parents were hunting for work.

Yesterday, Charles Baggett, 13, who tried heroically to save Catherine's life by tearing her flaming clothes off her, was fatally burned when he touched a high-tension wire.

He had stayed home from school because he had no shoes, his father, Charles W. Baggett, an unemployed carpenter, said.

Though he had been warned repeatedly to stay away from the railroad tracks, Charles was playing atop a freight car at the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at the foot of Fifteenth Street Southeast, about three blocks from his home.

Two Negro laborers looking for work at a nearby construction site, saw the boy on top of the car and, and realizing the danger of his playing near the heavily charged electric cables, warned him.

The men, Herbert L. Davis and Edward Dawkins, both of 1820 Twelfth Street Northwest, said Charles disregarded their shouts and grasped one of the wires as if to swing.

The contact enveloped him in flames and he was hurled to the ground, a distance of about 20 feet. At Providence Hospital, where he was taken, doctors said his entire body suffered third degree burns. His clothing was burned almost completely off him. He died at 4:15 p. m., about four hours after the accident.

Charles was next to the oldest of the children.

Dazed Passenger Of Missing Plane Found on Road

Chambersburg, Pa., June 2 (AP)—A passenger on a plane unreported since it left the Middletown, Pa., Army depot last night for Louisville, Ky., was found in a dazed condition on a road 18 miles from here today. The plane was believed to have crashed in that vicinity.

The passenger, picked up by a trucker, was identified by Army officials as Second Lieut. Henry Alexander Salm, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., suffering from shock. He was unable to give a coherent account of what happened. The pilot on the missing plane was First Lieut. John C. Femenella, address unknown. Army officials said both Femenella and Salm were from Goodfellow Field, San Angelo, Tex.

A party of searching planes was sent out by the Middletown depot, 60 miles northeast of here, to aid State Police and volunteers in combing the mountainous area where the missing craft was believed to have crashed.

Elevator Ride To Monument Top Now Costs Dime

"Brother, can you spare a dime? I want to ride up to the top of the Monument."

Yesterday it went into effect—a 10-cent fee for the round trip haul up Washington Monument and back to terra firma again. The honor of being the first paying customer went to C. I. Sutphin of Laurel Park, Va. He was on deck at opening time, 9 a. m.

Six hours later the shaft had had 800 visitors, of whom 578 were revenue passengers in the elevator. The remainder were service men or children under 16, who are admitted free. The stairway up the 555-foot monument is closed for the duration.

Italian Becomes Citizen; Would Fight for U. S.

Ariel A. A. Nicoletti Mengarini, a George Washington University medical student who "would not like to fight against Italy, but would, if necessary, for the United States," was granted American citizenship yesterday by Justice Matthew F. McGuire of District Court.

Mengarini, one of 44 applying for citizenship, came to this country in 1923 and lives at 1561 Thirty-fifth Street Northwest with his mother, Fausta V. Mengarini Carte, a sculptress. He received a 2-A classification in the draft because of his status as a medical student.

Other applicants for citizenship yesterday included three Germans. Action on them was postponed pending further investigation.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
